C. I. O. Opens Drive To Include Ford Plant In Car Workers' Union

N. J. Assembly Unit Is Declared First in Program.

Edgewater Branch Has 3,700 Workers

Martin Expects Auto Magnate to Fall Into Line.

By the Associated Press.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 26.—With unionization of the 3,700 workers in the Ford Motor Co. assembly plant at Edgewater his immediate objective, President Homer Martin, of the United Automobile Workers of America tonight formally launched a C. I. O. membership drive in northern New Jersey.

Martin addressed a mass meeting sponsored by the Committee for Industrial Organization after announcing in New York that the Ford plant was first on the list, with the oil refineries and textile plants next in line.

His announcement brought no immediate comment from Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, critic of the sit-down strategy. Hoffman has threatened to use "the entire resources of the State" to combat sit-down strikes here.

Hoffman Invited.

Martin said he invited Gov. Hoffman to attend tonight's meeting.

He declared "Ford employes are coming into the union so fast that we can't take care of them" and added that "we certainly expect Ford to bargain collectively with us, but we're not setting any brakes on our drive for members."

The Ford Edgewater plant has not been the scene of labor trouble since 1933 when 1,600 employes walked out in an American Federation of Labor strike for higher wages and shorter hours. The strike was unsuccessful.

Officials Silent.

Officials at the Edgewater plant offices would not comment on the union plans, except to say there that no organization work was known to be in progress and no demands had been received.

Asked if Henry Ford had not advised his workers to remain out of the union, Martin said:

"I think the Ford employes will pay about as much attention to that as they did to his advice to elect Landon President of the United States."

Sit-Down Strikers Routed.

Waukegan, Ill., Feb. 26 (AP).—Militant Lake County officers routed 61 "sit-down" strikers from the Fansteel Metallurgical Corporation plants in a furious tear-gas battle today and then began a search for the strike leaders.

A special squad of three—led by a deputy whose head was gashed in the 90-minute affray—hunted two Committee for Industrial Organization chieftains, Meyer Adelman and Oakley Mills, on warrants charging them with contempt of court.

Other officers sought the ringleaders among the 91 other men similarly cited for conspiring to hold two of the firm's North Chicago factories for ten days in defiance of a court order directing their evacuation.

Warrants Issued.

Seven new warrants, charging unlawful conspiracy to prevent the carrying out of the Circuit Court writ of eviction, were issued late today by Justice of the Peace Harry Hoyt.

State Attorney Charles E. Mason said they were criminal warrants and named Adelman, John A. Kondrath, president of Lodge No. 66 of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of North America; Carl Swanson, secretary of the lodge, and these members, J. R. Weber, Ted Rich, Helmar Johnson and Melvin Petzele.

Labor Developments

By the Associated Press.

The Committee for Industrial Organization, supporter of strikes in many sections of the Nation, pointed its unionization drive toward Ford Motor Co. employes yesterday.

President Homer Martin of the United Automobile Workers of America, C. I. O. affiliate, instituted the drive at a Newark, N. J., mass meeting.

He listed the 3,700 workmen at Ford's Edgewater assembly plant as the number one objective, with New Jersey's oil refineries and textile plants next in line.

The U. A. W. A. sponsored the recent widespread strikes in General Motors plants and has arranged a collective bargaining conference with the second of the automotive industry's "Big Three," the Chrysler Motor Corporation.

New and forceful blows were dealt "sit-down" strategists. A militant corps of officers drove 61 squatters from two Fansteel Metallurgical Corporation factories at North Chicago, Ill., in a spectacular tear gas attack. C. I. O. and union leaders there were ordered arrested.

341 Squatters Are Arraigned.

The 341 squatters who evacuated the Douglas Aircraft plant Thursday were arraigned on trespassing charges and released on bonds totalling $341,000. The money, the bail brokers said, came "right out of John L. Lewis' war chest." Lewis is the director of the C. I. O. move to unionize the mass production workers—automotive, steel and oil.

At Groton, Conn., 107 stay-in strikers who were forcibly removed from the Electric Boat Co.'s yards obtained a one week's continuance in their trespassing cases.

Meanwhile, new strikes offset settlements. Approximately 1,700 U. A. W. A. members sat down in two Detroit auto parts factories, the Michigan Malleable Iron and Thompson Products Cos. Several hundred quit work at two packing houses and a corset plant there. The La Grange Flour Mill at Red Wing, Minn., closed after 29 employes started a picket parade.

Gov. Elmer Benson of Minnesota sought the aid of a Federal conciliator in a strike at the Northern States Power plants in Minneapolis.

Coal Mine Parley Deadlocked.

Friction between unionists and non-unionists along an assembly line caused a strike by U. A. W. A. members in Janesville, Wis.

Shoe union leaders and manufacturers conferred in an effort to reach an agreement on a demand for a 15 per cent wage increase in three New England towns. Approximately 2,400 were still out in seven plants although 28 firms had signed new contracts.

The long effort of representatives of operators and union miners in New York to reach a new wage agreement for 400,000 workers in the vast Appalachian coal fields was adjourned until next Tuesday. There was no sign that any substantial progress had been made.

Officials of the National Steel Corporation said at Pittsburgh informal discussions of possible wage increases have been started with representatives of the corporation's employes.

More than $1,000,000 yearly will be added to pay envelopes of National Cash Register Co. employes through a wage agreement reached at Dayton, Ohio, between the firm's employes' representation unit and the management. Increases will affect about 6,800 workers or 95 per cent of all Dayton employes of the firm, an announcement said.

Minnesota Bill Would Insure Job to Worker

By the Associated Press.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 26.—A proposal to legislate labor troubles out of existence in Minnesota rested in committee today while plans were under way for hearing probably next week.

The bill, described by its author, State Senator Michael Galvin, as "a new and revolutionary" idea in labor relations legislation, would compel employers to pay wages on the basis of profits, recognize the right of organization and collective bargaining and authorize employes to resort to courts to collect "fair wages."

The measure also would give legal status to seniority and establish the right of the worker to his job, prohibiting dismissal after eight weeks except for cause. The State industrial commission would administer the act.

Aligned With Conservatives.

Senator Galvin is aligned with the dominant senate conservative faction, and seldom votes with the liberal minority behind the Farmer-Labor Administration of Gov. Elmer Benson.

Galvin's proposal was presented the day after Gov. Benson proposed a five-day week for State employes as a means of setting a precedent for private employers.

The sponsor of the drastic labor relations plan today credited its inspiration to Jay Hormel, president of the Hormel Packing Co., at Austin, Minn.

Hormel recently urged before a House committee that employes be exempt from paying into the unemployment fund and that the burden be borne by the employers alone.

Talked With Hormel.

"After a hearing on the unemployment insurance bill," said Senator Galvin, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, "Hormel talked with me about an idea he had that employes should be given some assurance of security of employment if it were possible to state that in law, and that some attempt should be made to prevent employers from chiseling for profit.

"Both employers and employes, both within and without the State, studied the proposition and corresponded and consulted with several persons in labor relations. The result is an attempt to arrive at some sort of justice as far as employes are concerned.

"I do not claim that the proposal is perfect or that it will cure all of the existing difficulties between employers and employes. However, it is my belief that if the proposed bill is enacted into law, that much in the right direction may be accomplished."

Federal Labor Conciliators to Check Strikes

Plane Plant Situation Is Complicated by Rival Union Groups.

By William V. Nessly.

Government officials are watching closely the outbreak of sit-down strikes over the country, and representatives of the Labor Department's conciliation service are present at the scenes of the most threatening ones, it was learned yesterday.

Secretary of Labor Perkins characterized the flare-ups as minor in character, with none affecting any great number of workers, and said only "usual" steps are being taken to meet them. However, reports were being received at the Labor Department from conciliators in the field where violence has occurred or appeared imminent.

Conciliators Robert Pilkington and John Smith have been at the scene of the Waukegan, Ill., disturbance, where yesterday sit-down strikers were driven from the plant of the Fansteel Metallurgical Corporation by use of tear gas bombs. Pilkington and Smith have been cooperating with Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois in efforts to settle the dispute.

Ask C. I. O. Recognition.

Hugh L. Kerwin, chief of the Conciliation Service, also has had E. H. Fitzgerald, conciliator, at the plant of the Douglas Aircraft Corporation, at Santa Monica, Calif., where 400 strikers were induced to leave the plant after they had been indicted and after threats to burn the factory if they were evicted had been reported.

The situation at the Douglas plant is an unusual one, it was explained here, in that there already is a local of the machinists union there, affiliated with the American Federa-

2 Nations Bolt Sea Blockade Around Spain

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 26.—Efforts to set up an international barricade around Spain were jolted today by decision of Russia and Portugal not to join a naval blockade of the war-torn nation.

Great Britain and other powers rushed preparation for revision of the control scheme to meet the situation.

Informed sources said tonight it might be impossible to have the full details of the neutrality program in effect by the March 6 deadline, but expressed hope it could be made substantially effective then.

Land control phases of the blockade were reported virtually settled today.

Negotiations Set Back.

France and Britain, following withdrawal of Russia and Portugal from the sea patrol, will take back patrol zones they had originally relinquished to those nations. Russia had objected to patrolling the Bay of Biscay. Her withdrawal was followed closely by Portugal, apparently by agreement. Russia was admitted to the patrol in the first place on condition Portugal could participate.

Today's action by Russia and Portugal virtually reverted the negotiations to where they were a month ago. Four major powers—Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany—now remain as participants in all phases of the program.

Meanwhile, the British government began an investigation of the British steamer Llandovery Castle's near disaster. The ship, with 300 passengers aboard, limped into Port Vendres, France, after striking a mine off Capo de Creus, Spain. The British wanted to know whether the Spanish government or the insurgents had mined the Gibraltar-Marseille ship line.

Leftists Assault Rebel Hill.

Madrid, Feb. 26 (AP).—Government fire concentrated from flank positions of Pinzarron Hill, strategic Jarama front point dominating the Valencia-Madrid highway, today failed to dislodge insurgents holding command of the hillcrest.

Government troops, stirred to action on the long-dormant Carabanchel sector, south of the capital, peppered insurgent concentrations with machine gun fire to make important advances. Sporadic fighting on other sectors, including West Park and University City, west and north of Madrid, was reported.

Sewers Protect Oviedo Fascists.

Bayonne, France, Feb. 26 (AP).—The insurgent defenders of Oviedo fought on doggedly tonight from the very sewers of the ancient city, pushed underground by six days of Basque attack.

Their machine guns spat back at the government atackers from the entrances to the dank, arched stone passages, high enough for a man to walk through in upright position. They were laid centuries ago, and today they formed both a barricade and a place of refuge from governmen ground and air attacks.

25 Wedding Guests Waiting at Church As Pastor Detours

Keeping 25 guests, the bridegroom and the bride-to-be waiting for an hour at the altar in Walter Reed Chapel yesterday afternoon, the Rev. Horace E. Cromer, pastor of the Emory Methodist Church, through some misinformation, detoured to his destination by way of Fort Myer Chapel, Fort Myer, Va.

After making the 5-mile trip there, the pastor, finding no bride and groom, returned to Washington. Ascertaining the correct address he went to Walter Reed Chapel, which is just a few blocks from his home, 1338 Somerset place northwest. The bride-to-be, Marie Ingebritsen, formerly a nurse in Walter Reed Hospital, and the bridegroom, Kenneth Gapen, who had been waiting half an hour, were then married.

Late yesteray afternoon, no one knew who had misinformed the pastor and he declined to tell.

Shortly after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Gapen left for New Mexico, where Gapen, formerly employed in the radio service branch of the Department of Agriculture here, will take a position with the Soil Conservation Commission.

Hazen Asks 18 to Study D.C. Affairs

Civic, Business Leaders Named for Committee on Efficiency.

Operating Cost of Courts and Zoo Will Be Scrutinized.

Eighteen civic and business leaders were invited yesterday by Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen to serve on the proposed citizens' committee for District government legislative reorganization.

Chosen as "representative citizens," they will be asked to begin immediate plans to study functions of all District departments with a view toward promoting greater administrative efficiency through legislative recommendations.

Included on Commissioner Hazen's list of invited committee members are lawyers, bankers, merchants, a labor leader and a physician.

Mrs. Biddle Named.

Mrs. Lloyd Biddle, president of the Federation of Women's Clubs; L. A. Carruthers, Bureau of Census statistician; former Municipal Court Judge James A. Cobb, H. E. Doyle, real estate man; Robert V. Fleming, president of Riggs National Bank; Theodore S. Grape, broker; Thomas J. Groom, vice president and cashier, Bank of Commerce and Savings.

Frank R. Jelleff, merchant; Mark Lansburgh, merchant; John Locher, president of the Central Labor Union; Thomas E. Lodge, lawyer and president of the Federation of Citizens Associations; Dr. William McClellan, president of the Potomac Electric Power Co.; Edgar Morris, merchant and president of the Board of Trade; E. Barrett Prettyman, former corporation counsel; Henry I. Quinn, lawyer and school board member.

Dr. William M. Sprigg, physician; Lloyd B. Wilson, president of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., and Ford E. Young, ice cream manufacturer.

Will Have Office.

The committee will be given an office in the District Building, Commissioner Hazen said, and will appoint a chairman from its membership. Clerical help will be furnished, but no funds for the inquiry will be made available, Hazen added.

"I feel that these persons are a cross section of District residents," Hazen declared. "We are not going to ask them to do a thing—they must map their own plans and conduct the study in their own way."

It was indicated that the committee will probably be divided into sub groups, each to handle subjects on which they are most familiar and interested. District division heads will be called before the committee to testify on departmental operations and problems.

Consolidation of "overlapping" activities in city government will receive major consideration, it was reported.

Will Study Courts.

An important item for study involves the city's courts and the National Zoological Park, it was learned.

At present, operating costs of the Zoo, District Court of Appeals, District Court and Police Court are all borne by the District government. The citizens' committee is expected to study a plan whereby a portion of maintenance expenses for these establishments will be provided by the Federal Government.

It is expected that each of those invited to serve on the investigation committee yesterday will accept appointment.

Decision to name the group came after a lengthy conference between Hazen, Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways; Capt. Patrick Henry Tansey, assistant engineer commissioner; Richmond B. Keech, vice chairman of the Public Utilities Commission; Elwood Seal, corporation counsel; Prettyman and Lodge.

Dr. C. T. Wilson Stricken.

Portland, Oreg., Feb. 26 (U.P.).—Dr. Clarence True Wilson, for 26 years an enthusiastic battler against liquor as head of the Methodist Board of Prohibition, Temperance and Public Morals, was near death tonight. Dr. Wilson was stricken today by a cerebral hemorrhage. His physicians reported his condition was "very serious."

Mrs. Bingham in Reno.

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 26 (AP).—The Hartford Courant says Mrs. Hiram Bingham, wife of the former United States Senator, is registered at a hotel in Reno, Nev. The newspaper quoted Mrs. Bingham, a resident of Salem, Conn., as saying in a long-distance telephone conversation, "I am not speaking to reporters."

Roosevelt Radio Talk Delays Court Hearing; Sumners Bill Passed

Committee Sets March 10 as Date

By Robert C. Albright.

Twenty-four hour postponement of Judiciary Committee hearings on the Administration's judiciary program, first scheduled to open March 9, was ordered last night following word that the President will deliver a radio "fireside chat" on the original hearing date.

The new hearing date was fixed by polling members of the Judiciary Committee, as the Senate yesterday by a vote of 76 to 4, passed the Sumners Supreme Court retirement bill, permitting full pay voluntary retirement of justices on reaching the age of 70.

Senator Bulkley (Democrat), of Ohio, meanwhile continued the vigorous air debate on the issue when he broadcast a defense of the President's program. He charged the Supreme Court with nullification of congressional acts through insistence of "an antagonistic approach to the problem of constitutional interpretation." Although the proposed change is "a serious step," he concluded, it is required to end "unqualified judicial supremacy" among the three branches of Government.

The Sumners measure, construed by some members as an indirect method of inviting retirements and easing pressure for the six-judge enlargement program, already has passed the House. Swift signature by the President is expected.

Hot Senate Fight.

Motives allegedly behind the measure caused a lively Senate floor skirmish when Senator Hiram Johnson, California Republican, said that "if any man took retirement by virtue of the bait that was held out to him, I would have little respect for him." Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson retorted sharply to Johnson, and Senator Edward R. Burke, Nebraska Democrat, slapped back at Robinson.

The Senator handling the retirement measure, McCarran (Democrat), Nevada, admitted it was "within the scope of possibility" that enactment of the Sumners bill "would relieve the tension" on the President's plan.

Announcement that he would make a nation-wide radio talk March 9 was made by the President at his morning press conference, and White House officials indicated it would include a discussion of the court issue.

Two Reasons Alleged.

Hardly had the announcement been made before Chairman Henry F. Ashurst began a poll of his Judiciary Committee on postponement of court hearings from March 9 to March 10.

It was said in one quarter that two reasons were given: First, that Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, the Administration's "star witness," could not appear on the ninth; second, that the President was going to speak on that date.

Labor's Non-Partisan League, political labor organization in which John L. Lewis figures prominently, already had called a convention here for March 8, the supposed eve of the Senate hearings, to herald labor's support of the President's court plan.

As present plans appear, the national labor demonstration would begin March 8, President Roosevelt presumably will speak for the court plan March 9 and Attorney General

Pedestrians Asked to Aid Safe Traffic

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Pointing out that 13 of the 14 persons killed in highway accidents last month were pedestrians, the District Commissioners yesterday asked for "serious co-operation" in an effort to bring to an end the unnecessary killing and maiming of human beings on Washington streets.

The action of the Commissioners came after they had been pressed for action by a committee of the Traffic Advisory Council.

The traffic toll thus far this year is 28, as compared with 17 at the same time last year, and the pedestrian toll has been increasing rapidly, the Commissioners were told.

Should Be Informed.

"We urge all residents of the city to inform themselves as to the traffic regulations," Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen said, "and then discard all traffic practices of an unsafe nature."

The safety appeal was based on a recent conference between the Commissioners and Edwin S. Hege, representing the Traffic Advisory Council. Hege, Arthur H. Clephane and Selden M. Ely were named by the council to seek support from the city heads in a drastic pedestrian safety campaign.

Hege told the Commissioners that ages of those killed by autos last month ranged from 30 to 85 years. Seven, he said, were crossing streets not at crosswalks; 4 were crossing against traffic signals; 1 was walking in the roadway and 1 was attempting to cross at a dark intersection.

"In most of the cases comprising the 13 fatalities," Hege told the Commissioners, "there was evidence of poor judgment in disregarding or avoiding crosswalks.

"But," Hege continued, "some of these pedestrians—like hundreds of others whose names have not yet been written into the official lists of killed or maimed—may have been influenced to exercise faulty judgment by frequent disappointments in efforts to secure recognition of their right of way privileges at uncontrolled intersections."

Warned of Hazards.

Hege said it was "a sad indictment" of motorists that the right-of-way privileges of pedestrians are too seldom recognized, despite the fact that all motorists are sometimes pedestrians.

In issuing their appeal for observance of safety laws and protection of pedestrians, the Commissioners said:

"We believe the time has arrived when the residents of this municipality should have their attention especially drawn to the hazards to life and limb that are natural consequences of a disregard of traffic signals and lights and of certain of the traffic regulations.

"From the group of deliberate and willful violators of traffic safety measures, we expect no co-operation, but it is perhaps advisable to handle members of this latter group in a manner more promising of beneficial results."

De Onate Blames McAdoo, Ex-Wife For Divorce Suit

Los Angeles, Feb. 26 (U.P.).—Rafael Lopez de Onate, in an answer to his wife's divorce suit, tonight blamed Senator and the former Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo, his parents-in-law, for breaking up his marriage to their daughter.

Denying he had failed to support the former Ellen McAdoo, the screen actor asserted the Senator and his divorced wife interfered with his romance and undermined the marriage.

The answer, foreshadowing a possible child custody fight with Mrs. De Onate, demanded the father be granted custody of their son, Richard.

Hailstones Panic Natives.

Manila, P. I., Feb. 26 (AP).—Natives of La Carlota were panic stricken when hailstones fell today for the first time in Negros Island. Cattle stampeded. Dogs ran under houses, their tails between their legs.

Easy Come, Easier Go

Harrison Williams Tells SEC He Was Down to Last $5,000,000.

By Sidney Olson.

"Easy come" is still closely followed by "easy go," it seems.

At least Harrison Williams, utilities emperor usually known only as the husband of the Nation's "best-dressed woman," agreed on that yesterday with the lawyers of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Day before yesterday the polished clubman told how his original investment of $2,072,000 in a utility stock was promoted to the dizzy 1929 peak of $612,000,000.

Yesterday he told the investment trust investigators how these holdings fell in value to a paltry $5,000,000 by 1934.

Sun Follows Storm.

Counsel for both sides shook heads sadly.

Then the 64-year-old former bicycle manufacturer related the brighter side—how more recent upswings have tripled the 1934 low to a value of more than $15,000,000.

Calmly he picked his way through a fusilade of figures and charges by L. M. C. Smith and David Schenker, SEC counsel. He neither denied nor affirmed their assertions that he controlled more public utilities than any other one man; that he actually wielded controlling influence in one-sixth of the country's power-and-light utilities; that he enjoyed this control of $2,500,000,000 properties with key holdings of a mere $15,000,000 value.

Key Stock "Under Water."

Counsel Smith said Central States stock had no asset value whatsoever and was furthermore $2 per share underseas. Williams confirmed this by admitting that it would be necessary for stock of North America System, one of the Central States Company groups, to sell at about $38 before Central State would come to the surface and have some asset value.

The depression slide in the price of Central States stock forced Williams to sell 1,000,000 shares for $27,000,000. Out of this, he said, he was forced to pay income taxes of $4,756,317.

Reporters at the press table wagged heads once more in sympathy with Williams. They knew exactly how he felt.

Bulkley Backs Court Increase In Radio Talk

Senator Says Action Needed to Abolish Supremacy of Judiciary.

Enactment of President Roosevelt's court proposals, although it is "a serious step," is required to end "unqualified judicial supremacy" among the three theoretically co-ordinate branches of Government, Senator Bulkley (Democrat), of Ohio, said in a radio address last night.

In defending the President's program, Bulkley admitted at the outset that "it may well be doubted whether an increase in the membership of the court would tend to expedite its work."

With this admission and a brief indorsement of retirement of justices at an advanced age, he launched into his principal theme. This opened with a challenge to the court's power of veto over acts of Congress. Asking rhetorically how the court obtained this right, he answered, "It simply asserted it and the assertion has been acquiesced in for more than 100 years."

From this he turned to the assertion that "it probably would take a constitutional amendment" to take this power away from the court now, then cited Chief Justice Hughes' statement that "the Constitution is what the judges say it is." Bulkley added to this quotation a passage from Justice Stone's dissenting opinion in the Hoosac Mills decision, joined in by Justices Brandeis and Cardozo. In this opinion, which Bulkley indorsed, Stone said, in part:

"The suggestion that (the Federal spending power) must now be curtailed by judicial fiat because it may be abused by unwise use hardly rises to the dignity of argument. So may judicial power be abused. * * * A tortured construction of the Constitution is not to be justified by recourse to extreme examples. * * * Courts are not the only agency of government that must be assumed to have the capacity to govern. * * * But interpretation of our great charter of government which proceeds on an assumption that the responsibility for the preservation of our institutions is the exclusive concern of any one of the three branches of government, or that it alone can

Crandall, Ex-Theater Magnate, Kills Self

Harry M. Crandall, whose life tragedy began with the collapse of his Knickerbocker Theater in 1922, committed suicide yesterday, as did the architect of the ill-fated playhouse before him.

Leaving a note for "the newspaper boys," Washington's pioneer movie operator was found dead in his Parkside Hotel. Like Reginald W. Geare, designer of the Columbia road theater which collapsed under a load of snow with the loss of 98 lives, Crandall chose gas to snuff out his life.

Jolly and convivial to the day of his death, the 58-year-old showman whose local houses are now owned by the Warner Bros. interests, told the "newspaper boys" in his farewell note he was turning on the gas because "I'm despondent and miss my theaters, oh, so much."

Funeral services will be held at the Crandall residence, 4530 Sixteenth street northwest, at 10:30 a. m. Monday. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

The one-time $8-a-week telephone company clerk who received $2,250,000 for 75 per cent of his local theater interests when he sold out to the Stanley Co. of America more than eight years ago, concealed well his intentions of committing suicide.

His note revealed that he rented the ninth-floor room in the I street hotel six month ago for the scene of his self-destruction. Yet as recently as Thursday, only a few hours before he turned on the gas, he joked with Harry Dean, insurance man with whom he shared an office in the Earle Building, and other cronies.

When police, ignoring a "do not disturb" sign on the door, entered the hotel room after the management had reported the odor of gas, they found Crandall's body in a chair. The head was resting on a table.

Successful though he was in fighting law suits growing out of the Knickerbocker tragedy of January 28, 1922, Crandall is reported to have brooded long over the disaster. In the years that followed, nevertheless, he reached his greatest affluence, at one time being reported worth $6,000,000.

When he retired from the theater building and operation business in 1929, after having relinquished control of 18 downtown and neighborhood houses which subsequently were taken over by Warner Bros., he possessed considerable wealth and owned one of Washington's most fashionable homes.

Designed by Thomas Lamb, well-known New York architect, the imposing residence at Sixteenth and Buchanan streets has a dozen bathrooms, costly furnishings and a huge library. Despite the fact that he rented the hotel room last year, Mr. Crandall had maintained residence in his $385,000 mansion, friends said.

The farewell note, handed to re-

By the Associated Press.

The Senate tackled yesterday the job of writing a permanent neutrality law, amid signs that the harmony with which the Foreign Relations Committee acted was near an end.

The bill, which won indorsement of the committee, was made the next order of business, though actual debate was postponed until Monday. There were indications it would develop a new break between advocates of mandatory and discretionary legislation.

Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, former chairman of the Munitions Committee which long has fought for mandatory action, said he would attempt to tighten up the bill's provisions for an embargo on arms shipments to belligerents.

Restriction Sought.

Nye said he wanted to write into the legislation a specific direction that once the President had proclaimed an embargo on arms, he could not shorten the list of articles to which it would apply.

Senators Johnson (Republican), California, and Borah (Republican), Idaho, also were preparing to wage a floor battle against the "cash and carry" principle written into the bill by Chairman Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, of the Foreign Relations Committee. Both of these Senators have contended the bill would make for war rather than peace.

Pittman got his bill before the Senate yesterday without objection. He hopes to pass it early next week and send it to the House, where a more discretionary measure now is pending.

Permanent Embargo Is Aim.

The Pittman bill would make permanent the present law requiring an embargo on arms shipments to belligerents during a foreign war. It would go much further, however, and require that no goods of any kind could be shipped to belligerents until American title to them had been transferred.

It then would permit the President to forbid shipment of commodities to belligerents on American vessels.

Other important clauses in the bill would make it unlawful for Americans to travel on belligerent ships, and would prohibit the arming of American merchant vessels.

Viewed as Peace Aid.

Pittman last night analyzed the provisions of the bill and affirmed his belief that "the enactment of such laws will enable us to keep out of the next World War."

Under the bill, he said, warring peoples may buy American products here but must pay for them here and take possession of them here. He called attention to the clause which again gives the President power to embargo exports of arms and other articles when he deems such action needful to preserve peace, but which makes mandatory application of such embargoes to all belligerents.

"Surely," he finished, "these reasonable restrictions * * * can not be urged seriously as a surrender of the freedom of the seas."

Duke of Windsor Shows Kent Vienna's Sights

Vienna, Feb. 26 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor showed his youngest brother, the Duke of Kent, pridefully and authoritatively around Vienna's showplaces today.

In fact, Edward ran Kent almost breathless with a whirlwind tour of four museums, two picture galleries, the Spanish riding school, the Hapsburg sepulchre and several shops. Everywhere, Windsor—who now is better acquainted with the places of interest than most Viennese—waved aside the guides and proudly pointed out the treasures himself.

By Franklyn Waltman

FOR the first time since he entered the White House President Roosevelt is fighting with his back to the wall. For almost five years he has done with Congress pretty much as he pleases—but that body, it now appears, does not intend to be pushed and pulled around at the Presidential will on the proposal for packing the Supreme Court.

WALTMAN.

A curious aspect of the situation is that the White House—usually so clear of vision when it comes to surveying popular sentiment—refuses to believe that the Supreme Court plan is in serious danger of being defeated. Of course, some of the undercover maneuvering in which Mr. Roosevelt has engaged and his decision to make a fireside chat to the Nation on March 9 belie the professions of serene confidence which emanate from White House circles.

Still White House attaches go about whispering that the President is certain of 50 or 52 or 54 Senate votes for his plan. In the end Mr. Roosevelt may win this fight, but if a vote were taken in the Senate today he would be beaten. There is no doubt about that and several Administration leaders in that body are almost ready to throw up their hands now. Indeed, it is doubtful whether a majority could be mustered today in the usually subservient House for the President's proposal.

Capitol Hill has been greatly impressed by the President's serious misjudgment of popular reaction to his proposal. He apparently expected that the masses of people would rise up and hail his proposal as necessary to their salvation and that the only substantial opposition would come from the old guard Republicans, reactionaries and the lawyers.

Instead of that reaction the Republicans and reactionaries have remained comparatively silent and the opposition has come from some of the President's most devoted followers in the past. The masses of people have not clamored for packing the Supreme Court and not even the farmers and labor have rushed to his support in any appreciable numbers.

Confronted with that situation, the plan apparently is to associate Mr. Roosevelt more directly with the court plan. He is expected to make a plea for it in his fireside chat and assert that it is essential to the success of his objective. Some New Dealer also have changed their tactics. Privately, they concede that they have serious misgivings about the proposal and that it was perhaps a mistake to have projected such a proposal.

But the important thing, they argued, is to hold up the President's hands. There is no use discussing what should or should not have been done, they assert. The President has put himself in a hole, if you please, they continued, and it is the duty of his friends and liberals to get him out of that hole, whether they agree with him or not. A defeat for the President on this proposal would so weaken his prestige that he could not in the future function as an effective liberal President, so the argument goes.

It is an amazing argument and like so many of the arguments put forth in behalf of the Roosevelt scheme it has little foundation. It does not follow that if the President is defeated in this undertaking that Congress and the country will turn against him on other worthwhile and desirable proposals. The people of this country have demonstrated that they can be very discriminating. Moreover, such an argument is the very essence of a dictatorship and the antithesis of a democracy. It amounts to saying that because a Chief Executive has demonstrated some admirable qualities that he should be permitted to do as he pleases.

Still another argument advanced on behalf of the President's plan is that he does not propose to do more than offset some of the Supreme Court justices holding narrow and reactionary viewpoints with outstanding men of more modern and enlightened outlooks. Suppose he does pick justices sympathetic to his political philosophy, have not all Presidents done the same? Can it be said that certain members of the present court are without prejudice as to the desirability of varying types of political action?

The answer to both questions, of course, is "yes." No man has ever been named to the Supreme Court who has not had some prejudices resulting from his education, professional and political associations and his environment. We all have our prejudices. It is but natural that a President should name men of his political faith to the Supreme Court, as well as to other high offices. But no other President—not even Grant—has deliberately gone out to make places on the Supreme Court for men of his political faith with the avowed intention of having future legislative programs upheld.

Who are the prospective new members of the Supreme Court, should the President have his way? Among those most frequently mentioned as possibilities are Donald R. Richberg, Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, Prof. Felix Frankfurter Treasury General Counsel Herman Oliphant, SEC Chairman James M. Landis, Lloyd K. Garrison and, perhaps, Senator Robert F. Wagner.

Nothing can be said against the personal integrity or the professional talent of any one of these men. Several of them I know well and I not only admire them but would trust them with anything I had. As far as invalidating any of the Nation's civil liberties goes, nothing need be feared from any one of these men, I feel certain.

But should six of these men en bloc be placed on the Supreme Court at this time to pass on the constitutionality of New Deal legislation? They decidedly should not be—simply because they are interested persons. These are the men who conceived most of the New Deal legislation that has been under fire in the courts. They have drafted much of it. Mr. Richberg appeared before the court to argue the validity of the NRA—which the court unanimously declared unconstitutional because of objections which attach to many controverted New Deal measures and proposals.

As far as President Roosevelt's future proposals for dealing with social and economic problems go, these men would not be judges—they would be partisans. Surely they would not repudiate their own brain-children, nor do they, in all sincerity, believe that these legislative creatures of their brains are unconstitutional.

In effect, it was not Congress but these men, with a few others and with the aid of the President, who enacted the New Deal laws. Congress only put the stamp of approval on them. The courts, however, refused to be rubber stamps. So Mr. Roosevelt proposes to pick his legislative draftsmen up, en bloc, and seat them on the Supreme Court bench to approve their own handiwork.

Thus in a very real sense they would become the Pooh Bahs of an actual Titipu and, of course, the President would remain Koko, the high executioner. And Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" is described as comic opera tion of Labor, as well as an employe representation organization. The strikers are demanding recognition under the banner of the Committee for Industrial Organization, headed by John L. Lewis, suspended with his followers from the Federation of Labor.

Other activities in the widespread stirring of labor forces throughout the country included an expression by President Roosevelt that something must be done toward regulating the soft coal industry.

The expression followed a question, at his press conference, as to the President's attitude toward the new Guffey-Vinson coal control measure, backed by the United Mine Workers and many operators. It would provide for price fixing in the interest of stabilizing the industry. The miners contend that with the industry stabilized they will be able to obtain better wages and working conditions.

Rail Chiefs Confer.

Also of interest in labor circles was a visit to President Roosevelt by J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads; George M. Harrison, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association; Murray W. Latimer, chairman of the Railroad Retirement Board, and A. J. Altmeyer, new chairman of the Social Security Board. The visit was made for the purpose of submitting to the President a report on progress being made toward an agreement that would end litigation, brought by the roads, that has tied up in the courts the taxing portion of the railroad retirement act.

Latimer, recently nominated by the President for a place on the Social Security Board, and Pelley told reporters that the conferees, called here nearly two months ago by Mr. Roosevelt, are nearing an accord. The railroads' association last night called a meeting of the roads in Chicago March 9 to discuss a proposed settlement.

It was learned that considerable difficulty has been encountered in efforts to make provisions for the private pension systems now maintained by many of the railroads. Those who do not maintain such systems have objected to inclusion of the other roads' systems in the Federal system without compensating concessions. On the other hand, roads with their own systems have been reluctant to pay taxes to support the Federal system, while also bearing the expense of their private pension plans. It is understood that the plan now tentatively accepted by the conferees, makes provision for taking the private systems into the Federal set-up. To what extent the roads without their own pension plans will oppose it has not been determined.

At present, collections of taxes provided in the rail retirement act is enjoined by the District Court here, but pensions are being paid from the residue of a $46,000,000 appropriation granted the Railroad Retirement Board last year. At the start of this year the board was paying pensions to about 2,000 persons, while about 40 names were being added daily to the rolls.

Attacks Steel Firms.

Meanwhile, Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, criticized steel companies, in a Senate speech, in their failure to bid on supplying steel for the Navy's building program. Co-author of the Walsh-Healey bill whose requirement that firms obtaining Government contracts must maintain the 40-hour week is blamed for the lack of bids, Walsh said there seemed to be a disposition on the part of the steel companies to "embarrass the Government." The concerns, he said, appeared to resent the law fixing the maximum hours.

He upheld Secretary of Labor Perkins in her refusal to grant an exemption from provisions of the act for the steel companies, as she is empowered to do, and added that the Secretary "appears to have good reason" for her stand. He said he felt she was justified "in reaching the conclusion there has been no disposition to co-operate on the problem."

The Senator defended provisions of the act and cited numerous official reports of abuses in industrial plants. He said an amendment would be offered to broaden the act to cover all Government contracts in excess of $2,500. It now applies only to contracts involving $10,000 or more.

British Airman Seeks African Flight Record

Tunis, Tunisia, Feb. 26 (AP).—Flying Officer David Llewellyn landed here at 5:30 p. m. (11:30 a. m. Eastern standard time) today from Croydon, England, on the first leg of his projected round-trip flight to Capetown.

Llewellyn took off from Croydon at 8:45 a. m. with the announced intention of attempting to vindicate British aircraft by making a record flight to South Africa. He explained that the reputation of Britain's aircraft suffered when only one of nine entrants in the England-South Africa air derby reached Johannesburg last September.

Montgomery, Ala., Feb. 26 (AP).—The Alabama House today voted down a Senate-approved bill promising jail sentences for political candidates who break campaign pledges.

Super-Wheat Seed Discovery Nearer With Mass Pollination

By the United Press.

Development of a super-wheat seed, resistant to drought and plant diseases, received impetus last night with announcement of a new, mass-production breeding process.

The new technique for crossing wheat varieties, perfected by Department of Agriculture experts, makes possible for the first time the large-scale production of wheat hybrids. Previously each wheat floret had to be pollenated by hand. This laborious and painstaking process is comparable to a minor surgical operation in a hospital.

Chilled Artificially.

Under the new method, wheat plants are chilled by artificial refrigeration to kill the regular pollen and then that of a different variety is scattered over the plants. With this process, growers estimate that they can now obtain 1,000 seeds of varying crosses where previously they obtained a dozen.

Out of the deluge of new wheat hybrids which may be expected, agriculturalists expect to find the super-wheat seed that can withstand the rigors of early frosts, scorching droughts and damaging diseases. American farmers lose millions of dollars annually because of such diseases as rust, bunt or stinking smut, mosiac and bacterial germs that attack growing wheat plants.

Cold Kills Pollen.

Ordinarily the wheat flower fertilizes itself before it opens and thus breeds true to type. Breeders have attempted to break through this quirk of Nature so that the good points of two wheat types may be combined to make a third and better variety.

Until now, this contest with Nature involved the removal of minute stamens at just the right time and the insertion of the pollen of a different type. The chilling process does just this in that it kills off the natural pollen and when the floret is ready the outside pollon of a second kind of wheat may be used. Care has to be used not to damage the pistillate part of the flowers, so the refrigeration is kept above 27 and below 32 degrees.

Norris Retrial Fought in Brief By Government

Reed Holds Broken Bow Grocer's Testimony Purge 'Insufficient.'

By the Associated Press.

Norris was convicted of perjury, fined $100 and sentenced to three months in jail after he told a special Senate investigation committee that he had been paid no money during his campaign. The Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals, noting that the grocer later changed his testimony, ordered a new trial to determine whether he had purged himself. The Government opposed a retrial and was granted a Supreme Court review.

"Once the lie has been told," said the Government's brief, "the interference with the judicial or legislative process, and the violation of the integrity of the oath is complete. Retraction cannot undo the damage. Nor should it prevent prosecution. Just as after a larceny is complete the thief cannot purge his guilt by immediate repentance and voluntary restitution, so after a deliberate lie has been told, the witness cannot purge his guilt by immediate repentance and voluntary or coerced withdrawal of his falsehoods.

"We do not mean to say that if a witness does recant his perjury, and does so in a way that aids justice, he should be punished as severely as if he persisted in his falsehood."

Alabama's appeal to the Supreme Court from a Federal District Court decision holding unconstitutional the State's unemployment insurance law, also reached the court yesterday.

The high court recently upheld the New York State unemployment insurance law by a 4 to 4 decision while Associate Justice Stone was ill. A petition for a rehearing of the New York case has not yet been acted upon, but may be taken up Monday.

Lion Catches Burglar.

Myslowice, Upper Silesia, Feb. 26 (AP).—A lion caught and almost killed a burglar today. The burglar entered the grounds of a traveling circus before dawn. He passed close to the lion's cage and the animal clawed him through the bars. His cries aroused the circus folk, who released him.

Roosevelt Asks Panama Canal Toll-Rate Cut

Suggests Amendment to Give Him Power to Fix Prices.

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt asked Congress yesterday to reduce shipping tolls for use of the Panama Canal.

In transmitting a report from a committee which investigated the subject, he suggested amendment of existing law so as to give him final authority in determining the tolls.

He proposed:

"1. That tolls for the use of the Panama Canal shall be based upon vesel tonnage determined by the Panama Canal rules of measurement as prescribed by the President.

Based on Tonnage.

"2. That the tolls upon commercial vessels, army and navy transports, colliers, supply and hospital ships shall not exceed one dollar ($1.00) per Panama Canal net ton, and shall not be less than seventy-five cents ($.75) per Panama Canal net ton, when such vessels are laden.

"3. That a rate of tolls lower than is levied on laden vessels may be prescribed for vessels in ballast, without passengers or cargo."

Under the present system, transit tolls through the canal are based at the option of the vessel's owners on one or two standards.

Two Toll System.

The first is provided in rules of the United States Steamboat Service calling for maximum tolls of $1.25 per net registered ton of the vessel. This rate is generally applicable to all such waterways in the United States.

The second basis is that contained specifically for the Panama Canal in the Panama Canal act which prescribes that tolls shall be charged at the rate of $1.20 per ton on the basis of a vessel's earning capacity, which means net cargo capacity.

French Aviators Crash In Paris-Tokyo Flight

Hongkong, Feb. 26 (AP).—Gilbert Denis and Georges Libert, French fliers who left Paris Tuesday in an attempt to fly to Tokyo in 100 hours, crashed today near Tahek, Indo-China. One of the fliers (the advices did not say which one) was injured and the plane was wrecked.

Sherman Stamp Boycott Decreed By 'Boys in Gray'

Postal clerks estimated 3,000 of the stamps, bearing the pictures of Ulysses S. Grant, Phil Sheridan and Sherman, all Union generals of the War Between the States went through the windows to purchasers in spite of the fact they were sold only by request.

Mrs. Mary B. Goudelock, superintendent of the Confederate Soldiers' Home, said "the boys held a meeting among themselves" and announced a "boycott" of the stamps.

4 Shabby Bandits Rob Bank in Ohio of $3,000

Greenville, Ohio, Feb. 26 (AP).—Four shabby gunmen, whose technique officers described as similar to that of the Alfred Brady gang of Indiana desperadoes, robbed the Citizens State Bank of $3,000 to $4,000 today and fled in a small sedan bearing Maryland license plates.

Fugitive to Return, Wife Asks Mercy

Columbus, Ohio, FFeb. 26 (AP).—Warden James C. Woodward of Ohio State Penitentiary said today he would send an officer to Pittsburgh tomorrow to return Torrance J. Cannon, 38, who escaped from the London (Ohio) Prison Farm 17 years ago and became a steel plant foreman.

Woodward said that Cannon agreed to waive extradition and return voluntarily. Meanwhile, Cannon's wife, Mathilda, conferred with Wray Bevins, Gov. Martin L. Davey's clemency secretary, in her husband's behalf. W. T. Mossman, public relations director of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Co., of Pittsburgh, where Cannon was employed, also appeared in Cannon's behalf.

Kidnaped Baby Still Is Missing

La Plata, Argentina, Feb. 26 (AP).—Hundreds of police and private detectives searched fruitlessly today for the kidnapers of Eugenio Peyrera Iraola, baby son of a wealthy Argentine family, as authorities expressed belief the crime might be the work of a degenerate.

ABOUT GLASSES . . .

WIDE VISION . . .
It was in 1804 that a man by the name of Wollaston recognized the disadvantage of the lens which were then in use. These lens gave the correct vision only through the center of the glass. He developed a deep curved lens which gave wide angle vision, this enabling the wearer to see perfectly at any angle. Wollaston patented this design, being the first to patent an improvement on spectacles. Unfortunately this important step was overshadowed partly because of the expense involved and partly because Thomas Young discovered astigmatism about this time. These two men are responsible for a great deal of our eye comfort today. Everyone should have their eyes examined periodically to comfort today. Everyone should have their eyes examined periodically to insure correct vision.

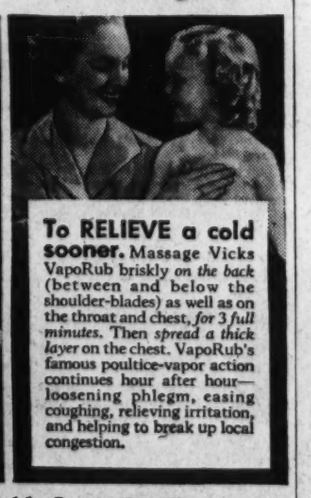
HERE'S BETTER CONTROL of COLDS
Just follow this practical home-guide
To help PREVENT many colds. At the first sneeze or sniffle or irritation in the nose—quick!—put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. This specialized medication is expressly designed for the nose and upper throat, where most colds start. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off head colds in their early stages.



To RELIEVE a cold sooner. Massage Vicks VapoRub briskly on the back (between and below the shoulder-blades) as well as on the throat and chest, for 3 full minutes. Then spread a thick layer on the chest. VapoRub's famous poultice-vapor action continues hour after hour—loosening phlegm, easing coughing, relieving irritation, and helping to break up local congestion.
Sickness from Colds Cut in Half!
The two simple steps outlined above, together with a few sensible health rules to build up and maintain resistance, are the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. In the biggest colds-clinic ever held—with 17,353 people as subjects—Vicks Plan cut sickness from colds more than half!
You'll find full directions for following Vicks Plan in your packages of Vicks Va-tro-nol and Vicks VapoRub

Convicted Spy, Called Traitor, Asks 2d Trial

Sentenced to serve from 4 to 20 years in prison after Justice James M. Proctor excoriated him as a traitor to his country and his friends, John S. Farnsworth, once brilliant naval lieutenant commander, last night charged the Government is "afraid" to grant him an open trial.

From his cell in the District Jail, Farnsworth defied District Attorney Leslie C. Garnett to arraign him on the second count of an espionage indictment.

"I have just begun to fight and I will spare no one now," bitterly declared Farnsworth. "I demand that I be arraigned on the other count of the indictment even though I was assured Justice Proctor had agreed to nolle prosse it if I would not insist upon an open trial."

An "Abhorrent Plot."

Overruling Farnsworth's petitions to set aside his surprise plea of "nolo contendere" on the count of the indictment which accuses him of conspiring with two Japanese diplomatic naval aides to sell American Battle Fleet secrets, Justice Proctor in imposing sentence said:

"This was such a plot as is abhorrent to every good citizen.

"This was a continuous and persistent plot cleverly carried on by you and emissaries of a foreign country, masquerading under diplomatic guise and hiding behind diplomatic immunity.

"Through deception, stealth, thievery and imposition on your friends in the naval service you succeeded in obtaining confidential information and delivering it to these emissaries for money.

An Object Lesson.

"If we had been at war, your acts would have been treason and punishable by the severest penalty. It seems to me that the duty rests upon the court in a case of this sort to impose such a sentence as will be a deterrent to others—so that others, tempted as you have been, to sell out their country, will consider your condemnation and degradation before doing so."

Farnsworth, whose career as an officer of the line and aviator ended in dismissal a decade ago, stood listlessly as Justice Proctor imposed sentence.

Later, at the jail, Farnsworth said: "The sentence and the remarks of Justice Proctor made no impression on me. He had studied only one side of the case—a petition of the Government's filled with fantastic allegations which could not have been proved.

Wants Open Trial.

"Now I shall renew my fight for an open trial and I will ask that Justice Proctor have nothing to do with it. The second count of the indictment charges I turned over to the Japanese a copy of the Navy's confidential document, "Service of Information and Security," part of which I helped write. They know they can't prove it. I know the charge is untrue.

"When I was being subjected to pressure to change my plea on the indictment on which I was sentenced, one of my attorneys left the room and returned later to say Justice Proctor has agreed to nolle prosse the other count of the indictment if you plead nolo contendere. I'm going to demand that I be tried. I don't want that indictment nolle prossed."

Appeal Planned.

Farnsworth said he would appeal from Justice Proctor's sentence. While the appeal is pending he will fight to be tried on the second indictment, Farnsworth said.

"If I'm guilty, I want all the punishment I deserve, but I want a trial," said Farnsworth. "I am tired of this piddling around."

Farnsworth was arrested last July after he attempted to sell an article on espionage to a newspaper syndicate. Named with him in the conspiracy indictment were Commanders Yosituki Itimiya and Okira Yamaki, of the Japanese navy.

Firemen speeding to a two-alarm blaze swerved to avoid hitting a motorist at Third and D streets northwest. The battalion chief's car is shown after it leaped the sidewalk and broke down a light pole. Injured were Battalion Chief Charles A. Wells and Private J. A. McCarthy, who was driving. Police are searching for car whose driver failed to heed the fire sirens.

2 Firemen Hurt As Chief's Car Hits Light Pole

Wells and Aide Injured; 12 Families Driven From Homes.

Two firemen, one Battalion Chief, Charles A. Wells, speeding west on D street northwest late yesterday afternoon to a fire, were hurt, Wells seriously, when a motorist failed to heed warning sirens.

As the chief's car approached Third street, Private J. A. McCarthy, driver, swerved to avoid crashing with a car going south on Third street.

Wells Unconscious.

Firemen in apparatus following the chief stopped and pulled him from the wreckage. He was unconscious. The Fire Rescue Squad took him to Emergency Hospital. Physicians there said his condition was serious.

McCarthy was more fortunate. His injuries were cuts and bruises of the head. He, too, was taken to the hospital.

The automobile which McCarthy tried to avoid did not stop. Several persons who saw the accident obtained the number. Police broadcast a lookout for it. The chief's car finally stopped more than a dozen feet from the street in front of a drugstore.

Firemen continued on to 515 and 517 Second street northwest, where Capt. A. J. Mayhew took up Chief Wells' duties of directing the fight on a fire that had started in a three-story brick building.

Ladders were hoisted and water poured through holes cut in the roofs. A second alarm was turned in and the blaze was soon under control. Twelve colored families living in the two places were driven into the street. Capt. Mayhew estimated damage at $5,000.

When police arrived at the scene of the crash they kept crowds away from the light pole, which, they said, carried 2,400 volts. But later it developed that the current was not on at the time.

Chief Wells, who is 63, is a veteran member of the Fire Department. He lives at 5520 Fifth street northwest. McCarthy is 39. His home is at 1706 C street northeast.

Redfern Hunt Planned.

Schenectady, N. Y., Feb. 26 (AP).—Theodore J. Waldeck, of New York, told newspapermen today that he would head an expedition into the South American jungle next month in search of Paul Redfern, American aviator missing since 1927. He described himself as an "African explorer of some experience."

Foes Plan Fight On Railway Bill

By the Associated Press.

Opponents of the Pettengill railroad rates bill, which was approved yesterday by the House Interstate Commerce Committee, said last night they would fight the measure vigorously on the House floor.

Representative Pierce (Democrat), Oregon, will lead the opposition.

The Pettengill bill would repeal an existing law which prevents railroads from charging lower rates for a long haul than for a shorter one on the same route in the same direction.

During committee hearings on it, railroad spokesmen contended the present restriction kept them from competing with coast and inland waterway transportation and with motor trucks.

Representatives of water and motor truck transportation, on the other hand, argued the bill would put railroads in a position to slash rates and drive competitors out of business.

6 Children Perish As Log Cabin Burns

Lebanon, Ky., Feb. 26 (AP).—Six children burned to death today when their two-room log home on Old Lick Creek caught fire from a stove.

The victims ranged between 4 months and 14 years in age.

Their father, Turner Rakes, tenant farmer, his wife and a 16-year-old daughter, Louise, were dragged from the house. Coroner Kobert Borders said he was informed the house was enveloped in flames when one of the children threw coal oil in the stove.

11 Taken in Raid On Gaming Joint; Owner Escapes

Eleven men were arrested late yesterday when police raided an alleged gambling establishment in the 900 block of Seventeenth street northwest and confiscated a quantity of alleged gambling equipment.

The operator of the place, police believed, escaped when he jumped from the third-story window to the fire escape and fled on foot.

Capt. A. E. Miller, of the Third Precinct, and Precinct Detective Roy E. Blick led the raid.

All those seized were charged with disorderly conduct and released under $10 bond.

Dr. George W. Pope, known throughout the country and in many other parts of the world as an expert on diseases of livestock, is finally getting the opportunity to pursue an ambition of long standing.

Tomorrow his retirement as chief of the field inspection division of the Bureau of Animal Industry becomes effective and very soon thereafter he plans to buckle down to a serious study of classical literature.

After 42 years in the B. A. I., during which period he had little or no chance to indulge in his reading hobby, the father of Dean Ruth V. Pope, of Hood College, Frederick, Md., will do his best to make up for lost time.

Born in Madison, Wisc., the son of a clergyman, Dr. Pope was one of the first to be assigned to inspection of export livestock at Boston. That was in 1895, when thousands of head of cattle were being shipped abroad.

Six years earlier he had been graduated from the Chicago Veterinary College. Prior to entering Government service he practiced veterinary medicine in Chicago and Mobile, Ala.

In 1899 he took charge of the animal quarantine station for the port of New York, holding that post until 1908 when he was transferred to San Diego, Calif., to assist with tick-eradication work along the Mexican border.

Two years later he was ordered to Washington headquarters as assistant chief of the quarantine division, became acting chief in 1922 and, when its duties were absorbed by the field inspection division in 1928, became head of the latter agency.

Since that time Dr. Pope has directed the Federal veterinary quarantine service which excludes foreign livestock diseases and has administered much of the governmental control and eradication work against cattle and sheep scabies, anthrax, dourine and glanders.

Almost as well known abroad as he is among veterinarians, breeders and importers in this country, because of the division's import and export activities, Dr. Pope has served under nine Secretaries of Agriculture.

Celebrating his new freedom, he plans to take Mrs. Pope on a second honeymoon to Mobile within the next few days. He was a practicing veterinarian in Chicago when they were married there in the '90's and went to the Alabama city as bride and bridegroom.

Afterward they expect to divide their time between their local residence at 1340 Meridian place northwest and a little summer home in the Catoctin Mountains near Frederick.

Coolidge Quartet to Give 2 Public Performances

Under the provisions of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation in the Library of Congress, two concerts will be given in the chamber music auditorium by the Coolidge Quartet on Tuesday and Thursday at 3:45 p. m. Until the supply is exhausted, free tickets will be sent to those who apply by mail accompanying their request with a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

On Tuesday the program will consist of Beethoven's C minor quartet from Opus 18, a divertimento in E flat by Haydn, and Malipiero's fourth quartet. The compositions listed for Thursday are Haydn's G major quartet from Opus 77, Paul Hindemith's second trio, and Nikolai Berezovski's second quartet.

Children Benefit Under Desio Will

Mrs. Mary Magdalena Desio named her husband, Salvatore Desio, and her five children as the principal heirs of her $95,810 estate, it was shown in District Court yesterday when a petition for the probate of her will was filed.

The children, Mrs. Alma Desio von Steinner, Salvatore, jr., Magdalena Corcoran, Camille C. O'Hara and Delphine L. Desio, will receive the estate after the death of the father. The will directed that Desio was to continue to reside in the family home, at 211 E street northwest, and was to receive $75 a month.

On Desio's death, the estate is to be divided and one-half given to Delphine, the other half to go to the other children. Upon Delphine's death, the surviving brothers and sisters are to share in all that is left. The American Security & Trust Co. and Mrs. von Steinner were named executors, while George Gertman acted as their attorney.

Father Sent to Prison For Killing 3 Children

American Falls, Idaho, Feb. 26 (AP).—Adolf Zetlitz, jr., 37, pleaded guilty to second degree murder of his three small children today. He was sentenced to 25 years to life.

Sheriff L. D. Davis said Zetlitz, arrested a few hours after the bodies of Ruby, 5; Gertrude, 4, and Don, 2, were found in his razed ranch home, admitted shooting the children because "they seemed to be in the road," then firing the home.

Roosevelt 'Chat' Delays Hearing On Court Plan

Opponents of the President's court plan on the Judiciary Committee raised no immediate objection to the 24-hour postponement of hearings.

Senator Frederick Van Nuys (Democrat), of Indiana, outspoken in his denunciation of Supreme Court enlargement, said: "The hearings could be postponed indefinitely and it would still have no effect on the final outcome. The country is overwhelmingly against this plan."

Burke Not Opposed.

Senator Burke, of Nebraska, one of the leaders of the opposition, said he had no objection to postponement.

"I think it is the imperative duty of the President to go on the air and explain to the citizenry, which is very much disturbed, just what are his reasons which make this course of action so imperative."

In telling reporters he would make a radio talk on March 9, the President admonished reporters against speculating on the contents of his speech. A reporter remarked this was the date of the opening of Senate hearings, and the President quipped that perhaps the date of his speech would have to be changed.

Opponents Claim Bulow.

The tense alignment for and against the court bill, which has led opponents to predict defeat of the court plan if it came to a vote in the Senate today, changed only slightly during the day. A new opposition recruit, Senator William J. Bulow (Democrat), of South Dakota, was claimed during the day, but Bulow insisted to reporters he was still "noncommittal." The South Dakotan did say he definitely could not be listed as "for the bill."

There was no relaxation in the intensity of the Administration's campaign for the plan. In the course of the day Emil Hurja, who has been chief strategist and patronage arbiter of the Democratic National Committee, was observed at the Capitol in conference with Senators.

Two Republicans and two Democrats cast the only dissenting votes in the towering 76 to 4 vote for the Sumners Supreme Court retirement bill in the Senate yesterday. They were Senators Johnson and H. styles Bridges, of New Hampshire, Republicans, and Senators Bulow and A. Harry Moore, of New Jersey, Democrats.

Moore Sees "Subterfuge."

Moore, a known opponent of the court plan, was said to regard the retirement measure as "subterfuge." Bulow told reporters he was, first, opposed to retiring justices at 70, and second, opposed to retiring them at full pay. Bulow said he saw no reason why a retired justice should receive $20,000 annually, of why they should not be subject to pay cuts along with other Government employes.

When the Sumners measure was first before the House last session, word was passed around that two justices over 70 would retire if it passed. There are said to be no such assurances at this time. Six of the present Supreme Court will be over 70 and eligible to retire under terms of the bill. The are Chief Justice Hughes and Associate Justices Van Devanter, Sutherland, McReynolds, Brandeis and Butler.

Amendments Fail.

All efforts at amending the retirement bill failed. Senator Bridges attempted to postpone operation of the retirement feature until after expiration of President Roosevelt's term of office, but his amendment was shouted down.

As the debate waxed warm, Senator Johnson asked Senator McCarran:

"Is it the purpose of this bill to afford the opportunity to members of the Supreme Court to retire?"

"That is the purpose of it," replied McCarran.

"At this particular time?" asked Johnson.

"At any time," said McCarran.

Here Johnson retorted that "a Supreme Court justice who would retire at this particular time would not be the sort of individual for whom I would have the greatest respect."

Words Called "Amazing."

Majority Leader Robinson interjected that Johnson's statement was "peculiar" and "amazing."

"What I said was at 'this particular time,'" Johnson shot back. "When the justices are sought to be removed in another way, if any man took retirement by virtue of the bait that was held out to him, I would have very little respect for him."

Robinson wanted to know "at what time he would be willing to see a justice of the Supreme Court avail himself of the privilege of retirement?"

"Does he mean at some time when another President would have the opportunity of appointing a justice to succeed him?" asked the floor leader. "Does he mean that he wishes to have the opportunity to appoint justices of the Supreme Court limited to Presidents who he thinks will appoint some one that he would be ready to approve?"

Burke Gives Answer.

Johnson replied that he would expect a justice to "have the right" to retire "when there was no bait held out to him, no lure in any law that was enacted and when he could retire without any suggestion of being driven off the bench by other legislation."

Here Burke, of Nebraska, interposed that he could answer Robinson's question as to "what time a member of the Supreme Court could retire" and retain the "respect" of the Senators.

"I should like to answer that question specifically so far as I am concerned," said Burke. "At any time after the bill now pending providing for addition to the Supreme Court was withdrawn by its introducer or defeated by either House of Congress, I think a justice of the Supreme Court could retire under the provisions of this retirement measure and receive my respect, but not earlier than that."

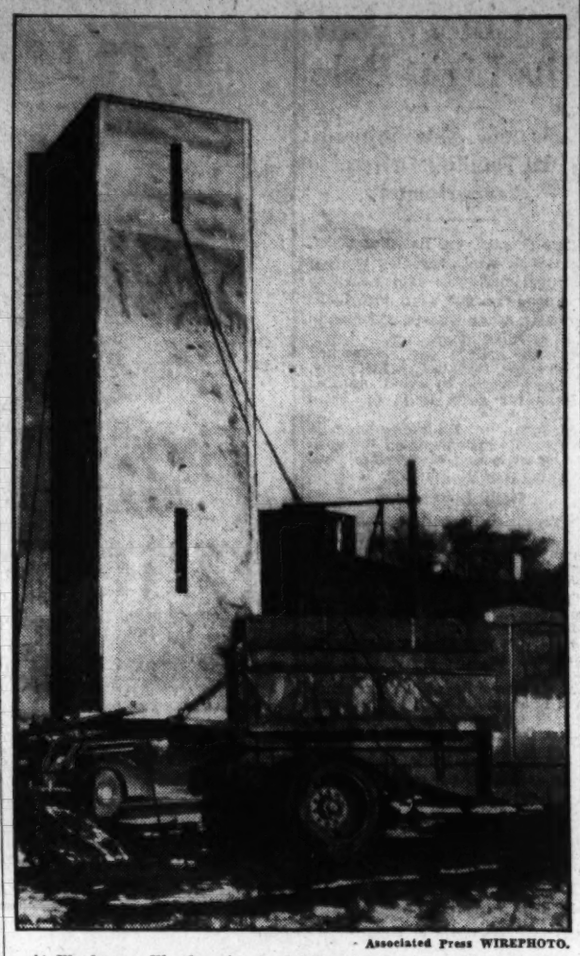
Calls Bill "Two-Edged Sword."

Burke pictured the retirement measure as a "two-edged sword" that could be used if the court plan were enacted, and if it were not. He "wondered" why the "sudden change of front and sudden hurry at this particular time."

McCarran declared "the whole aim and object of this bill is to lighten the burden on those who occupy places on the Supreme bench, who have attained the age of 70, having served 10 years," but conceded the bill might ease "tension" on the court plan.

Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, argued that 75 would be a preferable retirement age, and objected to the provision permitting justices to be called back, with their consent, to take assignments in the lower courts.

Mobile Guard Tower Routs Strikers



Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

At Waukegan, Ill., deputies hurled gas bombs from this two-story tower mounted on a truck which was driven to strategic points outside of the Fansteel metallurgical plant, where sit-down strikers were forced to flee from the building under the gas barrage.

Child Conference Scheduled Today

School leaders of public and private institutions of several Eastern cities are expected to discuss the needs of the exceptional child at a conference today in the Mayflower Hotel.

The speakers to appear at sessions beginning at 2:30 p. m. will be two Washington educators, John E. Bentley, professor of education at American University, and Dr. Winifred Richmond, Ph. D., psychologist at St. Elizabeth's Hospital. Both will discuss the general subject of "The Exceptional Child at Home and at School."

Dr. Leslie B. Hohman, associate in psychiatry at Johns Hopkins University, will be chairman. Discussion from the floor will follow the prepared papers.

The discussion conference is announced as a part of the educational program of the Child Research Clinic of the Woods School, Langhorne, Pa., and designed to spread among educational and scientific groups, as well as parents, a broader knowledge of all phases of the subject of the exceptional child.

5-Day Week Bill Passes In S. Carolina House

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 26 (AP).—The House of Representatives voted 82 to 11 today to reduce hours of labor in textile mills of the State to a five-day, 40-hour week. The vote came on second reading. The bill must pass one more reading in the House and then go to the Senate. It has the support of Gov. Johnston.

Furniture Worker Dies In Glue Pot Explosion

and deputies recruited from North Shore villages participated in the sally. They quickly surrounded the two occupied buildings—factories No. 3 and No. 5. They hurled gas grenades through the windows.

But it was a "battle tower," a strategem as ancient as the walls of Troy, that turned the tide.

This was a 20-foot wooden superstructure, sheathed in tar paper and mounted on the rear end of a ten-ton truck. The modern day "Trojan Horse" was backed against building No. 3. Inside were four policemen equipped with gas masks and armed with repeating tear gas rifles.

Two of them directed their weapons against the second floor windows. The other two aimed at the first floor windows through small slots in their battle wagon.

Fumes Fill Building.

The guns, capable of spewing 24 three-inch gas cartridges a minute, soon filled the structure with stifling fumes.

Presently the strikers—retching, coughing, gasping, blinded by tears—groped from both strongholds and scuttled through a hole in a seven-foot wire fence.

The officers at the same time dispersed a crowd of 40 or 50 sympathizers who pelted them with bricks.

Several deputies were injured and they estimated 50 "sit-downers" and spectators were burned by the stinging gas.

President R. J. Aitchison, of Fansteel, announced the company would resume operations as soon as possible. He estimated the battle damage at $32,500.

The crux of the difficulty was a demand for recognition of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers Union—a C. I. O. affiliate.

Strikers Have Plane Plant.

Los Angeles, Feb. 26 (AP).—Under a blunt warning to "get out or be indicted," 200 sit-down strikers deserted the Northrop Aircraft plant today while 343 others were arraigned on felony charges for their three-day occupation of the huge Douglas airplane factory.

The Douglas strikers, charged with conspiracy to trespass by a county grand jury, evacuated the Santa Monica plant peacefully last night in a tense atmosphere, as more than 300 officers, armed with pistols, tear gas, night sticks and two machine guns, converged on the factory.

The Northrop Corporation, a Douglas subsidiary, employing 1,150 men, closed its plant yesterday at the start of a sit-down strike seeking the same objectives as those of the Douglas strikers—15 cents an hour pay increase, recognition of a C. I. O. union and other benefits.

"To the Newspaper Boys:

"Please don't be too hard on me, boys, not for my sake, but for those I am leaving behind me.

(Mr. Crandall is survived by his wife and three daughters).

"You don't have to look for the cause of me taking my life. I'll tell you I have not committed any crime. Have no love affairs. Not insane. Have very good health. No. None of these are the reasons.

"Only it is I'm despondent and miss my theater, oh, so much.

"I have tried to get back in the game, but no luck. Boy, I never did any harm to anyone in my life and I don't crave headlines. So just a few lines on an inside page. What do you say, boys?

"Kind regards,

(Signed) "H. M. C."

At the bottom of the page was inscribed "over."

The "P. S." on the other side read:

"I just thought as I got here, I think I have read some place that he who takes his life is a coward. Oh, yes? Well, I have had this very room for, I guess, six months now, and I have not been able to do it yet and maybe I may lose my nerve yet as it is only 12:30 a. m. now and I am counting on turning on the old gas at 3 a. m., because no one is on this floor after that.

"And I do want to make a good job of it. I don't want to be a would-be. So, boys, if you think it don't take nerve, just try it some time. Ha, ha.

"Good-by, boys.

(Signed) "H. M. C."

A second note said:

"If anything happens to me tonight, and I am going to try to make something happen, please notify—(deleted by police).

"P. S. I turned out the light in the icebox because I don't want to blow up anyone upstairs. I am going to turn on the gas at 3 a. m., and if I am not found by 5 a. m. don't have the gas squad and others here. It will just cause a scene.

"It is now 2:45 a. m., and I am still myself, and I hope to go through with it.

"H. M. CRANDALL."

The three daughttrs who, with their mother, survive Mr. Crandall are Mrs. John J. Payette, whose husband is Warner Bros. manager for this territory; Mrs. Olga Burch, wife of Dr. W. T. Burch, of Alexandria, and Mrs. Mildred Sherman, wife of Leroy Sherman.

A native of the Capital, Mr. Crandall left his $8 job with the telephone company shortly after the turn of the century to strike out on his own. His first independent venture was as the operator of a livery stable at North Capitol and Q streets.

Impressed by the success of nickelodeons in New York, he began to plumb Washington's possibilities in the picture field. The cornerstone of his newly found career was an 80-seat house christened the Casino which he opened at Fourth and East Capitol streets in 1911.

Next came the Airdrome at North Capitol street and New York avenue where the blossoming impresario showed movies under the stars. About three years later he opened the Joy at Ninth and E streets northwest, which long since gave way to a chain restaurant.

Harris & Ewing.

HARRY M. CRANDALL,

Sagaciously building up his market, Mr. Crandall subsequently acquired the Apollo, Metropolitan, Avenue Grand, Central, Colony, Home, Savoy, Avalon, Tivoli, York, Knickerbocker and numerous others. The Knickerbocker, which was replaced by the Ambassador, was erected in 1917.

When, in 1922, Washington's worst catastrophe occurred, Mr. Crandall was exonerated of blame but was compelled to defend himself against 70 suits filed against him and the Knickerbocker Theater Co. Architect Geare, who committed suiside five years later, and four other were indicted for manslaughter but the District Supreme Court dismissed the charges as "too vague."

The unnamed sum in stocks which Mr. Crandall received from Warner Bros. for the remaining 25 per cent he held in his local enterprises is believed to have been dissipated in the 1929 Wall Street crash.

About three years ago he attempted a "comeback," exhibiting a panorama painting of the World War in Chicago and, later, in Washington near Union Station Plaza. The venture met indifferent success.

Mr. Crandall once served as president of the local branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America and was a member of Kiwanis, Board of Trade, National Press Club and the Columbia and Congressional Country Clubs.

Miss Perkins Backs Women's Claim to Fame

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 26.—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins said tonight the "ability" with which women in Government service are administering their duties "is settling for all time the question of the competence of women to hold positions of utmost responsibility."

Addressing several hundred women at the international relations dinner of the New York State Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, she predicted increasing opportunities for women in Government service and urged that Government emergency agency employes be put under Civil Service.

"The program recently submitted to the Congress recommended that the civil service be extended upward, downward and outward," she said.

"Such extension will be welcomed by both men and women as it will give much greater opportunity for what can be termed careers in Government service, permitting capable persons who enter in the lower grades to progress to the top positions after years of experience in a particular line."

She said that among the 825,000 Government executive branch employes, almost 159,000 are women.

In a nationally broadcast radio program in connection with the celebration of women's "International Day," Miss Caroline O'Day, U. S. Representative at large from New York, said:

"Women in government is as old as government itself, for there have been few governments anywhere or in any age that have not been influenced by women."

Menace of Reds Still Remains, Says Dr. Walsh

Small Communist Vote Called Misleading by G. U. Official.

The conclusion that communism is an outworn and exaggerated issue because the Communist party in the last election polled only 80,000 votes out of the 45,000,000 votes cast is a dangerous misapprehension, Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, vice president of Georgetown University, said last night at Memorial Continental Hall.

"Because the electorate enthusiastically indorsed President Roosevelt and ignored the charge of Communist leveled at him personally, said Father Walsh, "these amateur logicians triumphantly conclude that the danger does not exist at all."

"If the Communist party of the United States is a bare handful of 51,000, it must be remembered that they are not 51,000 members of an insignificant political party, but constitute the American phalanx of a world-wide attack on Christianity and democracy. They are fanatical missionaries for the grossest form of materialism and irreligion yet devised by enemies of God.

Millions of Allies.

"It is not on the 51,000 registered American Communists that communism counts. Its leaders rely on the 2,000,000 friends in affiliated organizations, on the sympathetic idealist and pacifist whose intelligence is not always equal to his emotional impulse, on the growing number of school teachers, professors, writers and subtle propagandists who are trained to play ceaselessly on the social resentments of the masses until legitimate economic complaints are transformed into class hatred.

"The battle is still in the skirmish stage," he continued, "on the outposts of ideas and ideals. If democracy should lose there the next phase will be violence and the barricades."

Dr. Walsh referred to a speech recently delivered in New York by Mr. Troyanovsky, the Soviet Ambassador, in which the communist representative in Washington defended the Soviet government and eulogized the new constitution.

"It was one of the usual stereotyped attempts to whitewash the Soviet government at a moment when the entire civilized world was reading with horror the accounts of the judicial murders that have been going on in Moscow since last August. The new reign of terror and the hidden pressure exerted on the victims to force them into those fantastic confessions of universal guilt must be extremely embarrassing to Soviet diplomats in foreign capitals. One by one old friends of communism are recanting and acknowledging they were deceived.

Envoy Is Assailed.

"But nothing daunted, the Soviet Ambassador to the United States begged his audience to consider Soviet Russia as a modern democratic state where free institutions and human liberties are best preserved. He reached the apotheosis of futility in the paragraph in which he asserted that communism is not even mentioned in the new constitution.

"His Excellency was dancing ideologically on the point of a dialectical pin. Though the word communism is not even introduced into the text, communists dominate the new constitution as thoroughly as they did its predecessors.

"Mr. Troyanovsky was obviously speaking in a Pickwickian sense when he echoed Mr. Stalin's paradox about the most democratic country in the world. But his distinction between communism and communists in the text of the new constitution is a rare contribution worthy of inclusion in all future editions of Max Eastman's 'Enjoyment of Laughter.'"

Next week Dr. Walsh will begin his series of eight lectures on "The Constitution and the Supreme Court."

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Guitar recital by Andres Segovia in Wardman Park Theater Thursday night. Program: Prelude and Gavotte (A. Scarlatti), Allegramento and Gigue (S. L. Weiss), Prelude, Courante, Gavotte and Musette (Bach), Allegretto in C (Sor), Chaconne and Loure (Bach), Canzonetta, (Mendelsshon), Sevillana (Turina), Dances in G major and E major (Granados), Legend Albeniz).

Were the realm of music divided into instrumental seigniories, Andres Segovia would be suzerain of the guitar. Al the resources of the instrument are in his mastery, and he dominates them with an artistry that exceeds their limitations. Had he chosen a wider sway there is little doubt that his excellence would have received tribute, for his essential musicianship is of superior rank.

His medium being restricted to a definite range of dynamics, he has perfected a technique that utilizes them to the utmost. Inevitably, one must compare his delicate plangencies and his refinements of line to the work of a miniaturist, and such is his skill in tracery and in application of color that the miniatures are exquisite.

Like all artists who have made an instrument completely subservient, he seems to hold power in reserve, and his technique remains unobtrusive. He accomplishes his feats with ease, and the skill is apparently casual. His right hand, so busy with intricate plucking, simulates repose, "each active motion made in perfect rest."

Under his fingers, the music of Scarlatti and Bach sounds as it would from a harpsichord with strings of singing silk. The guitar belongs to the epoch of the lute, and music played upon it with artistic intent induces the nostalgia of the antique.

A delay of half an hour in the beginning of the recital prevented my hearing of the concluding group of Spanish composers, but from previous experience of his adeptness in this idiom, I know that his performance brought out these precise effects which Cranados and Albeniz tried in vain to transfer accurately to the piano.

Philippine President Greeted Here

Philippine President Is Guest Of Roosevelt at White House

Quezon Denies He's Dictator, Tells of Plans for Training 400,000 Filipino Citizens as Soldiers.

Manuel Quezon, affable, gesticulating President of the infant Philippine Republic, lunched with the President of the United States yesterday, discussed "conditions" in the islands with Mr. Roosevelt, and adjourned to a suite at the Shoreham, where he voluntarily denied to the press that he is a dictator.

Waving his ringed fingers, slumping into philosophical moods, arising like a Malayan dawn, ordering cigars, and talking rapidly on a variety of subjects, he said he feared no Japanese invasion, hoped to raise an army of 400,000 men in ten years, wanted a reciprocal tariff agreement with the United States similar to Cuba's.

Dark, smiling, smartly dressed in plaid blue shirt and grey spats, an opal ring on one little finger and an amethyst ring on the other, he said the Philippine supreme court required a two-thirds vote to invalidate an act of the Legislature "because no one man should have the power to invalidate the will of the congress and the chief executive, as sometimes happens in the United States.

The President of the Philippines will be here until late April and will spend his visit ironing out army, economic, and political problems attendant to the insular transition from a subservience to freedom. He is to confer with the Secretary of War, Harry Woodring, today, at 11:30 a. m.

"What they say about President Roosevelt is true," he remarked, grinning. "He has charm, he has the smile, he has the intelligence. Before you know it you find yourself in complete accord with whatever he happens to be saying. It is remarkable."

In a more serious vein, he said: "I am for the withdrawal of the United States military forces at once. The Navy? Ah, under the law, that is impossible now. When the time comes to discuss that appropriately, I will. It is not proper now.

"What did I say to the President? I came to report to him on conditions in the Philippines as required by the independence act. I told him conditions were very good.

"A neutrality treaty to protect the islands? I have no objection. I would be glad to see such a thing. But I am not one who believes treaties are bombproof. I discussed that with Roosevelt in an informal way, yes. The Philippines are not relying on any treaty of neutrality. We can take care of ourselves.

"In ten years we shall train and equip 400,000 men. I want it clearly understood we are not organizing a professional army. Our regular army will not exceed 10,000 men. We are training the whole citizenry for service in case of need. The talk of militarizing the Philippines is nonsense. We want a democracy similar to Switzerland."

Jesting with reporters, he said "I sometimes marvel at your imaginations. No I don't want to be a dictator. Under the law, I must retire after one term, which lasts six years. I cannot succeed myself. I have great faith in the ultimate intelligence of the average man. The people seldom are wrong in the long run. I am a Democrat first and last, much as they call me dictator."

On the subject of trade, he said, "In our present condition, I think it is the wise policy to keep the doors open to all the world, a policy of friendship with all the world. We want to do business with Japan just as much as the United States or Germany or Italy.

"I do not fear a military invasion through the channels of commerce. As a matter of fact, there are fewer Japanese in the islands than there were a few years ago. Emmigration exceeds immigration."

"We are pleased with Gen. MacArthur's work in organizing an army for us. A mosquito fleet? Yes, we have lots of mosquitoes. What is that, a mosquito fleet? Oh, submarine chasers and so on. Well, we haven't any and I don't think we will. If you can't have a first-class navy you might as well have none. If you build a small one, all the good you do is to the shipbuilding interests.

"No, I haven't seen Mr. McNutt (newly appointed High Commissioner of the Philippines, former governor of Indiana.) Is it true that he intends to stay in the islands only a year? I do not know. I think the statement attributed to him is imaginative. If he said it, he said it off the record. It is my understanding he will remain as long as Mr. Roosevelt wishes.

"We are finding many new gold mines in the islands. Literally, the Philippines are made of gold. No joking. We thought we had gold only on one island but they all seem to have it. Many speculators were selling worthless stock, violating the 'blue-sky laws. But I put my foot on that."

President Quezon's two daughters were to arrive last night with the rest of his party of 26. They plan to go on to Europe, but Quezon said he probably would not go "because the islands need me. I cannot stay away so long.' A round of social events including a reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Woodring, a reception by the Philippine Commissioner here, and a reception by the Congressional party which junketed to the islands, will occupy the President during the hours he is not conferring with Government officials during the next month.

The Filipino Club of Washington, D. C., Inc., will hold the inaugural dance this evening at the National Press Club in honor of its newly elected officers and in conjunction with the welcoming of the members of the delegation of President Quezon.

Miners Battle With Pick-Axes To End Strike

250 Starved Survivors Leave Self-Imposed Entombment.

By the Associated Press.

Pecs, Hungary, Feb. 26.—A story of hunger-crazed men swinging pick-axes in a battle along narrow, murky tunnels at the bottom of a mine shaft was pieced together tonight from the accounts of terrified survivors.

Authorities, however, had difficulty fitting the jig-saw picture of the fight from the 250 bleeding, starved "suicide" strikers who staggered from the mine after two days' entombment.

Those who could tell a coherent story admitted glumly a fight had started over whether to continue or abandon their hunger strike. Injured men were brought to the top in the evacuation but reports that others were left dead below could not be verified.

In the bitter fighting axes and heavy clubs were swung in almost utter darkness far beneath the surface.

One striker told how oats for the mine ponies were rationed among the men—a handful to each twice a day—and then soaked with water in their grimy caps so the grain would be soft enough to eat.

A company official said the complaints of the strikers—who sought an increase in daily pay from $1 to $1.20—were being investigated but it was improbable the raise would be given.

Court Supervises Railroad 'Lottery'

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 26 (AP).—A $1,500,000 "lottery" was drawn at the Federal Building here today under the direct supervision of the clerk of the court.

Winners of the "lottery" are holders of receivers certificates of the Seaboard Air Line Railroad, determined by lot, from among the holders of $4,000,000 in these certificates issued several years ago.

Under the terms of an order issued by Judge Way today at the request of the receivers, $1,500,000 of the receivers certificates are to be retired on April 1, with accrued interest.

Tribute Is Paid To Rep. Buchanan

Brenham, Tex., Feb. 26 (AP).—State and National officials joined today in tribute to Representative James P. Buchanan, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, at funeral services here. Buchanan died in Washington Monday.

Italy's Ruler Felicitated.

Rome, Feb. 26 (AP).—A Belgian royal mission today offered congratulations to King-Emperor Vittorio Emanuele on the birth to Crown Prince Umberto of a son and prospective heir to the Italian throne. The baby Prince Naples was born February 12.

Coal Control Problems.

The new Guffey coal bill, revamped to meet constitutional objections to the original measure, is again before Congress with the chances favoring its early passage. The chief change is the elimination of provisions for fixing wages and hours of mine labor. The price-fixing machinery, and the penalty taxes levied upon sales of coal by non-cooperating producers, are retained. Since a number of operators as well as the United Mine Workers favor the bill, there is danger of its becoming law without benefit of the exhaustive discussion that its importance deserves.

There is no doubt, of course, that the coal industry needs to be rescued from the chaos into which unregulated competition has plunged it. The aim of the Guffey bill is to strike at this evil by guaranteeing operators a fair price and helping to raise the wage and living standards of the miners. With these admirable purposes nobody would quarrel; the only question is whether a Federal price-fixing measure of the contemplated type would correct the basic evil of overproduction, and the wasteful exploitation of irreplaceable natural fuel resources. It is these maladjustments that lead to such major evils as sales below production costs and wages below decent living standards.

The mine workers, now almost completely unionized, favor the new bill, despite elimination of the labor clauses, because they believe it will enable them to strike a better wage bargain with producers assured of a fair price for coal. On the other hand, the operators who approve the measure no doubt believe that it will permit them to obtain higher prices for their output as well as prevent a recurrence of destructive price cutting.

Examination of the provisions for price-fixing gives rise to grave doubts, however, as to the efficacy of the plan in the absence of any method of controlling output. Minimum prices would be based on average production costs within certain defined marketing areas. Maximum prices which might be established by the coal commission to protect the public against unreasonably high charges would at least yield a fair return on the fair value of mining property. But to base prices upon average production costs might lead to the opening of new mines and encourage keeping high-cost mines in operation.

Experience has shown that price control, to be effective, must as a rule, be accompanied by control over output. Thus the British coal mines act provides for allocation of production among the several districts at regular and frequent intervals. Mines exceeding their quotas are fined, while mines not producing their quotas may sell their production privileges to others.

The new coal bill recognizes the importance of this matter by providing that the coal commission shall investigate the necessity for control of production and methods of control, reporting the results of its inquiry to Congress. There is good reason to wonder why the question of production control should be left for later decision instead of being studied in advance of any legislative action. However, the good or evil results flowing from adoption of an imperfect price-fixing proposal like that embodied in the revamped Guffey bill depend to a large extent upon the policies followed by those responsible for administering the system.

If "stabilization" is interpreted as an invitation to raise coal prices regardless of the effect upon consumers' demand or if it encourages mine labor to demand wage increases that necessitate undue price advances, passage of the price-fixing proposal now under consideration would simply intensify the economic maladjustments from which Congress is hoping to rescue this industry.

President Quezon's Visit.

President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines, now in Washington on his first official mission in that capacity, is no stranger to this city. He spent many years here as Resident Commissioner and has visited the Capital on other occasions, before and since. But at no other time was his stay in Washington fraught with greater potential consequences for his nation and his people than now.

Within a few years, under the present program, the Philippines will be completely independent of the United States. In the meantime the islanders face the unpleasant prospect of seeing their lucrative trade with us cut off by the gradual application of tariff schedules to their principal products. To tens of thousands of Filipinos political independence will be synonymous with economic suicide if the valuable American market is destroyed.

It is President Quezon's purpose here to request a modification of the tariff provisions in the McDuffie-Tydings act in order to prevent so calamitous a sequel to the establishment of the Philippines Commonwealth. That he will be given a friendly hearing goes without saying.

Although it is difficult to see how unrestricted trade relations between the islands and the United States can be maintained unchanged if Philippine independence is achieved, adjustments in the commercial policy fixed by the independence act may prove to be desirable during the interim period. The economic ruin of the islands is certainly not desired by the people and Government of the United States.

Borah Sharpens The Issue.

The constitutional amendment which Senator Borah proposes cannot possibly be regarded by the Administration as an acceptable compromise in the Supreme Court issue. On the contrary, as an effort to reestablish State sovereignty by limiting the "due-process-of-law" clause, it runs directly counter to the President's court-enlargement plan. This is designed to weaken rather than strengthen existing State powers. But just for that reason Mr. Borah's action helps greatly to clarify the epic underlying issue in the present dispute.

That dispute is making strange bedfellows. When the Supreme Court ruled out the New York minimum-wage law President Roosevelt justly commented on the "no man's land," where neither the Federal nor the State governments can function. The implication last June was that a constitutional amendment, such as Senator Borah has now sponsored, would ultimately be necessary to affirm State authority in the field of social legislation.

This was also the opinion of Gov. Landon. In his famous telegram to the Cleveland convention, prior to his nomination, Mr. Landon said flatly that he was prepared to "favor," as an inescapable obligation, "a constitutional amendment permitting States to adopt such legislation as may be necessary adequately to protect women and children in the matter of maximum hours, minimum wages and working conditions."

Gov. Landon's comment was prompted by the statement in the G. O. P. party platform that "we believe" States' rights in the field of social legislation can be upheld "within the Constitution as it now stands." President Roosevelt as clearly believes that Federal ambitions in this field can also be upheld without constitutional change, provided the membership of the court is enlarged by him. Because he wishes to increase the Federal powers, rather than to clarify those of the States, Mr. Roosevelt today opposes amendment in the same way, though for different reasons, as did stand-pat Republicans at Cleveland.

Senator Borah, on the other hand, is following through the line of thought suggested in Gov. Landon's famous telegram. Admitting the existence of the "no man's land" referred to by the President, he would have it taken over by State rather than Federal powers. And there is strong historical justification for the argument that this uncontrolled area was accidentally taken from the States by the fourteenth amendment. Under its "due-process" clause a protection set up in 1868 for newly freed slaves has been frequently used to strike down local social legislation.

Mr. Borah's plan for meeting this problem is decidedly ingenious. It would repeal the fourteenth amendment, substituting another defining "due process of law" as limited to the procedure and therefore unaffecting the substance of State laws. Simultaneously it would eliminate from the Constitution certain provisions of the fourteenth amendment, directed at Confederate leaders, which are obviously archaic today.

As its origin indicates, however, the "due process" clause is as much a protection of the liberties of the humblest as it is a device which corporation lawyers can use to block social legislation by the States. For this reason any modification of the clause must be specific in its terms. Otherwise, certain States might quite conceivably discriminate among their citizens for racial or other reasons in exactly the way the fourteenth amendment was designed to prevent.

Senator Borah evidently appreciates this, for his amendment would secure in every State the same right of freedom of religion, speech, press, peaceable assembly and petition which Congress is prohibited from infringing by the first amendment. But close examination will be necessary to determine whether these safeguards are sufficient.

With this very important aside, however, it is clear that introduction of the Borah amendment helps to define the underlying issue as being between the enlargement of Federal and the protection of State powers. The President may be expected to say as much himself when he makes the fireside radio address now announced for March 9. Analysis has now stripped the proposal of the irrelevances of judicial reform, exposing its real character in a way which neither friend nor foe can longer ignore.

Reaping The Whirlwind.

The current epidemic of "sit-down" strikes has become a formidable threat to economic recovery. In actual numbers the employes who have seized their employers' property constitute a trivial percentage of those at work in manufacturing plants. But the idea of taking possession of factories as a means of extorting concessions has spread like a prairie fire. If very serious disturbances are to be avoided, this strategy must obviously be abandoned.

The present outbreak of "sit-down" strikes of course traces to the partial success of the United Automobile Workers in their occupation of General Motors plants at Flint, Mich. By that means a minority of the company's employes tied up production while officials held in abeyance eviction orders of the court. Regardless of whether or not that procedure may have been justified in this particular case, it has given rise to a widespread impression that the "sit-down" strike can be legitimately employed to force recognition of unions and adjustment of working conditions.

As an indication of the attitude thus created, a member of the West Virginia Legislature has actually introduced a bill to "legalize" the "sit-down" strike in that State. Thousands of employes have come to regard the occupation of factories as a "right" that may be invoked with the approval of the Federal Administration. As a result State governments are confronted by a most serious problem of enforcing law and order wherever an industrial dispute arises.

Secretary Roper has pronounced the "sit-down" strike "a very serious and fundamental thing" which in his opinion "will not be endured for long by the courts." That personal view is the only attempt to discountenance this illegal practice that has come from Administration sources.

The Department of Labor has as yet given no public indication of opposition to "sit-down" strikes. And its failure to correct the impression that seizure of factories is a legitimate part of collective bargaining is one of the factors forcing State authorities to take drastic action.

Local governments can not permit their laws to be flouted, as was the case in Flint, without risking a state of anarchy. With or without the moral support of the Administration, they are called upon to dislodge trespassing "sit-downers" who refuse to obey court orders. That task would be far less difficult, however, if illegal occupation of plants by strikers were clearly discountenanced in Washington.

By Community Action.

The agreement through which 20 local and suburban banks will finance the purchase of new equipment by the Capital Transit Co. is a notable example of community co-operation. By joining hands in this project the banks have transacted loans totaling $1,507,000 that otherwise would have been handled in New York. The traction company has obtained funds under satisfactory conditions and at the reasonable interest rate of 4 per cent.

Now that this logical plan has been worked out, with the approval of the Public Utilities Commission, it appears strange that it has not been previously employed. Certainly Washington should be enough of a capital center to finance the requirements of its own utilities.

Incidentally, this five-year loan, negotiated because the transit company is unable to supply the money from its own resources, indicates that its need to economize is scarcely open to question.

Moo To You.

A cow who has made a record for herself as a producer was the guest of honor at a dinner of dairymen at Frederick the other evening. She had a special stall in the dining room and was entirely surrounded by dairymen diners.

It is to be hoped that she was sensible of the honors bestowed upon her as she stood there and watched her friends, oozing the milk of human kindness, daintily cut up and eat some of her dear relatives, efficiently cooked and garnished with onions.

"Oh, well," she doubtless philosophized, taking another nibble of alfalfa, "this may be strictly the cheese even though it does jar a little. It takes all kinds to make a world, some on four feet, some on two. To these poor men all flesh is grass, but to me and mine all grass is flesh. I don't mind their eating though, personally, I like a little stroll at mealtimes."

"But why," one can hear her conclude, "should I have to listen to speechmakers? Hear 'em! Butter wouldn't melt in their mouths. Why don't they take me as a model? I'm too much of a lady to chatter at mealtimes. The cow says nothing as she chews her cud, though she could choose otherwise. All she would have to do would be to invoke the Moos."

District Representation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post of February 24 carried a statement from Commissioner Hazen to the effect that his proposed committee on reorganization of the District government will be composed of a cross-section of representative citizens from the Board of Trade, Merchants and Manufacturers Association, and the Federation of Citizens Associations.

That the first two organizations mentioned above do not represent by any means a cross-section of District citizens is fairly obvious, but it is pertinent to ask at this time if the Federation does represent a cross-section of District citizens.

Admission to the civic bodies that comprise the Federation is conditioned on this, the applicant must be a property owner. This almost automatically excludes the majority of citizens, who merely rent or lease their homes and apartments. Another factor which bears out this point only too well is the annual report of the Federation for 1936 as it appeared in the press. The report shows that with only a few exceptions, the Federation concerned itself with advocating such measures as would increase, directly or indirectly, the value of the property held by its members. Slightly more than 90 per cent of the resolutions passed were of this type, i. e., roads, schools, police and fire equipment.

Perhaps even more damaging to any pretense that the Federation's membership represents a cross-section of District citizens, is its own admission in the report that none of its member bodies brought up for discussion any public welfare matter. The Federation has done nothing to help bring about a solution of the District's health or relief problems.

Obviously if Commissioner Hazen confines his choice of "representative" citizen to these organizations, he will be depriving the majority of District citizens of representation. One can't help but feel that the Commissioner is attempting to select a "picked" committee.

Heart Operation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read in The Post of February 23 of the delicate operation which was performed in California on an evangelist's heart. I think it would be interesting to the readers of The Post and especially to the medical profession to know that Dr. Beck performed that marvelous operation on a lady here in Washington several months ago.

She was only the second person who ever had it done, I understand. She went to Cleveland, where Dr. Beck is located.

I am one of many nurses who had the privilege of nursing this patient. DR. BECK BOOSTER.

Protests Against Memorial Plan.

There is a very strong reason why it should not be built there which the committee has evidently overlooked. It is this: It so belittles and degrades James Madison, "The Father of the Constitution," that posterity will wonder how men could be so partial as to single out Jefferson for preferment in this exclusive site, above the man who furnished the plan for our Constitution in the main; who was one of the two indefatigable debaters on the floor of the Constitutional Convention when the historic document was being forged in the white heat of controversy; and who after it was adopted by the convention, took upon himself the burden of arguing the various State Legislatures into ratifying it.

His was a much more difficult and important task than writing the Declaration of Independence, the principles of which were not the brain children of Jefferson alone, as eminent historians declare. Because he had an extraordinary gift of expression the task of forming these principles fell to him. Resistance to tyranny had been gestating for years. A Patrick Henry, a Richard Henry Lee—other patriots—had fired the souls of men to the point where a declaration was inevitable.

It would, however, have been but "a scrap of paper" if George Washington, Robert Morris and the men who "left their tracks in blood upon the snow" had not by their victory given authority to it. Declarations alone are insufficient. They must be established. Back in 1876 pioneer women constructed a magnificent declaration of independence comparable to that of 1776, declaring that all men and women are created equal. What happened to it? It sank into oblivion because women were too weak in that day to fight for freedom as men did.

This acute attack of Jeffersonitis is blinding men—preventing them from seeing their problem whole—in the light of posterity. They are honoring Jefferson in three different locations and it is now proposed also to name the new auditorium in his honor. Madison has been shamefully neglected. He, more than any other man, is responsible for locating the Nation's Capital on the Potomac, rather than in "some convenient place on the east bank of the Susquehanna River in Pennsylvania."

Both men cannot be honored at the Tidal Basin; therefore neither should be. There are other suitable sites, as evidenced by preferences expressed by different members of the committee. Destiny should be given the opportunity to place a greater American than either in the hallowed environment of Washington and Lincoln. The site should be preserved for that purpose.

PHARE PLEIGH.
Washington, Feb. 23.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If the power of the press is as strong as it is supposed to be, would it be asking too much for the press to start an effective campaign to keep Washington from becoming an experiment station for Mr. Pope and his Greek enthusiasms.

If our climate was mild enough, and our professors kind enough to teach all the students Greek, the populace would don skirts and meet the plaster casts in the Corcoran Art Gallery on an equal footing. In our present position we are forced to explain to the visiting relatives and tourists that the natives do not run around in chariots, and the Greek structures do not appear like mushrooms overnight.

The greatest tragedy lies in the fact that we cannot honestly claim the buildings are utilitarian, and our only hope of redemption is the possibility that the near future will find Hollywood doing a Greek movie and we can sell the city for a back-drop.

In justice to Jefferson we should not honor him by a memorial that would resemble nothing so much as a monument over Fido's grave in the dog cemetery. Granted that Mr. Pope's architecture is admirably suited to the complacent cocktail-bar intellect of Washington, there is no reason to insult the South's greatest liberal by such a garish display of funereal splendor—if we cannot honor Jefferson adequately and intelligently, we should not honor him at all.

Accepting Monticello and the buildings on the University of Virginia campus as an indication of the direction we should take, let us remember that Jefferson, in spite of his faults, did not live too much in the past—nothing would be more fitting than that we should honor this man of the past while respecting the demands of the future. In this respect a public school for working-class children, somewhat like the children's school outside Paris at Villejuif, or a slum-clearance project patterned after the Karl Marx House in Vienna, would be acceptable. Whatever we build, let it be something utilitarian—bringing comfort and culture to the people, rather than a cold monument bringing temporary work to a few.

VIRGINIAN.
Alexandria, Va., Feb. 25.

Government Employes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A letter by "Amused Observer" in your issue of February 19, attacking Government employes, does not leave one particularly amused, but rather irritated at the vague generalities and complete ignorance of a subject.

"Amused Observer" says "there never was or ever will be a Government employe who puts in seven hours of work a day."

Thus, in one blast, Mr. Observer indicates fallacious reasoning, stupidity, and the ever human error of talking in generalities.

First, what or whom does "Observer" mean by Government employes? Does he include District employes? If so, no one will deny that firemen and policemen put in seven hours of hard work a day. Firemen often work in 14-hour shifts per day. And if "Observer" didn't include District employes, why didn't he say so? Perhaps "Observer" thinks collecting garbage seven hours a day is ideal work, or cleaning sewers. These jobs are done by "Government employes."

If "Observer" is talking about Federal employes, how would he like to be an attendant at St. Elizabeth's Hospital for the Insane for seven days a week? And does he think being a Justice Department agent or Secret Service agent—no matter how many hours a day—is easy work? Perhaps "Observer" thinks a forest ranger, responsible for control of forest fires, is a mild job.

Maybe "Amused Observer" wrote about Federal clerks—although he did not say so. My personal observation is that the average clerk in Government service is conscientious and hard-working. And I challenge "Amused Observer" to prove otherwise. I mean prove.

I am not a Government worker.

SUBSCRIBER.
Washington, Feb. 21.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In answer to the "Amused Observer," of February 19, in your letters to the editor: A better name for him to sign would have been "Sour Grapes."

I am genuinely sorry that he has tried to hide his attitude under the word "amused" when bitterness sticks out in spite of the jesting. I know that it is tough when you have an "axe to grind" with Uncle Sam, and he won't turn a sympathetic ear to you, but don't blame the vast army that works for him, for your failure to create a preference.

I admit that the Government employment service has its "dead heads," but you have to concede that others have to make up for their deficiency, hence the average goes above "Observer's" statement. Every cloud has a silver lining, so let's hope he gets his head out of the storm clouds soon and can go along through life really being amused instead of being griped as he is now.

The Karmic Laws.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am very grateful to that Post editorial writer with enough imaginative realism to write the feeling article on the tragic plight of the abandoned cats of Provincetown.

Man's inhumanity to man is exceeded only by his callous cruelty in the treatment of all of the so-called lower animals. He harries and hunts them for his appalling "sports." He tortures them in medical laboratories in the mistaken name of "science." And even abandons his own temporarily protected pets to freezing, starvation or worse.

As Karmic laws become better understood, human beings will gradually realize that their own sufferings are due to their own transgressions in the treatment of their dependent fellow creatures, as well as of one another, and that either in this life or in life beyond the phantasm portrayed by the gifted writer in The Post—in which they change places with their victims—may well become a fact.

Molders of Glamour.

ADVENTURE and romance lurk in the most unexpected places. Who would have looked for romance in a foundry?

There were no shade trees in the foundry yard. There were no flowers. There had never been any of either. All about, lay desultory piles of junk—decrepit stoves, broken parts of automobiles, discarded school desks, broken skillets, pieces of pipe, all kinds of rusty iron things, heaped upon each other. A pile of oyster shells added to the unattractiveness of the landscape.

Long rows of iron window weights lay side by side like diminutive coffins suggesting a miniature disaster. I thought, "What an ugly place! How can one endure it to work where there is not one single thing that is beautiful to look upon?"

* * *

I was not enthusiastic over the invitation to enter, but there was a casting to be arranged for so I went in.

To my surprise, the interior of the large brick building was not unlike an old cathedral. The light was dim and the roof far above our heads, with beams and girders resembling those common to English churches of the ancient style. However, these beams were iron. They were, in fact, I-beams and such as are commonly in use in large buildings where strength is essential.

Narrow windows admitted dim light through glass long discolored by smoke and dust. From overhead hung long garlands of gray spun glass, or mineral wool, resembling the Spanish moss of Florida and festooning the ceiling and beams as though hung for decorative effect. One might have thought them cobwebs of monstrous dimensions.

Around them, hung a blue haze of smoke like incense from many candles. As our eyes became accustomed to the semi-darkness, we saw a floor covered with black sand, and all further similarity to a cathedral ended.

Here and there throughout the big room, men were working. Molds of various types and shapes and sizes were being prepared for pouring. Here, a round, tub-like mold was being placed on the black floor. Shovelfuls of the black sand were dumped in, then the molder packed it down, first by vicious jabbing with a rather sharp-edged spear, then with a sort of round, blunt one, like a fencing foil; then, having conquered his adversary in the unequal duel, he placed his heel upon the neck of the vanquished one and proceeded to dance.

It was as if the man were dancing a hornpipe on some fallen victim in a most heartless fashion. I couldn't bear to look any longer.

I hurried over to where a molder was doing something with some little boxes on a bench. It seemed to be a kind of art work. There were little wooden leaves that he would put into the boxes, then he would carefully bury them with black sand, tamp them in, then sprinkle them over with something white like flour—a senseless proceeding, I thought it, because he couldn't cover up all of that dirt.

Having made all as slick as slick, he would proceed to undo his efforts by pulling the wooden leaves all out again and leaving nothing but holes where they had been. He would put a little steel instrument down into the leaf and then play a clever little tune. The music intrigued me so that I asked the name of it. He gave me a pitying look so I presume that it was by one of the great masters, Mozart or Liszt or somebody like that. I subsided and didn't ask further.

* * *

All of these trying experiences had left me low-spirited and I was edging toward what looked like a possible exit when the bishop, or whoever was in charge of this strange cathedral, came forward and told me to stand right where I was as they were about "to pour."

"'Pour what?' Fill the molds," he said.

What had looked like a high pulpit from a distance proved to be the furnace, itself, and what I had mistaken for lighted candles were glimpses of the fiery interior through minute holes and cracks.

Two assistants to the bishop took positions on either side. The bishop, himself, held a sort of scepter with a conical end made of clay. Presently, I heard them pump the organ. I could hear the air, but there was no music. The bishop poked a scepter into the front of the furnace, or pulpit, and out poured a bright gold stream of iron. In all directions for a radius of 20 feet darted golden wands, each tipped with a fiery snow-flake, like an enormous sparkler on a golden stick. The "snowflakes" vanished instantly only to be replaced by others and still others in quick succession. A thing of beauty, indeed.

The gold stream ended when the chalice was full. The two attendants carried the flaming cup on a long rod to each waiting communicant. They tipped the chalice the gleaming liquid was quaffed by each of the waiting line of molds and when the last was filled, the service ended.

I went through an open door into the daylight. My spirit sang a new song. Now I understood why men could work day after day in the murkiness of that dim cloister, bending over dirt and sand, toiling, lifting, sweating, struggling, for that one brief hour at the day's end.

They may be plain Tom and Bill and Jim to you as they drive home from work at 5 o'clock, but to me they are still cloistered mystics and glamorous with a blaze of glory.

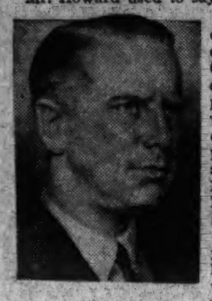
'Suckers Can't Wait.'

THE LATE E. Phocian Howard, the horse-journalist, used to employ a phrase which seems to me to apply to the Supreme Court controversy.

Mr. Howard used to say, "Suckers can't wait."



And now, all of a sudden, Mr. Roosevelt discovers that the Supreme Court is largely senile and demands quick action on a proposal which, if adopted, would create an easy precedent for the most cynical packing of the court by someone of the type of Huey Long or Warren Harding, Mussolini or Hitler in years to come.

It might not be many years, either, because if the last Presidential campaign was a wild one the next one will be a frenzy, with all the noisy maniacs of 1936 tearing their shirts and some new and even more poisonous spitting-cobras fouling the atmosphere with the blinding juice of hatred.

All dictators pack the courts by legal means as a preliminary to the promulgation of their dictatorial laws. After that it is comparatively easy to take over, because the courts belong to the dictator and do as he orders.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S proposal apparently is legal, and if it is, then it would be legal also for the next man to pass another law permitting him to pack the bench to his liking. If that man should be a wild man the Nation would presently be very sorry for having yielded easily to a proposal consolidating the judicial power along with the legislative and executive in one person.

The senility of the Supreme Court can hardly be said to have advanced since last November, for this is not a sudden ailment like the flu. But Mr. Roosevelt said nothing about the unfitness of "the old men" when he was discussing the issues, although that would have been a fine opportunity to discover unmistakably whether the people were in favor of packing the Supreme Court. He was not square about that, because he must have had the proposal in mind, and he knew it ranked with anything that he did discuss.

Liberties are slowly won, but the people of other countries have shown how easily and unguardedly they are given up in response to the argument that it is for their own good. The Italians and the Germans now know how benevolent a leader is, once he gets absolute control, starting with his power to ratify his own laws, passed by legislatures subject to emotional disturbances and bribery by favor, petty power and graft.

• • • •

TOURISTS who visit Italy and Germany, and return to describe the happy state of the people, do not see the men and women in the concentration camps, the confiscations, the ruinous political boycotts of workmen, professional men and business houses. They do not hear the other side of the story, because it is a crime, punishable by imprisonment or even death, for an Italian or a German to intimate that the leader is less than God or that the system falls short of perfection.

In the last German election Hitler simply did not provide any space on the ballot for a negative vote, and this was automatically ratified by the courts. German workmen have no freedom. They do as they are told, take what they get and shut up, and Hitler's courts approve that, too.

In Louisiana Huey Long, though not even a notary public or a village councilman, ran the Legislature through several special sessions, ordering the vote from the floor, called out the militia at will and packed not only the courts but the elections as well and made the people pay for his pluralities in doubtful areas at the rate of $5 a vote. He packed the State University. He even packed the bar by forcing through laws permitting him to disbar any lawyer who opposed him or any interest of his.

In a very little while nobody opposed to Mr. Long would have been able to hire a lawyer to defend him in a political prosecution calling for a prison term. That is not hearsay. All that is in the record and on the books of Louisiana, and Long's power was absolute because he had courts to ratify all he did.

Suckers can't wait, but the world has seen what happened to the suckers in Italy, Germany and Louisiana, where they tried a short cut to Utopia and landed in hell.

The Once Over

Babes in the Masks.

Rock-a-bye baby, all set for war,
When the bombs burst don't cry any more;
You'll have a gas mask to save you, no fear,
From grown-ups who ought to know better, my dear.

• • • •

Gas masks in infants' sizes are the order of the day in Europe. Great Britain even announces the development of a portable gas-proof cradle and a perambulator with quick detachable respirator!

• • • •

Civilization marches on! And if it doesn't hang its head it is tougher than we imagined.

• • • •

We're progressing. The world is getting better . . . for butchers. The general of the next war is already being pictured as a man who will gloat over what he did to a kindergarten and point with pride to a glorious victory over an orphan asylum.

• • • •

It's time to join the Cynic's Club when the first thing a proud papa has to do after passing the stogies is to go down and see why the stork didn't leave a gas mask. And when mother has to worry about the shell-proof cradle with antigas attachments.

• • • •

Bye Baby Bunting,
Daddy's gone ahunting
For something to take care of you
When gallant generals come through!

• • • •

"How's the baby?"

"Fine. She's just had her first gas mask."

"Oh, how wonderful! Did she mind it much?"

"Well, when we first strapped it over her head she didn't seem to understand it and acted a bit frightened, but you know how babies are."

"She got used to it quickly then?"

"Oh, she cries for it all the time. Did we send you one of her pictures?"

"Yes. It was quite horrible!"

"True, but it's hard to get a gas mask that reflects child's personality at its best, you know."

"Oh, indeed yes! Take Junior; he seems to have a certain something when masked, but Sissie looks awful."

"How's the new nursemaid?"

"I don't know whether she'll do or not. She means well but she's slow adjusting the respirators on the perambulator."

"No! really!"

"Yesterday we had a drill and it took her two and three-fifths seconds. That's a second slower than the old girl."

"Fire her, by all means."

Forward Mitt Bicarb!

Bicarbonate of soda will be used by the German army to overcome exhaustion. This would seem to make the speedy manufacture of gas masks more imperative than ever.

Austrian Enigma

Observer Sees Danube Valley Still Principal Danger Spot Of Europe But Suggests Austrian Culture Will Keep Peace.

By Eugene Havas.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

THE VISIT of Baron Neurath, the German Foreign Minister, to Vienna, which has provoked violent demonstrations between the pro and anti-Nazi elements in the Austrian Capital focuses the attention of the world once more on the unsolved problems of central Europe.

It is rumored in diplomatic circles that Hitler's emissary is trying to counteract the growing Austrian sentiment in favor of the restoration of the Hapsburgs. Archduke Otto is still in exile in Belgium, and the Austrian Chancellor, Dr. Schuschnigg, is said to be anxious to bring him back to the throne of his ancestors. That Germany is against the restoration of the Hapsburgs in Vienna is easily comprehensible. The presence of a Roman Catholic monarch might be the strongest antidote to Nazi propaganda in the overwhelmingly Catholic and traditional Austria.

It is certain that the Holy See in Rome would support the Hapsburgs. But will Mussolini come out for Otto? That is not certain. And if Mussolini supports restoration what will be the attitude of the other states that succeeded to the territory of the old monarchy? For it should not be forgotten that six independent national states have been carved out of the former Austro-Hungarian monarchy. And some of these states, notably Yugoslavia and to a lesser extent Czechoslovakia and Rumania, have so far maintained that they will consider any attempt to restore the Hapsburgs, either in Vienna or in Budapest as an act of war.

KONSTANTIN VON NEURATH.

Hapsburg Restoration Declared Not Soon Likely.

AS IT happens, the chances of a successful restoration are at present not too great. But time is the ally of Otto of Hapsburg. His loyal followers know it. There will be no "putsch" in Austria. Chancellor Schuschnigg may govern without Parliament, but he is not without brains. Since the death of Dollfuss he has managed to keep Austria free of trouble.

An amiable dictator who had no force behind him when he succeeded Dollfuss, except his common sense, he knew how to rid his government one by one of such powerful rivals as Prince Starhemberg and Maj. Fey, who were the founders of those semi-military organizations over which Schuschnigg now has firm and undisputed control. The "Fatherland Front"—as these merged semi-military political organizations are now known—as well as the reorganized Austrian army, are ready to defend the independent and corporate Austrian state. But would the "Fatherland Front" and the army be powerful enough to defend Austria against the invasion of a great power? Obviously not.

The independence of Austria depends only partly on the Austrians themselves. But Belgium and Holland are in a similar situation regarding their own defense and yet have managed to preserve their independence.

Those who take a gloomy view of the European situation and fear a German expansionist policy east or west, take it for granted that sooner or later Germany will attack. But it is not necessary to take such a tragic view of the situation.

Sympathy For Reich Aroused By Treaties.

NEARLY two decades have elapsed since the end of the war which dissolved the Hapsburg monarchy in the name of national self-determination. These years have brought to the fore many of the weaknesses of those harsh treaties forced on Austria and on Hungary at St. Germain and in Trianon. The Hapsburg monarchy was dissolved into Haves and Have-nots. The states of the Little Entente—Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania—became the top dogs, and Austria and Hungary the under-dogs. That these under-dogs feel a certain sympathy with Germany, the under-dog of the Versailles Treaty, is only natural. Hence there were and are sympathies with Germany irrespective of the regime in power at Berlin.

But these sympathies born of a common cause of humiliation would disappear as soon as Germany began to show any sign of aggressiveness either against Austria or Hungary. As a matter of fact it is no exaggeration to say that the rebirth of the patriotic feeling in Austria during the Dollfuss regime in 1933-34 was chiefly due to the attacks of the Nazis against Austrian independence.

Schuschnigg knows how to keep the heritage of Dollfuss. He will not jeopardize it. His frequent parleys with Mussolini, who is the chief arbiter in the Danube Valley, afford sufficient evidence that Austria will not take a leap in the dark. The economic and financial readjustment which has taken place in Austria since 1933 has greatly improved the standard of living. Unemployment decreased, some industries work at full capacity and in contrast to the scarcity of food experienced in the years following the war, there is now plenty of bread and butter. And so long as Austrians send food across the frontier to their German cousins, the lure of the alleged economic advantages of belonging to an enlarged German state tends to diminish.

Fortunes Of Austria Described As Reviving.

FINANCIALLY, too, Austria is doing well. Her foreign debts are settled, her currency is one of the safest in Europe, thanks to the thrift of the Austrians and the steadily growing influx of foreign visitors to Vienna and the Alpine sports resorts.

Life is certainly not what it used to be in the happy days of imperial Austria in 1914 and before. But the Vienna of 1937 is not the hopeless dying city of 1921. Austrian culture once more is capturing the world. The Salzburg festivals, with Toscanini and other of the greatest artists of the world participating, prove that Austria is still the undisputed leader in music. The city of Mozart, Beethoven and Brahms is slowly coming to life again.

It may seem strange that in the midst of the pessimistic forecasts daily recorded in the press, one should strike such a different tone of hope, based not on arms and force, but on patience and culture. The bitter lesson the Austrians have learned since the end of the last war is, however, that unsatisfactory though the present circumstances may be when compared with the prosperous reign of Francis Joseph, they nevertheless have a lot to lose and nothing to gain by abandoning their independent position.

Mussolini's Interest In Austria Is Important.

ITALY has a vital interest in Austrian independence. Mussolini clearly does not want Hitler on the Adriatic. It is safe to assume, therefore, that Italy will protect Austria as England would come to the defense of Belgium against a possible attack by a powerful neighbor. The presence of a Hapsburg ruler might help Mussolini in his endeavor to keep Austria intact. So the time might come when Otto will be recalled to the throne which his ill-fated father lost. Austrian culture and tradition might prove just as effective a barrier against the spread of Hitlerism eastward.

Austria and her neighbors are and will remain the danger spot of Europe. The Danubian problem will remain in the forefront of European foreign policy long after the bloody Spanish civil war is forgotten. But there is no reason why Austrian culture should not save Austria, Germany and the rest of Europe from that much heralded disaster similar to that which occurred in 1914.

Freeing Trade

By

The Drift Away From Autarchy.

IT IS WITHOUT doubt a hopeful sign that an increasing number of nations are at last beginning to do more than render lip service to the idea of breaking up the log-jam of world trade. The trend, definitely, appears to be away from autarchy—national self-containment.

This trend, to be sure, can easily be exaggerated. The movement for the freeing of trade from the restrictions and obstacles that have long stood in its path is still in a tentative and hesitant stage. The doctrine of autarchy has been nailed to the masthead of Germany's new four year plan which has as one of its principal aims the ending of the Reich's dependence on the outside world for essential raw materials.

A similar goal is being pursued by Italy and by Russia. And many other nations of the world, clearly aware though they are that autarchy is for them an utterly unrealizable ideal, nevertheless continue to follow that will o' the wisp. At least they are still engaged in building up whatever resources they may have, even if it is uneconomic to do so, in order not to be caught short in the event of war.

Yet, for all that, there are growing signs of returning sanity.

IT IS CERTAINLY a fact of undoubted significance that, both houses of Congress have seen fit, and by ample majorities, to approve the joint resolution extending until 1940 the powers of the President to enter into foreign trade agreements.

It has been argued with some truth that the reciprocal trade agreements thus far made by the United States, under the guidance of Secretary Hull, have had an only minor effect in stimulating foreign trade. It has been pointed out, for instance, that our trade with nations with whom no such agreements have been made has increased as rapidly, and in some cases even more rapidly, than with nations with whom such reciprocal deals are in force.

The important fact is, however, that the United States, long a leader in boosting tariffs to impossibly high levels, is now intent on pursuing the opposite course. And in view of our great industrial and commercial importance the influence of our example may be considerable.

• • •

THE EFFORT TO get other nations to join us in removing existing barriers to trade is bound to be a slow one. It has long been recognized that tariffs create vested interests. To ignore or ruthlessly override the opposition of these interests to downward tariff revision is not always easy and, for that matter, not always wise. The war against autarchy cannot safely be waged through frontal attacks; it must be a war of attrition.

That is one reason why no immediate possibility seems to exist, despite the hopes aroused by the recent visit to Washington of Walter Runciman, president of the British Board of Trade, for an Anglo-American reciprocal agreement.

Another reason is the circumstance that reciprocal agreements and mandatory neutrality legislation, such as are favored by a considerable section of Congress, are irreconcilable. Until our neutrality policy is clarified it is doubtful if any great progress will be made in the negotiation of a trade treaty with Great Britain.

• • •

IN GREAT BRITAIN'S case few signs are visible of any impending retreat from protectionism. That system, adopted by the United Kingdom some years ago and modified only by trade preferences granted the dominions by virtue of the Ottawa agreements, is here to stay. Yet it is perhaps significant that in the new Anglo-Canadian trade treaty, replacing the one negotiated at Ottawa by Premier Bennett in 1932, the preferences granted by the Dominion to the mother country, and vice versa, do not involve the boosting of tariff rates.

Altogether apart from the agreement just made with London, the Ottawa government has also seen fit to decree reductions in certain tariff items, including the abolition of the specific duty on cotton clothing and dresses. This latter action will undoubtedly benefit the United States.

A MORE specific movement for freer trade is to be found in the efforts now being made by the Dutch and Swedish governments to revive, so far as that can be done, the abortive Oslo convention of 1930.

That agreement, signed by the representatives of Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Finland, Belgium and Luxembourg bound the contracting parties to support all efforts to eliminate impediments to trade. But the Oslo convention never achieved anything. It broke on the rock of the deepening world depression and of Great Britain's refusal to waive its most-favored-nation rights with the signatories.

The other day Premier Hendrik Colijn made an urgent plea to the nations that had accepted the Oslo convention to investigate the possibilities of freer trade between them. His remarks produced a favorable response in Stockholm where Premier Hansson declared that Sweden, for its part, was eager for increased economic co-operation between the Scandinavian states and the low countries.

Since then a meeting of the signatories of the Oslo convention has been called at The Hague. How much will be accomplished at this meeting remains to be seen. Some observers are distinctly pessimistic. The Stockholm correspondent of the London Economist points out, for instance, that:

> While there hardly exist any trade barriers in Sweden and Norway, Denmark is certainly not in a position to abolish her import and transfer restrictions, and Holland will hardly take any such step without compensation. And neither Norway nor Sweden has any further tariff concessions to grant. The move must therefore be regarded as the beginning of negotiations for removing trade restrictions, on a wider scale than within the frame of the Oslo agreement.

• • •

UNDER THE circumstances the investigation ordered by the League of Nations into the problem of access to raw materials, an investigation in which Dr. Henry F. Grady, the American member of the economic committee, will participate, may prove to be important.

The problem of raw materials is closely linked with that of trade. The fact that, aside from the United States, no great power possesses within its borders any large proportion of the essential raw materials, militates against autarchy even while, at the same time, stimulating the efforts to reach that impossible goal through the development of expensive substitutes. Lack of raw materials also has the effect, as recent German activities show, of creating a clamor for colonies.

Correct English

By William Lyon Phelps

'Will' And 'Shall.'

Mr. Horace J. Fenton, M. A., an accomplished scholar in the English language, writes me a delightful letter concerning one of my recent articles.

"Thanks for telling me how to pronounce 'primarily.' I have always accented the second syllable. And I probably always shall, too, since the habit of half a century is hard to break. Then, too, as you once remarked to me, 'sometimes I'd rather be wrong than President.'

"Very likely 'I would like' is wrong, yet it seems to me that 'I would like you if I could' is not so very bad. Don't we sometimes try to split hairs rather too fine over 'shall' and 'will?'

"Is the error in 'I will be glad to come to your dinner' quite what you seem to imply? Is it not in the coupling of 'will' with 'glad?' In other words, may you not promise a friend that you will attend his dinner, but can you promise, or will yourself, to be glad?"

• • • •

In saying that although I have shown him how to pronounce "primarily," he will probably continue in error, is a statement both modest and honest. But let me tell him he can reform and be good. I mispronounced the word "tentative" until I was over 30 years of age; but not since then. When I was a little boy, I pronounced "accomplish" with the "o" like "accompany;" and even now I often have to make the effort to say it right; but I make it. Miss Lucy Mather, of Hartford, one of the most intelligent and interesting women I have ever known, told me that she was always in danger of saying "perlite" for "polite." Only I never heard her say it.

• • • •

I think he has got me on that one example of "I would like," which I said was always wrong. "I will like you if I can" is the direct form of "I would like you if I could"—but one had better not say it for it is (however grammatical) an insult. I wonder if I am right in saying that "I would like to" is always wrong. I hope so.

I cannot agree with my learned friend on "will . . . dinner." I think "I shall come to your dinner" is better than "I will come." But I am always grateful for corrections and suggestions. To err is human.

Iowa Meeting

Farmers And City Folk Met Last Week With Legislators, Editors And Officials To Discuss Agriculture's Outlook.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Des Moines.

THE NATIONAL AGRICULTURAL INSTITUTE held in Des Moines last week was a free and analytical discussion of all major phases of the farm tenancy problem (the subject centered upon). It was attended by owner-farmers and tenant farmers; city men of industry, finance and transportation; farm organization leaders; representatives of the Federal agencies of agriculture; Iowa officials and legislators; spokesmen for other vitally interested sections, particularly the South; land grant college experts; Iowa educators and Iowa editors.

No resolutions were proposed and no conclusions reached. But certain trends of discussion and certain other significances developed.

In the first place, there was extraordinary and unexpectedly large attendance, testifying to farmer interest.

In the second place, the sponsorship by a city chamber of commerce of an institute aiming primarily to illuminate the national interests of agricultural producers was a novelty even in this agricultural area. It is a fact that even in Iowa the gap between country folk and their interests and city folk and their more superficial interests, has been quite considerable. Agricultural conferences promoted by city groups have been almost uniformly attached to particular programs about which rural people had considerable skepticism. Farm people who come to such conferences ordinarily come looking for the "Ethiopian in the woodpile."

In the third place, the general tone of the sessions was in a broad sense "conservative." That statement requires amplification.

Conservatism Seen In Credit Policy Talk.

ONE OF THE ASPECTS of the prevailing conservatism was the reaction toward credit policies as a means of checking the drift into farm tenancy and of promoting owner-operation of farms.

While, of course, many points of view were expressed, including that of the Farm Holiday Association, the great majority unquestionably felt that there are strict limits to what can be accomplished through cheap and easy credit offered by government. There were frequent warnings that subsidization of credit has potential perils tending to nullify its advantages. This did not mean opposition to emergency subsidization, nor to continued provision and use of credit to enable many present owners to hold their farms and many tenants to become encumbered owners. But there was definitely the realization that cheap governmental credit and long amortization programs cannot be regarded as a panacea for the drift toward tenancy.

Another of the aspects of conservatism was the obvious disposition of most of the discussion groups to emphasize old and basic phases of the whole agricultural problem—the necessity of adequate and stable income for agricultural producers as the condition of national economic well-being and of a restoration of a "farm ladder" on which tenants might climb progressively into ownership instead of descending from ownership into tenancy and from tenancy into the status of farm labor.

Yet another aspect (this refers particularly to the corn belt) of conservatism was the constant stress upon farm ownership as the goal, rather than upon acceptance of large scale tenancy as a permanent thing, calling primarily for improvement of landlord-tenant relationships.

"Danish" Approach Favored Over "English."

PUTTING IT another way, there was marked preference for what may be called the "Danish" approach to the tenancy problem as opposed to the "English" approach. In Denmark every farmer, practically speaking, is an encumbered owner. In England practically every farmer is a tenant with his rights and interests legally protected. This corn belt reaction obviously is the product of the region's past and philosophy, and it is a tenacious thing. Its modification, insofar as it may gradually be modified, would not seem to be something that will come swiftly.

The corn belt farmer, judging by the tone of the institute, wants Government to play its part in steadying the "ladder" on which he and his sons may ascend to ownership.

The passion for ownership is conservative. The apparent recognition (and it was apparent) that stability of income rather than booms with their consequent skyrocketing of land values is the desirable thing, is essentially conservative. The lack of any serious consideration of such solutions as nationalization of land is conservative. The stress on the importance of maintaining a stable farm system, of preventing the breakdown of rural community life and institutions that results from shifting of insecure tenants from farm to farm in vast numbers each year, is conservative. The virtually unanimous agreement that the national interest requires soil conservation, and no less that it requires conservation of a capitalist farm class, is conservative, even though this involves new social conceptions of land use and the rights of "abuse" inherent heretofore in free simple land ownership.

National, Not State, Solutions Emphasized.

TWO OTHER drifts of discussion in the Institute that may not be classifiable as in all respects conservative must be noted.

One of these was the disposition to look to the National Government for solutions rather than to the States. Though clearly, under our constitutional system, even with any conceivable modification of the Federal Constitution by amendment or liberalization by interpretation, there must remain a large field within which only the State authority can act on farm tenancy problems, the disposition was to slight this aspect whenever presented and to focus on national aspects.

Obviously such concerns as tariff policy, price levels and distribution of the national income, as well as leadership in soil rebuilding, are for the central Government to deal with. These things still seem to register with agricultural leaders of this region as primary. And nobody said a word about States' rights.

Related to this concentration on national responsibility was the prevailing reaction toward constitutional limitations.

The President's specific proposal for bringing the Supreme Court into line was not discussed in any session. The issue of liberal construction was nowhere on the program. But again and again reference was made to the "necessity" of somehow overcoming the present constitutional (or interpretational) obstacles to the doing of what it was felt needed doing. President O'Neal of the American Farm Bureau Federation touched on that emphatically in his address. Farmers and even, in a couple of cases, lawyers, struck the same note.

To what extent this sentiment may be mobilizeable, given time and agitation, in support of the particular method of judicial liberalization proposed by the President, is something to which this institute gave no answer. But the depth of the sentiment and the frequency of its expression here were noteworthy.

The intersectional aspect of this particular agricultural problem, tenancy, naturally relates especially to the cotton and tobacco South and the Middle West. Another subject another year might throw other intersectional interests into the limelight.

Midwesterners Showed Sympathy For Southerners.

THERE IS unquestionably, and the Institute discussions illustrated it, a growing interest in this region in the South's set of conditions. This interest, which as yet is not crystallized into an attitude, exhibits two main forms. The first involves a realization that the South's human surplus, unless absorbed by Northern industry or enabled to maintain itself under decent living standards in its own region, may tend to press northward into competition with farm tenants here.

It was somewhat anxiously pointed out that already some serious effects are noticeable in parts of southern Iowa, bordering on Missouri, where Arkansas, Tennessee and Missouri tenants have been added to the existing surplus of farm renters, with the effect of lowering the economic and even educational standards in the affected counties. Iowa has long been proud of its literacy index and is struck by the phrase of Father Ligutti to the effect that, thanks to conditions in the South and our freedom of migration Iowa is "importing illiteracy."

The second form in which interest in the South's problem exhibits itself is a fear lest large-scale shifting of the South from cotton to other crops, whether due to failure of foreign markets or other causes, may lend to competitive production there of food and feed crops of the type produced in the Middle West.

Considerations of this sort, which point to both common ifiterests and to interests that in some degree clash, make for at least a common feeling that the interregional problems constitute a national problem and must be nationally approached.

There was also, in the corn belt discussions, an undertone of concern about the danger of future corn surpluses. Given two good years, such supplies as could hardly be prevented from depressing prices might be piled up. The significance of this with respect to production control is obvious.

There was no verbal "raiding" of "business." The term "Wall street" was never mentioned. It was farm leaders who repeatedly warned that purchasing power in the cities is essential to farm prosperity, and that all the agriculturists of the country constitute now a minority, so that, purely as a matter of practical politics as well as justice, agricultural demands should be limited to "parity" or "balance."

And it was Gerard Nollen, president of the Bankers Life Insuance Co., who said more forcefully than anyone else that city men must recognize that life in our kind of society is and must be fundamentally "a co-operative enterprise," in which men of economic power must demonstrate a sense of trusteeship, not alone to their stockholders or policyholders but also to the land, to the people on the land, and to society.

By the Associated Press.

The Social Security Board is preparing to pay old-age pensions to 300,000 persons this year.

Although the contributory pensions section of the social security act did not go into effect until January 1, the board estimates that 100,000 of the millions who are having their pay docked for the old-age benefits will reach the age of 65 during 1937. Another 200,000 will die.

Those who retire this year at 65 and the heirs of those who die will be entitled, as a final settlement, to 3½ per cent of the wage or salary on which taxes were paid, providing the wage was not more than $3,000.

Ickes for Change In Housing Bill

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Ickes agreed yesterday with "the general principles" of Senator Wagner's $1,050,000,000 low-cost housing bill. He said, however, he objected to having a board administer the proposed program.

"I believe very strongly in having an administrator when you have a purely administrative job to do," said Ickes, who has directed 51 Public Works Administration housing projects.

Commenting on a forthcoming general report of the National Power Policy Committee, Ickes said the committee's recommendations for appointment of an administrator for the Bonneville Dam project could not be taken as indication of general policy. He added there might be modification in the Bonneville proposal.

Twofold Vote Of Confidence Supports Blum

By the Associated Press.

Paris (Saturday), Feb. 27.—The large popular front majority in the Chamber of Deputies early today gave Premier Leon Blum's government a decisive two-fold vote of confidence, rejecting charges of his conservative foes that he was leading France to bankruptcy and dictatorship.

After a bitter all-day debate, in which leaders of the Rightist opposition asserted the Socialist premier was permitting a "hemorrhage of gold," Blum twice called on the chamber to declare its confidence in his program.

The first vote, 361 to 211, rejected an opposition motion proposing "the order of the day without confidence." The popular front, with an unchanged total, then voted the order of the day, signifying its renewed support of the cabinet, 361 to 209.

Flandin Hurls Charges.

Earlier, Pierre-Etienne Flandin, once premier, had charged in a fierce attack on the government that Blum was leading France to bankruptcy and dictatorship.

Blum, France's first Socialist premier, countered with a challenge to his enemies to carry the issue to the electorate.

If opposition to his Popular Front program compelled him to do it, he told the Chamber of Deputies, he would seek a dissolution of the chamber and new elections. Then, turning with a broad smile to face the Right, he challenged:

"The day you are reday to go before the electors we are ready, too!"

Will Hold Policy.

"I have no intention of changing my policy," Blum declared. "I believe we are succeeding."

He warned that if the Popular Front was overthrown there would be danger of "an explosion" from the working class.

To the echoing boos of workers' deputies of the dominant Popular Front, Flandin cried that M. Blum's financial program was aimed at control of exchanges and would alienate the United States and Great Britain, "on whose support you base your hope of peace."

Supporting M. Flandin was Camille Laurent, who charged that governmental policies were sapping a billion francs of French gold each week and that $10,000,000 of the precious metal had gone abroad on each of the last four days.

Demands Gold Outflow Halt.

"If you do not want to die," shrieked Laurent, "stop this hemorrhage of gold!"

"You got those figures from a high official of the Bank of France! That is treason! But you have been betrayed shamefully—those figures are absolutely false!"

(The last Bank of France statement, covering the week ended February 19, showed no change in the gold reserve.)

M. Flandin charged the national credit was exhausted, that the premier can find no lender and no treasury bond buyers; that he is headed for inflation and control of the exchanges—"the policy of Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin."

U. S. Trade Ties Valued by France, Envoy Declares

By the Associated Press.

Georges Bonnet, new French Ambassador to the United States, voiced yesterday a desire by his government for stronger economic co-operation with the United States.

In presenting his credentials to President Roosevelt, he avoided any reference to war debts, but he spoke France's gratification over the tripartite monetary understanding and conclusion of a Franco-American trade agreement.

"France is convinced, in particular," the new envoy said, "that return to liberty of exchange of goods is a supreme condition of salvation for a civilization founded on division of labor between men and between peoples."

In responding, Mr. Roosevelt said: "I am happy to note the importance which your nation attaches to the return of normal conditions in world trade. The furtherence of this purpose is, as you know, one of the fundamental aims of this Government, since the liberalization of international trade is a sure way to further the cause of world peace. • • •"

Rumanian Nazi Group Attacked by Premier

Bucharest, Rumania, Feb. 26 (AP).—Premier George Tartarescu struck tonight against the "Iron Guard" in an effort to stamp out the militant Nazi organization.

After a session with his revamped cabinet, Tartarescu ordered raids of students' homes and the dissolution of all fraternities that are unsupervised by school authorities. Among 14 student leaders arrested, several were charged with being members of the Iron Guards' "death squad," which is reputed to be determined to assassinate certain political leaders.

Court Change Backed By Bristol Legislator

By the Associated Press.

Representative John W. Flannagan, jr., of Bristol, Va., joined yesterday the ranks of the supporters of President Roosevelt's plan to reorganize the Federal judiciary.

He announced he would speak over the radio Monday night (11:30 to 12 p. m.) in support of the President's program. Flannagan also said he planned to speak on the House floor later on the subject.

Church's Drive For $45,000 Saves Property

St. Stephen and Incarnation Parish Pulls Out of Financial Straits.

The Episcopal parish of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, confronted recently with a financial emergency, will be able to hold its properities intact, at Monroe and Center streets northwest, Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, of Washington Cathedral, announced yesterday.

As a result of a recent city-wide appeal for contributions, the parish can meet obligations totaling $45,000 and continue its parish services, Canon Stokes, who served as chairman of a general fund-raising committee, said.

In the campaign, which closed Wednesday, 400 members of the parish contributed a total of $20,000 and 150 persons in the Washington diocese outside the parish gave another $25,000. In the hands of the parish treasurer, A. C. Moughton, yesterday were gifts and subscriptions amounting to $45,200.

Canon Stokes described the response of the parish to its emergency as "magnificent." Each of the 11 teams had more than exceeded its quota.

"Many persons have co-operated to bring about the result, which means saving one of the most important parishes in Washington."

The Rev. Paul D. Wilbur was made rector of the parish in January, after Dr. George F. Dudley, rector of the parish since its organization 42 years ago, retired.

Georgetown Dean To Give Novena

Science Churches Have Same Topic

"Christ Jesus" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ Scientist tomorrow. The Golden Text is from Hebrews 13:8: "Jesus Christ the Same Yesterday, and Today, and Forever."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because He hath anointed me to preach the Gospel to the poor; He hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord" (Luke 4:18, 19).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbooks, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine truth, life and love gave Jesus authority over sin, sickness and death. His mission was to reveal the science of celestial being, to prove what God is and what He does for man."

Col. and Mrs. Jonathan Wainwright, Col. and Mrs. John A. Crane Entertain Before Riding Event; Ambassador of Peru Ranking Guest.

By Lynda Reeve.

Col. and Mrs. Jonathan Wainwright and Col. and Mrs. John A. Crane were hosts at luncheons yesterday before the Diplomatic Ride at Fort Myer, at which the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr were the official guests of honor. Mrs. Carr, who arrived with Mrs. Wainwright to take her place in the box, had on a black coat fashioned with a brief cape trimmed with bands of black Persian lamb. Her hostess was in a dark brown with a luxurious collar of mink. They were joined by Mr. Carr, who entered the riding hall in his car, following his mounted escort.

The official box with its high ranking occupants was filled with officers in colorful uniforms, the Cavalrymen wearing capes lined with yellow, and their fellow Field Artillerymen in capes lined with scarlet.

Throughout the program, which included interesting and unusual performances—some of the acts such as the tandem jumping, the only ones of their kind—the audience sat completely enthralled.

Dance in "Hop Hall" Closes Function.

After the massing of the First Battalion of the Sixteenth Field Artillery and the firing of the sunset retreat gun, which closed the ride, there was a tea dance in the "hop hall." It was decorated for the occasion with effective arrangements of palms and ferns and two long tea tables centered with artistic bowls of early spring flowers.

The ranking diplomat present was the Ambassador of Peru, Senor Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander, who was accompanied by his young son and daughter, Frank and Peggy. Sitting next to him at the show was the Soviet Ambassador, M. Alexander Troyanovsky. Nearby were Mme. Sze, wife of the Ambassador of China; the Minister of the Irish Free State, Mr. Michael MacWhite; the Ambasador of Turkey and Mme. Ertegun; the Ambasador of Germany, Herr Hans Luther; the Ambassador of Italy and Donna Matilde de Suvich, the latter in brown trimmed with sables, and with them their First Secretary, Prince Marcello del Drago.

Others in the large gathering were Mme. Oumansky, wife of the Counselor of the Soviet Embassy, wearing beige; the Minister of Siam and Mme. Rajamaitri, the latter in a smart sports outfit of tan and brown; the Minister of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Hurban, the latter wearing a squirrel coat; Mr. Otakar Kabelac; the Ambassador of Chile, Senor Don Manuel Trucco, who had with him one of his attractive daughters, Senorita Rebeca, attired in chic all-black, and Senor Manuel Trucco, jr.

Minister of Panama, Wife Present.

Also the Minister of Panama and Senora de Boyd, the latter in mink, and their sub-debutante daughter, Senorita Dora Boyd, in gray; the Counselor of the Swiss Legation and Mme. Feer, the latter in black, her small hat having a flaring veil; the Minister of Latvia and Mme. Bilmanis; Senora de Recinos, wife of the Minister of Guatemala, with her daughter, Senorita Laura Recinos; the Counselor of the German Embassy and Frau Thomsen, the latter costumed entirely in wine-colored velvet; the First Secretary of the German Embassy and Frau Scholz; the First Secretary of the Turkish Embassy, Mr. Resid Anamur, and the Second Secretary, Mr. Ibrahim Seyfullah; the First Secretary of the Ecuadorian Embassy and Senora de Mantilla-Ortega; Mme. Lombard, wife of the Military Attache of the French Embassy; the Air Attache of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Puga, the latter costumed in black with a vivid green felt hat; the First Secretary of the Chilean Embassy, Senor Don Sergio Huneeus; the Naval Attache of the Japanese Embassy and Mme. Kobayashi; Mr. Michal Budny, of the Polish Embassy; the Minister of the Dominican Republic and Mme. Pastoriza, accompanied by the Dominican Minister to London and Mme. Henrique Urena; the First Secretary of the Honduras Legation, Senor Don Julian R. Caceres; the Minister of Paraguay and Senora de Busk Codas; Mrs. H. O. Chalkley, wife of the Commercial Counselor of the British Embassy; Mrs. Mark-Wardlaw, wife of the Assistant Naval Attache of the British Embassy, and her father, Capt. Cochran Carr.

Lehmans, Miss Fanny Hurst Guests Of Roosevelts at the White House

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt will have as guests this evening at the White House Miss Fannie Hurst, the writer, and Judge and Mrs. Irving Lehman, of New York, brother and sister-in-law of the Governor of New York.

Last evening the President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained at dinner for 25 guests in honor of Mrs. Henry A. Morgenthau, jr., wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, whose birthday it was.

Following the dinner, additional guests were invited for a program which was presented in the East Room. Miss Sydney Thompson presented scenes from Balzac and from Guy de Maupassant, and Miss Martha Graham presented dances, accompanied at the piano by Mr. Louis Horst.

Her first number was Sarabande, to music by Lehman Engle, and her second "Frontier," to music by Mr. Horst. As her closing group she presented "Imperial Gesture," an interpretation of music by Engel, and "Harlequinade," with music by Ernest Toch.

Miss Alice Graeme, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Wright Graeme, of New York, will be married at her home, 3412 O street, at 1 o'clock today to Baron Serge Alexander Korff, son of Baroness Serge Alexander Korff, of Washington. The Rev. Albert J. McCartney will perform the ceremony, which will be attended only by immediate members of the families and a few close friends.

After a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride, the couple will leave for a Florida wedding trip. Mrs. Graeme arrived in Washington several days ago to attend the wedding and has been staying at the Anchorage, but will occupy her daughter's home in Georgetown until her return from Florida.

The Ambassador of France and Mme. Georges Bonnet will leave Washington today to spend the week-end in New York. Yesterday they entertained at a luncheon for members of the embassy staff.

The Ambassador of Turkey and Mme. Ertegun were guests of honor last night at a dinner given by the Minister of South Africa and Mrs. Ralph William Close. Other guests included the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, the Minister of Bulgaria, Mr. Dimitri Naoumoff; the Minister of Czechlosovakia and Mme. Hurban, the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. William D. Leahy, Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Owsley and Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose.

Miss Suzanne Wilson, daughter of the Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins, will entertain at a dance for 65 guests at the 1925 F Street Club this evening.

Among the out-of-town guests at the party will be Miss Alison Bruere, of New York, who is spending the week-end with Miss Wilson, and Miss Jane Perry, of New York, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Perry, at the Fairfax Hotel.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Bohn will entertain at a buffet supper tomorrow evening after the Town Hall meeting in honor of Senator and Mrs. Hugo Black, of Alabama, and Representative and Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine. Senator Black and Representative Brewster will debate earlier in the evening at the Town Hall on the question, "Shall the President's Plan for Reorganization of the Supreme Court Be Adopted?"

Miss Mary McDowell Will Be Wed To Mr. Robert Ellis Here March 20

Mrs. Ralph Walker McDowell has issued invitations to the marriage of her daughter, Miss Mary McDowell, to Mr. Robert Alexander Hayne Ellis, son of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Hayne Ellis, of Newport, R. I., formerly of Washington. The ceremony will take place March 20 at St. Thomas' Church, at 4:30 o'clock.

Miss Louise Alexander will be maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Elizabeth Sibley and Miss Kate Hyde Scully, of Washington. Mr. Ellis' brother, Mr. Hayne Ellis, will be best man, and the ushers will be Mr. Richard Wadhams and Mr. Robert M. McDonald, of New York; Mr. Mal Watson, of New Jersey; Mr. William White, of Philadelphia; Mr. Murray Preston, of Washington, and Mr. John Davis Leland, of Boston.

Mme. Fotitch Has Reception At Her Home

By Jessie Ash Arndt.

Mme. Fotitch, wife of the Minister of Yugoslavia, yesterday afternoon received at the last of her "at homes" this season. The minister did not receive with her, as he is in New York for a few days.

During the early part of the afternoon, many members of the Congressional set called and later many from the Diplomatic Corps, some of whom had attended the Fort Myer ride beforehand.

The upper hall of the legation, where Mme. Fetitch received, was decorated with a great spray of forsythia and salmon-colored gladioli. In the dining room, the tea table had a centerpiece of small poppies and freesia and on the buffet, was a bowl of red tulips. The hostess wore a tunic frock, the blouse of white satin striped in gold, worn over a black skirt.

Mme. Saint Attends.

Among the guests were several from the French Embassy, including Mme. Saint, wife of the Third Secretary, and Mme. Lucet, wife of the attache, who were accompanied by the charming young bride of the new Second Secretary, Mme. Charpentier. She wore a chic frock of black velvet with a small black hat. She was with her father in Moscow for three years while he was French Ambassador to the Soviet and she had an interested group around her as she talked of her experiences there and described the theaters which she had visited. Mme. Champsaur, wife of the Air Attache of the French Embassy, also was among the guests.

Mme. Perazic, wife of the former Secretary of the Yugoslav Legation, was there, accompanied by Mr. Perazic, and wearing a striking costume. Her gown was of brown with a pattern of gold in the material. With it she wore a three-quarter length mink cape, a plum-colored velvet hat, trimmed in fur, and carried a mink muff. Their friends were expressing pleasure to learn they have returned to Washington to live.

The Minister of Portugal and Mme. Bianchi were among the later guests to arrive, accompanied by Mme. Bianchi's daughter, Miss Sibella Skidelsky. Both wore black, Miss Skidelsky a satin frock with strands of gold beads at the neck, and a small black hat with a veil, and her mother wearing a hat and muff matching her handsome fur coat.

Mrs. Ashton Assists.

Mrs. Howard Ashton, who is a native of Yugoslavia, assisted the hostess, presiding at the tea table. She also was in black, wearing a broad-brimmed hat and a tailored frock with white collar and cuffs.

Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador, wearing a black costume, was in the dining room, one of a group which included Mrs. Allan Chantry and her attractive daughter, Miss Carolyn Chantry, who wore a small brown hat and brown satin frock; Miss Margaret Gage, and the Air and Military Attache of the Italian Embassy and Mme. Coppola. The Minister of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Pastoriza arrived after attending the ride. Among others in the company were Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. Frank Simons, the Minister of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Hurban, Mrs. George Pillsbury, Mrs. Albert P. Niblack and Mr. Julius C. Holmes, of the State Department.

Mrs. Joseph E. Rolfes Gives Tea for Daughter

Mrs. Joseph Edward Rolfes entertained yesterday afternoon at a trousseau tea in honor of her daughter, Miss Frances Hildegarde Rolfes, whose marriags to Mr. Sidney Walker Rawlings, of Memphis, Tenn., will take place today.

Assisting at the tea table were Mrs. Robert M. Greenwood, who will serve as matron of honor, and Mrs. John H. Rawlings, jr. There were 50 guests.

Judge, Mrs. Miller Are Honor Guests At Dinner for 60

Several dinner parties preceded the meeting of the Friday Evening Dancing Club at the Willard Hotel last night. The largest was that at which Maj. and Mrs. Parker West entertained for 60 guests in honor of Judge and Mrs. Justin Miller.

The former President of Panama and Mme. Alfaro also entertained preceding the dance, with the Minister of Guatemala and Mme. Recinos as their ranking guests. Other parties were given by Representative and Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, who had eight guests at the Carlton, and by Mr. and Mrs. Karl D. Loos, who entertained at their home.

There will be three more meetings of the Friday Evening Dancing Club, in March, April and on May 7, when the closing dinner-dance, the largest affair of the club's season, will be given.

Senator Bulkley Heads Dinner List

Col. Sam Castleman Is the Honor Guest.

Senator Robert J. Bulkley was the ranking guest at a dinner given last night at the Hay-Adams House in honor of Col. Sam Castleman, of Louisville, Ky.

Other guests were Commissioner George Allen, Capt. H. E. Collins, Dr. Julien H. Parmelee, Col. Barry Bulkley, Mr. W. Gwynne Gardiner, Mr. W. D. Jamison, Mr. Elmer Oliver, Mr. Marvin McIntyre, Mr. Malcolm McConihe, Mr. Charles Henry Smith, Maj. Horace Jones and Mr. S. K. Brown.

Mrs. Dougherty Gives Luncheon For New Group

Mrs. Roosevelt Attends Party of Woman's Auxiliary of Boys' Club.

Mrs. Roosevelt was guest of honor yesterday at the luncheon given by Mrs. John Allan Dougherty to launch the Woman's Auxiliary of the Police Boys Club, of which the First Lady is honorary chairman. It was held in the Queen Elizabeth room of the Raleigh Hotel, where bouquets of spring flowers decorated the mantel and the center of the long dining table.

Mrs. Hugh Matthews, wife of Gen. Matthews and one of the officers of the newly formed auxiliary, wore a red frock, trimmed with a gold ornament, and a brown felt hat. Among other ladies in the company were Miss Janet Richards, wearing black with an ermine scarf at the neck; Miss Mary Howry, in navy blue with a small V-shaped vest of red and white, and a dark straw sailor; Mrs. Alexander Graham, in a green costume; Mrs. C. C. Schiffeler, in a dubonet frock and hat, who was present with Col. Schiffeler; Miss Mae Helm, wearing a black costume; Mrs. Parker, in black with a gay little violet corsage on her fur cape, and Mrs. Lloyd Biddle, in a dress of powder blue crepe.

Warren Crawfords To Live in Florida

Miami Couple in Capital on Honeymoon Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Crawford, who are in Washington on their wedding trip, will return to Miami shortly, where they will make their home. Their marriage took place February 12 in that city, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David B. Newsome, the Rev. Daniel Iverson officiating.

The bride is the former Mrs. Jeannette Hocking, of Washington. She had as her only attendant Mrs. Emily L. Felt, and Mr. Newsome was best man. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Fraser, Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Pickering.

The MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn.

The Diplomatic Ride at Fort Myer yesterday was certainly a ride with a Capital R. The Army really did itself proud. Never has the show had so much excitement—with thrills and spills every two seconds.

A few whirlographs, if you please——The bugler, who continued to blow his "piece" in spite of his horse imitating a whirling dervish——

Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. Wilbur J. Carr, a most enthusiastic and appreciative honor guest, and the first to rise whenever a "stand-up" was in order——

The new and very differently intricate battery drill, scudding wheels, flying dirt and thudding hoofs——

The tandem act with the horses a bit too peppy and therefore an accident—the audience gasping and rising as one to see just what had happened—and minutes later learning that injuries to horse and rider were not as serious as they had seemed——

The usual rodeo ride with the horses surprising even their riders with real genuine bucking and cake walking——

Col. John A. Crane smiling and his eyes twinkling as Senator Joe Robinson, insisted upon calling him "general"—and listeners wondering what could be done to make the promotion official——

The deafening round of applause when George Millholland announced over the loud speaker that Sergt. William Lawrence, who has led his troop's thrilling act for the past 17 years, has been promoted——

And the Army, after providing such a splendid afternoon's entertainment, having the thoughtfulness to bring in some specially constructed board walks, plop them down in the ring near the grandstands, open up special secret doors disclosing steps, and enable the Ambassadors, Ministers and their families to descend to their warm limousines without going out into the bitter cold.

* * * *

The Ecuadorian official family seems to be in a perpetual state of comings and goings. No sooner does Mme. Alfaro, wife of the ambassador, decide to go South for a few weeks of basking in the sunshine than everyone else starts moving about. It is almost like watching a chess board equipped with electrically propelled chessmen. The envoy himself is enjoying a visit with his sons at West Point amid the surroundings he knew and loved so well when he was a cadet, but will return to his loudly demanding desk Monday.

The Mantilla-Ortegas took a few days off last week to play around in Gotham. At night they "did" the theaters and night clubs (they are quite the authorities on places to go in New York), and in the daytime went shopping—Lila to do the actual buying while Carlos patiently and good-naturedly waited and played audience to tryings-on of hats, coats and frocks.

Now, it seems that Adolfo Paez, after remaining here and keeping the home fires burning, has caught the travel mania and is to up and leave, the middle of March, for California. Los Angeles, where he went to school, will have the larger share of his visit, while San Francisco, where he has not a few friends, also will be in the itinerary.

With all of the traveling, it will be summer before we have all of the people of the embassy back in town at the same time.

Who should be in an olive green coupe and steadily watching the traffic light at Twelfth and E streets but Mac Goodwin, tall blonde and ruddy complexioned son of Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin.

* * * *

Luncheon time yesterday seemed extremely popular with those who "would a shopping go." In one of the larger stores on F street we saw Priscilla Robb—starting to get her trousseau, no doubt—and a trio of friends. She had on a russet-colored tweed suit with a beige sweater, over which she wore a light topcoat. Her dark-brown velour sports hat boasted a perky little feather on one side.

Ran into a classmate of her's not ten minutes later—Peggy Olney, Peggy, who hasn't changed much since school days except to grow taller, had on a hunter's green swagger coat and a wee black faille silk turban.

Continuing on our tour we next spied Mary Ellen Cremen, also in a dark green topcoat, a good looking belted model, with which she wore a tailored hat of thistle colored felt, the brim turned up in the back and down over her eyes. She is one young miss who keeps absolutely to herself all bits concerning her forthcoming marriage to Jim Carr. But we are led to believe that it will be before so very long because—when Mary Ellen turned thumbs down on the mad social whirl here and entertained more serious thoughts about typing, bookkeeping she found herself a desk in her father's office and has been at it ever since. Now, however, she is about to retire from business this month or next—so-o-o-o-o-o—.

When Jose Maria de Lasa, of the Cuban Embassy, has a seige with old Mr. Flu he is not one of those who begins madly dashing from party to party as soon as he is about again. The other day when he made one of his first reappearances he was asked whether or not he was going to a certain very large and enjoyable party to which he had been invited. The young diplomat smiled and sadly shook his head. "Alas," he said, "when I get there I will be having such a good time that I will not know when to go home and will stay on until perhaps 3 or 4 o'clock—that would not be good for me and my recent sickness—so, I shall stay at home."

That is certainly one way of looking at it, but how many of us would be as sensible?

Canon and Mrs. Raymond L. Wolven, son-in-law and daughter of the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, and Mrs. Freeman, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stone, at Mount Pleasant, S. C., for the past week, will return to Washington tomorrow.

Mrs. Stone is the former Mrs. Newbold Noyes, of Washington, and Mr. Stone was at one time attached to the Canadian legation in this city. They have taken a noted plantation in Mount Pleasant which is quite near Charleston, and both have become interested in the culture of peanuts for which their plantation and others in the region are quite famous. Mrs. Stone's mother, Mrs. Thomas Ewing, formerly of Washington and now of New York, has also acquired a historic home in the vicinity of her daughter's, Boone Hall, which formerly belonged to Charles Coates Pinckney.

Canon and Mrs. Wolven motored to South Carolina and on their return did some leisurely sight seeing of historic places en route.

Miss Connolly went as an observer with the United States delegation to the Pan-American Peace Conference but she remained in South America after the delegation had returned home. She enjoyed a six weeks' tour of the Argentine and the Chilean Lake country. She was a frequent guest at the United States Embassy in Buenos Aires and describes it as one of the most beautiful of American embassies abroad.

When Miss Connolly arrived by plane at San Diego, Chile, she was entertained by many Americans there, including Ambassador and Mrs. Hoffman Phillip. She was also invited to luncheon by Baroness Von Schoen, American wife of the German Ambassador to Chile. Her hostess was enjoying a swim in the embassy pool when she arrived. Baroness Von Schoen was formerly Miss Katherine Birney, of Washington, sister of Mrs. Harold Walker and Mrs. Frederick R. Finkensteadt.

Another interesting place Miss Connolly visited was Arequipa, Peru, where she was a guest at Quinta Bates, the mecca for all South American tourists, where Mrs. Joanna Bates, an American woman, the widow of a Peruvian, is affectionately known to the whole countryside as "Tia." Mrs. Bates was formerly Miss Joanna Monteith, of New York, and her father was head of the Chilean railroads.

Among distinguished names to be found on the guest book at Quinta Bates are those of the Duke of Windsor, when he was Prince of Wales; Gen. Pershing and others who visited South America and heard of "Tia's" vivid personality and the charm of the long rambling house within view of three gorgeous volcanoes.

And to cap the climax of her trip, Miss Connolly's delightful shipmates on her return to the United States from Lima, Peru, were the Ambassador of Argentina and Mme. Espil, returning to Washington.

* * * *

By the way, our Ambassador to Argentina and Mrs. Alexander Weddell are on their way to this country and will come to Washington for a few days after which they will go to Virginia House in Richmond, the ancient Warwick Priory they brought over, brick by brick, from England. They had the house rebuilt in their priory gardens in Richmond and it is one of the show places of the Virginia city now.

To Give Birthday Party.

Mrs. Jed Johnson, wife of Representative Johnson, is entertaining at a party for their daughter, Jedolyn Jean, at the Congressional Club this afternoon on her ninth birthday. There will be about 30 mothers and children of the Congressional set among the guests.

Mrs. T. M. McAlpin has arrived from her home in New York City for a visit of several days, and during her stay will be at the Wardman Park Hotel.

SOCIAL NOTES

Mr. Constantin Fotitch, Minister of Yugoslavia, is at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in New York, where he is spending a few days.

Mr. Ernest G. Draper, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, and Mrs. Draper, of Washington, are at the Ambassador Hotel in New York City. They will return to Washington early next week.

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Albert Kenner will be hosts at a large dinner party this evening at the Army and Navy Country Club when their guests of honor will be Col. and Mrs. Alexander Cooper, who will leave soon for their new post in Puerto Rico.

Miss Florence Harris will leave today for New York, where she will remain until Thursday.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Having arrived at the ripe old age of 25 and having rambled along by myself for the past five years in the proverbial "rolling stone" manner, I had reached a stage of foolish optimism in which I believed there were few of the complexities of existence with which I was not familiar. But now it definitely appears that I have entered into a sort of Gotterdamerung, or the dusk of my particular gods. In other words, I have fallen deeply and sincerely in love and am experiencing a sort of emotional vivisection in which I am the human guinea pig. I am writing in the hope that you will give me a bit of the same, sensible advice you have given so many others.

About eight months ago I met in my field of work a young lady to whom I was attracted from the beginning and at once began to see her as often as I possibly could. We saw plays and concerts—which both of us greatly enjoy—we had dinners at the nicest hotels in town, I sent her roses several times a week and corsages whenever we were going out together. In other words, I "rushed" her to the limit of my pocketbook.

• • • •

Shortly I found myself madly in love with her. I waited until recently to declare myself, until I was sure of my mind and heart. I found she had beauty not only of face but of character; that she is kindly, sympathetic and decent—everything that good breeding implies. Then I told her, and the result was bitter disappointment and the violent death of dreams. I swallowed my feelings as best I could while she told me her own particular tale of woe.

• • • •

She had fallen in love with a man of alien traditions and the romance was bitterly contested by both her family and his for nearly a year. When she could bear the situation no longer she decided to leave her home and come to Washington to work, which she did. A short time ago the man she loves was seriously injured in an accident which just about completed the job of breaking her heart. He has since recovered but the accident combined with the unhappy love affair has affected him so adversely that he is simply drifting with the tide, making no real effort to regain his equilibrium and hold on life.

• • • •

Being fundamentally a dreamer, my own hopes and aspirations suffered a severe setback on hearing her story, but at the same time my principal reaction was to love her the more deeply. Although suffering that jealousy, which is so much a part of any man's love, I decided to forswear personal considerations and do what I could to help her find other pleasures and amusements . . .

• • • •

As a result, a few weeks ago I found myself in a rather alarming state of mind. I was actually living only for the few brief hours I could spend with her. The remainder of the time—in my office or, at night, in some theater waiting until I could be weary enough to go to bed and sleep. The only thing I did not want was time to think, as thinking in such cases usually leads to self-pity and that I wish to avoid. The other day I enrolled for a night course in a local university, thinking this may be a help.

• • • •

Miss Haworth, I have done everything in my power to win this girl's love. She has always liked me and freely admits it, but it ends there. If only I could receive one word of encouragement I should be perfectly willing to go on giving her everything within my power. And yet I want her to be honest with me. Devotion unrequited seems very noble and picturesque in books, but in actual life it isn't much fun.

• • • •

I have talked to several friends and they have suggested that I stop making a fool of myself. I may be doing this, but I love her desperately and I can't fool myself about that. I know, of course, that if I stop seeing her I will eventually recover, but I hate the thought of such a thing and she is really worth waiting for. Will you please give me your opinion of the whole question? Should I continue seeing her or would I be wiser in breaking off the relationship?

DESPONDENT.

The Thing to Do.

DEAR DESPONDENT: I consider it very likely that the girl has grown by this time far more dependent upon your devotion and companionship than she realizes. I believe if you were to drop out of life for no more than a fortnight that you might find her attitude had undergone a marked change in the interval; you might find her regarding you with a quickened interest that amounted to the beginning of love. That is, of course, if she hasn't other equally attractive and ardent suitors to occupy her time and thoughts.

• • • •

As a matter of fact, there is no better technique for arousing interest in an emotionally indifferent person of the opposite sex than to follow up a protracted period of fervent pursuit with an interval of silence, absence and indifference. I suggest you get another girl, no matter how little interested in her you may be, and shower upon her the identical attentions you have been giving this one. The effort will do you good and in the warmth of the substitute young lady's appreciation you will find the time passing much more quickly and pleasantly than it does when you insist on hugging your misery to your uncompanioned breast.

• • • •

You may hesitate to follow this advice lest you hurt your beloved's feelings, or place in question the sincerity of your erstwhile protestations of desperate, undying devotion. Yet, you can only fix her thought on you, as against the other man, by doing the inexplicable and unexpected. It is human nature not to prize very highly what can be had for the taking, just as it is human nature to yearn most ardently for the thing just out of reach. Perhaps if the girl hadn't met opposition in her earlier romance she would have outgrown it effortlessly in the course of time. Perhaps if you hadn't found her so remote in spirit from the very beginning you would never have fallen so profoundly in love with her, nor idealized her qualities so intensely.

• • • •

Having done everything within your power to win her love by the direct approach you can well afford to try the indirect approach. If you have endeared yourself to her in any way; afforded her any consolation, any pleasure, any forgetfulness, your trump card is to give her time and opportunity for discovering just how insupportable life would be without your tender, solicitous devotion. If a period of absence produces no change of heart in her, the only solution is a final, resolute break. And if that must be, don't frustrate yourself by supposing, erroneously, that you will never love as well again. We love according to our individual capacity to love, rather than because of the absence or presence of certain qualities in the beloved.

Foundations Now Designed to Prevent Waistline Bulges.

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

IN THIS SEASON when it isn't your suit but your suits that count, the smoothness of your foundation is of utmost importance. The new suit girdles, built up in the front to prevent unsightly bulges, and slim of hipline to give you a slenderizing silhouette to cope with the figure-revealing skirts and short jackets, are a boon to the fastidious woman.

Man-tailored suits vie with those of soft, feminized lines, and the soft, casual versions, fashioned of wool crepes and loosely woven tweeds, are steadily gaining in popularity. Following the trend for femininity in the entire wardrobe, two and three-piece tailored suits are appearing with softly rolled revers, flowing cuffs, rounded jacket and topcoat borders, feminized collars, novelty buttons and exotic fastenings.

The suit influence has become so widespread, that not only are the suits themselves stealing the show for spring and summer, but suit-frocks have also made their appearance, in numerous interpretations. It has grown to be a far-reaching trend where suits emulate frocks and vice versa! Aside from the monotone suit ensembles, feminine color combinations, such as navy with poudre blue, "parlor pink" with mulberry, beige with black, are also much in evidence.

A three-piece, soft tailored suit by Helen Cookman, and the correct type of girdle to accompany it.

CAPITAL MANNERS

By Margaret Wallace.

IT IS NOT only official women and those who engage in the activities of fashionable society in the Nation's Capital who have their calling problems. Many business women and housewives who want to adhere to good form in contact with their friends are puzzled over just when to call and not to call and how soon to return a call.

One housewife, who has just come to Washington with her husband and family, states the problems of many others in a letter to this department. She writes:

"Dear Miss Wallace: We have just moved to a Washington suburb from another city. We have purchased our home and it is nicely furnished and, of course, we want to make friends. We have a daughter just out of college who intends to obtain employment and we have a son who is a freshman in a Washington college. Some of our neighbors have called and left cards. Many of the cards were left by the young people in the neighborhood who evidently want to know my son and daughter.

Wants Social Life.

"I have no desire to mingle in so-called fashionable society and we do not belong to the official circle, but I do want my son and daughter to enjoy some kind of social life and have friends. My husband and myself are willing to give some parties for our children and also want to entertain the older people of the neighborhood.

"How soon should I return the calls of those who have called on us? Would it be proper to take my son and daughter with me even if cards have not been left for them? Do you think it would be proper for me to have a day at home and serve tea to those who call? Would it be proper for me to ask those I meet at church and a club I have been asked to join to visit me on my day at home?

"If I am at home when callers come should I see them even if it is not my day at home. I have been told that people who leave cards do not expect to see those on whom they call."

The problem of a mother with a young son and daughter in a new city and new neighborhood is one that has to be carefully considered. While this woman makes it very plain that she is not a social climber in that she has no desire to enter fashionable society, she must also be careful to let the people of her new neighborhood make the first overtures. Otherwise she may become branded as an intrusive type of woman.

She and her family should go to a neighborhood church and then, of course, she can expect a call from the rector and his wife and others who look after this part of the social life of the congregation. Invitations probably will come to every member of the family to join in church activities. She is also wise to join a woman's club. If any one expresses a desire to call on her or any member of the family, it is quite proper to say, "We shall be pleased to see you. We are always home on Monday afternoon and are usually in in the late afternoon other afternoons." The day at home can be written on the calling cards. It is a graceful act to serve tea to callers.

Calls on neighbors should be returned promptly within a week, or at the most, ten days. It is always proper for any of the younger members of the family to accompany the older members in paying calls.

However, the wise mother will not attach her daughter or her son too much to her in making new social contacts in a neighborhood. It is usually better policy to allow the young people to return the calls made on them alone and then for the parents to call on the parents at another time.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Medical Myths.

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Patients frequently say to doctors, "Look at my tongue and tell me what I ought to do about it."

In the old days, the first thing the doctor did was to look at your tongue, usually before he even felt your pulse, but little importance is attached to this examination by the modern physician.

"A coated tongue" does not mean anything at all. Some people have an excesssive accumulation of debris in between the small papillae of the tongue, but this has no bad significance. A coated tongue certainly does not indicate a need for a cathartic. The only two things that the modern physician learns from an objective study of the tongue are (1) as to wheather it is moist or dry, indicating or not a state of dehydration of the body, and (2) atrophy of the tongue, which occurs in pernicious anemia.

I saw an old Chinese book of medicine the other day which was entirely devoted to diagnosis by means of the tongue, with crude colored diagrams of different tongues. It is probable that in China, where food deficiency is common, a study of the tongue is of more importance than in the west. And probably in earlier days, when food deficiency was common in this country, a study of the tongue was of more importance than it is today.

The habit of looking at the tongue at every examination persisted until the last generation, but modern physicians have practically given it up.

Another myth in circulation is the silver-plate-in-the-skull defect. Every layman apparently believes that the use of a silver plate to replace a defect from skull fracture or trephining operation is a regular procedure. Personally, I never saw anybody with a silver plate in the skull. I never saw an operation in which this was done. I never heard of anybody making a silver plate to put into the skull.

New Cottons, Linens Appear Like Woolens

Paris (U.P.).—Some of the new cotton and linen thread dresses look like woolen tweeds and are knitted in tailored, fitted suits for spring and summer wear. These lightweight suits, worn with lacy blouses knitted with an open stitch, are suggested particularly for travel and for town wear. Two and three contrasting colors often are brought into these ensembles.

Dinner and evening gowns of hand-knit material are usually made in pastel colors or "off shades." Knitted in natural silk, the gowns have the sheen of satin.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Feb. 26.

ANTOINE THE GREAT has come and gone, leaving us in our usual girlish twitter. Know Antoine? He is by common consent the greatest hair-architect of our era—what Rodin was to the human form devine, Antoine of Paris is to the human female thatch. And at a farewell champagne party hurled in his honor. The Great Man told me something that startled me faintly.

ALICE HUGHES.

"Heretofore," said the genius of the skull, "I have come to America bringing my Parisian conception of the coiffure. This year, for the first time, I find the hair-dos of American women so chic and tasteful that I am going home to teach some of them to Frenchwomen."

Unless you know the snooty attitude of the average French Stylist in any medium, you may not comprehend what a revolutionary crack this is. It is as though the Mississippi had suddenly decided, with one of its customary whims of iron, to leave the Gulf and start flowing right back up toward Cairo.

• • • •

His latest contribution to the art of hair dressing, which he showed us at the party, consists of a few coiffures to be worn with what he calls "hussy hats"—meaning those worn so far off the face that all the hair is exposed to the public gaze. For these he does the locks in soft, babyish curls.

• • • •

This Antoine is an astounding bird—one of the greatest living exquisites. His house in Paris is a show place of black and silver, and nearly all the furniture, including the master's bed, is of glass. He's turned the place over to the Paris Exposition during the coming summer. And believe me, they should charge a few francs just to look at it.

• • • •

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Climbing about the Ile de France in the cold dawn to say howdy and welcome home to a lot of my fashion friends back from the Paris showings, I learned that Ruth Chatterton was aboard, and rushed off to say a modest word of greeting. But a French maid guarded the portal firmly, saying that Miss Chatterton was far too busy to see anyone. So we all drifted away, not caring much. Wonder if Ruthie will care when the day comes when no reporters come next or near her stateroom, but chase some later glamour girl through the corridors?

• • • •

Marcia Davenport has a fine piece about Kirsten Flagstad in one of the national monthlies. One of Marcia's best points about the wonderous Scandinavian, it seems to me, is that her marvelous poise and calm may be due to her devotion to her home and husband, and because of this devotion the thought of retirement is no bogey, but a positive pleasure to contemplate. Thus, no heartbreaks for Kirsten the Great, whose world fame came after 40 . . .

I saw Nita Naldi (remember the slumbrous Nita of silent movie days?) at Le Mirage the other night, and noted with pleasure and surprise that the retired star, still a stunner, had shed countless pounds. In the past few years La Naldi had grown—let's not mince words—terrifically fat . . .

Fun's fun, and all that, but when Revolution hits the public schools it's probably time to begin viewing with alarm. This sit-down epidemic hit a first-year German class at our Lincoln School the other day. "Too many examinations," said the very modern pupils, and so 22 of them sprawled on the floor and declined firmly to take an ordered test. Teacher Arthur Rex, very firm and tactful, talked to them like a Dutch uncle, which is no pun, and they underwent the ordeal 24 hours later . . .

• • • •

Frank Henderson, a lively socialite of the Park Avenue Brigade, has decided to build a glass house in Palm Beach—one that will keep out vulgar stares, but will admit those ducky ultra-violet rays and things. Frank and his peppy wife, Betty, are well-liked, but human habit is strong, and at least a dozen pranksome people are collecting stones. They would!

Field Study Reveals Strange Tradition

Belief that men and women born on the same day of the week should never marry is one of the strange traditions of the Paramaribo Negroes in British Guiana, according to a report of a field study issued by the Columbia University Press.

"Having been born on the same weekday — Thursday, let us say — they both have 'Thursday souls,' and this, it is believed, makes for conflict, since both derive their springs of action from the same source," says the report, prepared by Melville J. and Frances S. Herskovits, New York anthropologists. "The two may have tried to guard against this difficulty, yet the souls refuse to live together."

Sometimes, it is explained, the husband or wife may fear loss of the other's love, and in this case "tying the soul" may be resorted to as a charm to hold the drifting affection.

Keep a Youthful Figure

For spring chic give high-calory tidbits the cold shoulder. You don't want to go back to matronly bulges now that your safe and sane reducing diet has given you stream lines.

Slipping off pounds isn't hard if you follow the 1,200-calories-a-day plan — eating low-calory foods that fill and satisfy. But see how fast you swallow that 1,200-calory allotment in between-meal snacks. Chocolate soda, 375 calories; two pieces of fudge, 100; two sugar cookies, 100; a doughnut, 200.

Rich trimmings, desserts and sauces with your meals pile up your calory count alarmingly. Six olives make 100 calories; a tablespoon of mayonnaise, 100; average serving of lemon meringue pie, 450.

If you're wise you'll eat three delicious, satisfying meals that run up your daily calory count no more than a few high-calory snacks. And you'll squeeze in protective foods—butter, eggs, milk, fruits, leafy vegetables—to keep skin fresh, eyes sparkling, teeth sound while the pounds vanish.

Here's a healthful, appetizing dinner of only 409 calories: ½ cup tomato juice; 1-3 cup hamburger, broiled; ½ cup green peas; ½ small cauliflower; ¼ head lettuce with 1 teaspoon French dressing; ½ cup snow pudding; tea with lemon, or black coffee.

Reduce this safe way with the help of our 40-page booklet, "Change Your Weight for Beauty's Sake." Two weeks of delicious, slenderizing menus; calory chart of common foods. Exercises for stubborn bulges. Diets and exercises to give the scrawny woman curves.

Cooking Creates Controversy Among Culinary-Minded First Ladies of South

By Rebekah Blake.

"WHAT is the best way to fry chicken?"

This question is arousing nation-wide controversy as the result of a domestic discussion among Southern women. It all started when Mrs. E. D. Rivers, wife of the Governor of Georgia, stated that she dipped her chicken in buttermilk before frying it. Thereupon, wives of other Southern governors called their culinary frowns into play and turned thumbs down on buttermilk, each giving her own pet recipe for fried chicken, Southern style. It was discovered that there are scores of divergencies in the art of cooking the famous dish.

Mrs. Bibb Graves, wife of the Alabama Governor, does not fry her chicken in the grease of side bacon as does Mrs. George C. Peery, Virginia's first lady. Neither does she dip it in buttermilk as Mrs. Rivers does. She uses a very heavy frying pan for the cooking and keeps the flame low. On the other hand, Mrs. Graves joins with Mrs. Olin D. Johnson, wife of the Governor of South Carolina, in preferring lard for the frying. In giving her method, she says: "Dress and cut for frying and salt a two-pound chicken, placing in the ice box at least a day before cooking. When ready to fry, sprinkle with black pepper and dip in sifted flour. Drop chicken in deep, hot fat, preferably lard, using an iron or other heavy frying pan. Cover the pan and reduce the heat to medium. Do not crowd the chicken in the pan, but leave room for fat to encircle each piece. The secret of the golden brown, tender and thoroughly cooked fried chicken is the very heavy, covered frying pan kept at a moderate heat."

The Post Food Editor, seeking an official ruling on the subject, found that it doesn't matter whether you wrap the chicken in buttermilk, sweet milk, flour, cornmeal or batter. The cooking makes the main difference in the final result.

This was pointed out by Dr. Florence King, head of foods utilization of the bureau of home economics in the Department of Agriculture, to whom the question was first submitted. Dr. King, who skillfully avoided taking sides with anyone in the discussion, has this suggestion for frying chicken:

"Wrap the chicken in whatever you wish, then fry it in a mixture of butter and other fat. Don't use butter entirely. If deep fat is used, the chicken should be precooked or cut in small pieces so the inside will be well cooked. Chicken fried in deep fat has a tendency to be more dry than skillet fried chicken. Use a skillet that will evenly distribute the heat to all parts. Start the chicken in a rather hot pan then reduce the heat for thorough cooking. Do not let the fat smoke. This first cooking makes a brown crush of the flour." Dr. King prefers a three-pound bird. If larger she suggests adding a little water during the frying for more tenderness. Let the bird chill for about 24 hours after killing before cooking. This will free it from tenseness.

As Maryland is the home of Southern fried chicken, Mrs. Clarabelle Welsh, in charge of cooking and nutrition at the University of Maryland, was consulted for her ideas for preparing Maryland fried chicken. According to Mrs. Welsh,

In the second stage of frying chicken, be sure to place the meat in a hot frying pan with sufficient fat to prevent burning. The chicken is turned over once and cooked slowly until the meat is ready to fall away from the bone.

"flour is preferred, but many Maryland cooks use a thin timbale batter for wrapping the foul. Use a mixture or prepared fat and butter for frying. Deep fat is satisfactory but drys the meat. An iron skillet is used for the frying. It should be hot at first then the heat is reduced for thorough frying. A 2½-pound bird is the best for frying. Let the chicken stand in the refrigerator for about 24 hours before cooking and season with salt and pepper when it is put in the pan. Turn the meat several times when it first starts to cook to get it an even brown color all over."

Frying chickens are already in the market. If you have a small family and can't use a whole bird, you will be interested to know that chicken may now be purchased by the piece. This is a good idea, too, if everyone in your group wants a chicken leg or breast and no one wants to eat the wings. You may buy all legs if you wish. Who do you suppose gets the necks?

EGGS WITH SHRIMP SAUCE IN CROUSTADES.

Soft cook 4 eggs, put in cold water, remove shells very carefully and serve in croustades. Cover with shrimp sauce and garnish with panfried mushrooms caps.

Soft Cooked Eggs.

Put eggs in saucepan and cover with cold water. Heat gradually to simmering point, 185 F. and keep just below boiling point or over boiling water for 3 minutes.

Croustades.

Cut bread in slices 1½ inches thick, remove crusts, cut in oval shapes and remove centers, leaving a box. Brush with melted butter and brown at 350 F. or 400 F.

Shrimp Sauce.

Cook ½ pound fresh shrimp in 2 cups boiling water 15 minutes, drain, reserving stock, remove shells and intestinal vein and chop. Melt 3 tablespoons butter, add ½ cup mushrooms, chopped, and stir and cook 2 minutes. Add 3 tablespoons flour and mix well. Add 1 cup stock in which shrimps have been boiled and stir until sauce boils. Add chopped shrimps, one-third cup cream, salt and paprika to taste and color if necessary to make the sauce pink. If canned shrimps are used, drain 1 can wet shrimp and add water to liquid to make 1 cup.

Success Hinges On Personality, Says Educator

By the United Press.

Boston.—Success depends upon a good P. Q. and not I. Q., says Mrs. Beatrice Hunter Cahill, of Boston University's department of student counseling.

Mrs. Cahill says a P. Q.—Personality Quotient—is so important that without "it" the job-hunter is lost.

Future success can only be assured when personality for specific vocations is commensurate with abilities, capacities and aptitudes, she says.

Mrs. Cahill believes that a man must be master of himself before he can master others. The teaching field in particular requires social balance, because a highly neurotic teacher in the classroom is an incentive to lack of discipline, the educator says. "A teacher should be emotionally well-balanced and have a self-confident personality."

"In the insurance business many men fail because they lack a selling personality. These men should get out of contact work and into an inside office."

Many doctors devote their lives to research work because they do not have the ability to make the social contacts necessary in general practice, she says.

"Personality problems start at birth and end at death," Mrs. Cahill says. "The first adjustment is made when the pupil enters the public school system—and adjustment continues even after a satisfactory life vocation is found. An important factor and cause of unhappiness in this world is the inability to make vocational adjustments, due to personality handicaps."

"Students can't secure real life happiness," Mrs. Cahill says, "until mental ability, personality qualifications and vocational aptitudes coincide to a fair degree. Therefore, develop your personality according to the goal for which you are reaching."

Fines for Speech Errors.

Here is how one mother solved the problem of improving her young daughter's speech: She gave to the daughter an allowance of $1 a month and when ever young daughter made a gramatical error which was discovered by some member of the household, she was fined one penny. At the end of the month the fines were subtracted from her allowance.

39 of 43 Gain Poundage as Result of Test in Brooklyn.

ALL MANNERS of dieting are not healthful to a person, but properly studied diets may help you to gain or lose, as the case may be. Commuting from long distance was found to be one of the causes of excess weight, while over-eating was the commonest cause of excess among the 260 students in the annual weight control experiments of the School of Household Science and Arts of Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, according to a report by Miss Emma L. Feeney, head instructor of nutrition in the school.

Majority Show Success.

Of the members of the dietetics and institutional management classes taking part in the test, 73 were overweight and 43 were underweight at the beginning of the experiment. Sixty-one of the overweight students were able to reduce consistently from ½ to 1½ pounds a week, while 39 of the underweight students made substantial gains by following the scientific diet. By the end of the year 75 per cent of the young women who needed correction had attained normal weight. Those who were normal at the beginning kept normal throughout the year.

Miss Feeney said that no student was allowed to take part in the experiment without supervision of the family doctor.

One student who weighed 250 pounds at the beginning of the test, dieting under doctor's orders, lost 80 pounds in 44 weeks at the rate of 1 to 1½ pounds a week. One girl who had been seriously underweight gained 21 pounds and is now only three pounds below the normal weight for her age and height.

Diet Shows Results.

Though loss of weight seemed to be due to nerve strain and over-exertion brought on by overwork and worry, as well as commuting, the demonstrations proved that these conditions could be counterbalanced by diet. Underweight students were advised to increase the quantity of foods consumed and to eat easily digested foods, such as milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables. Milk at a definite time between meals and an egg milkshake before retiring at night proved very beneficial.

Overweight students, as a general rule, were found to be eating too much. Both at meals and between meals. Especially foods rich in carbohydrates, as candy and ice cream. These were eliminated from their diets and a better balance of food was attained. The quantity of food consumed was reduced very gradually.

Students taking the tests were weighed once or twice a week. Each kept a graph of her weight, noting causes of severe gains or losses. Many graphs showed decided upward trends around Christmas and Thanksgiving, and during the summer vacation.

Cabbage Is Topic For Post Recipe Award This Week

CABBAGE, homely though it may be, is an inexpensive vegetable and healthful. And you don't have to serve boiled cabbage or sauerkraut to include it in your menus.

Do you have an interesting recipe for cabbage, either raw or cooked? If you do, enter it in The Post recipe contest.

There are five cash prizes for this contest. The first is $3, the second $2, and the three remaining prizes are $1 each.

You may have a recipe for cabbage au gratin, cabbage bowl, shredded and buttered cabbage, stuffed cabbage or cabbage and carrots. Or you may prefer ten-minute red cabbage, stuffed cabbage rolls, cole slaw or cabbage sandwiches.

Whatever your recipe is, type or write it clearly and send it to Rebekah Blake, The Post Food Editor, so she will receive it not later than Saturday noon. Be sure to copy your name and address on your recipe.

Celery Substitute.

Here's an inexpensive substitute for crisp celery. Slice succulent young carrots into thin slivers and serve them on a bed of crushed or shaved ice. This is one of the niceties of table service that has been revived, and with a modern ice refrigerator the homemaker can always have plenty of crystal clear ice on hand to use for such purposes.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

YOU'D THINK we were all the most domestic little wrens, to judge by the way we're being catered to by the manufacturers of household wares. And when you get down to it, most of us are, for all our club papers and charity bazaars. A few weeks ago we wrote about the remarkabilities of the new ranges, refrigerators and washers . . . now we're all aglow with the wonders of the smaller things that smooth a lady's homeward way. There's been a housewares fashion show at the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York recently where all the latest gadgets and utensils took their bows. Most of them are so new, they're not for sale as yet, but they'll be appearing during the coming months. Something to look forward to:

We were particularly enchanted with a broccoli steamer because we've never been such a hot broccoli cooker, but maybe we'll improve with such a clever contraption. A glass double boiler was our next choice . . . glass skillets and baking dishes we'd seen before, but there's something about a double boiler that lures us doubly.

A saucepan with markings inside to indicate various measurements struck us as a very good idea, and there's one new range with a Dutch oven compartment right in it.

The nicest idea in traveling irons was shown, a flat model less than a half-inch high, but with the same shape and size on the bottom as a big iron . . . and with just the same amount of heat. The handle folds down and the whole business packs very compactly and with much less weight to carry around than the old type of smaller traveling iron that wouldn't actually iron half so well as this one. Another wardrobe device that we liked was the slide door utility moth-proof cabinet. The front section instead of opening out like a hinge door, rolls up and down like a rolltop desk.

For the cleaning fans, there are lots of grand new things. Knee-action carpet sweepers, for instance. They're streamlined and self-adjusting to any depth of rug pile or to the bare floor, and we're sure they'd even take the cat's tail in their stride too. And then there's a mop that has a rubber ball up a little way from the mop itself . . . this you rest on a ledge and bounce . . . the mop shakes itself.

What a very nice life a lady can lead these days if she makes the most of all the household helps at her beck and call.

Every day some girl complains that she buys the best lipsticks there are available, but even the best of them don't go on smoothly. Tiny granules seem to form on the lips and the skin even peels a bit.

Perc Westmoreland, Hollywood make-up expert, comes to the rescue of all lipstick makers with the advice that it isn't the fault of the cosmetic, but the girl who uses it. In the first place the top of the lipstick should never be left off for a moment because the only rouge catches every fleck of dust and powder in the air. When the stick is applied to the lips naturally it isn't going on smoothly because of the foreign material in it.

"Also," advises Mr. Westmore, "after you have powdered your face wipe your lips off with a bit of soft tissue or you will have the same trouble with the powder on your lips causing the rouge to cake.

"Sometimes lips naturally peel because they are dry. This dry state can be quickly remedied by rubbing a little oily cream into the lips each night before retiring. Switching to an oilier lipstick might also take care of the trouble."

Gloves Now Bought To Match Costumes

Gloves aren't just something one buys in black, brown or gray any more. Either they give a sudden stab of color to a monotone costume by being vermillion or gold, or they match the costume to the famous nth degree. In the case of Alice Faye, movie actress, they match a heather-flecked tweed suit precisely because they are made from the same bolt of material as the suit.

With Glenda Farrell it's a matter of dyeing to be right. Whether her dress is georgette or taffeta she buys white gloves in the same material and has them dyed to match exactly, if they are supposed to match at all. But sometimes Glenda prefers the contrast of cherry red gloves with an Oxford gray suit.

Second Victim Of Train Crash Dies inHospital

Corbin's companion, Charles C. Shipton, 45, also an Internal Revenue Department employe, was killed instantly when their car collided with a Baltimore & Ohio express.

Joseph J. Pessagno, fireman on the train, is in Emergency Hospital suffering from cuts about the face and head. Passagno lives at 2 Seventeenth street southeast.

J. H. Shewbridge, engineer of the train, was released in the custody of the railroad company's attorney pending an inquest, the date for which has not yet been set. Shewbridge, who is 63 years old and lives in Sandy Hook, Md., was also engineer of the train which crashed against a school bus at Rockville on April 11, 1935, killing 14 children.

The car in which the two Internal Revenue men rode to their death was hurled 150 feet by the train.

Shipton's body will be sent tonight to Elizabeth, Ill., for funeral services and burial. Funeral arrangements for Corbin have not yet been made.

Shipton is survived by his wife, Mrs. Florence Shipton. He had been employed by the Government for 20 years. Corbin leaves his wife, Mrs. Beatrice R. Corbin, and an 8-year-old daughter, Marie.

Writer's Death HeldAccidental By Authorities

By the Associated Press.

Palm Spring, Calif., Feb. 26.—Mysterious aspects of the slaying of Humphrey Pearson, scenarist, were ripped aside today by Sheriff Carl Rayburn who declared it obviously was a case of accidental shooting.

"Friends of the Pearsons said that often when he drank too much he would get his gun. His wife, fearful he might kill himself, would take it away from him.

"He got the gun that night. He had been drinking. So had Mrs. Pearson. As usual, she struggled to get it away from him. They scuffled over it and the gun was discharged.

"I am convinced it was a case of accidental shooting."

The body of the 43-year-old film writer, who said when he went to the film city seven years ago that he would "beat the Hollywood writing racket" and made good his promise, was found on a bed in the Pearson home Wednesday night, a bullet through the chest.

A colored servant found Mrs. Pearson kneeling over her husband's body, sobbing and incoherent. Officers have not been able to question her.

Lack of Quorum Halts Study of Pay Rise Bill

Scheduled consideration of the McCarran pay rise bill by the Senate Civil Service Committee failed to materialize yesterday as the meeting did not draw a quorum.

Senator Bulow, the chairman, said he will poll the committee next week to ascertain whether a majority favors holding public hearings on the measure as requested by Senator McCarran.

Kidnap Death Bill Passed.

Atlanta, Feb. 26 (AP).—The Georgia House today passed, 147 to 5, a Senate bill which would make kidnaping for ransom punishable by death or life imprisonment, in the discretion of the trial jury. The bill now goes to Gov. E. D. Rivers.

'Plain' First Lady Will Be Greeted By 'Plain' Squaws

Okmulgee, Okla., Feb. 26 (AP).—To women of the Creek Indian tribe, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt "is a plain woman" — so she will be greeted by a tribal delegation of "plain" squaws when she visits the State next month.

There won't be any "dressed-up girls" in the delegation, lest the First Lady be given the impression that "all Indians have big oil wells."

Mrs. Jeanetta Tiger, of Kellyville, Okla., 70-year-old fullblooded tribal leader, made that point clear as she stood before the monthly council meeting here in the Old Square tribal capitol.

She announced Mrs. Roosevelt had asked a delegation of Creek women to meet with her when she visits Muskogee March 15.

The Federal Diary

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

A. F. G. E. President Charles I. Stengle says flatly "no comment" when someone tries to feel out his attitude about the membership application from the Social Security Union in Baltimore . . . The application is in his desk, where, some believe, it will languish long and in the end be rejected . . . Members of the A. F. G. E. Executive Council are reported already as frowning on it; the same frowns they directed toward the Washington Social Security Union, one of the five lodges ousted by the Detroit convention last year . . .

• • • •

The Baltimore union is militant and wants A. F. G. E. affiliation because of A. F. G. E. hook-up with A. F. of L. . . . It boasts about 800 members, who are expected to put up easily as much fight for A. F. G. E. membership as the five ousted lodges put up several weeks ago for reinstatement . . .

• • • •

"No comment," says Col. Stengel, who nevertheless says that if anyone knows of another rumpus a-brewing "he knows more than I do."

Good-Bys.

G. B. Dobyns, ordnance engineer—designer and developer of ordnance devices and signals in use by the Navy—got a farewell dinner last night at the La Paree on the eve of his leave-taking to enter a private enterprise . . . Employes of the Naval Ordnance Laboratory of the Navy Yard here tendered the dinner, said the good-bys and pointed out how well-liked he had been.

• • • •

A testimonial dinner was given Thursday evening for John A. Shirley, who, for 18 years, was assistant chief inspector, Bureau of Locomotive Inspection, Interstate Commerce Commission . . . Shirley left the service under terms of the retirement act . . . The dinner was given at the Columbia Country Club and Shirley was presented a handsome seal pocketbook with a substantial remembrance from his old associates . . . Commissioner and Mrs. Frank McManamy attended.

Farewells from the Government Printing Office will go to two employes tomorrow. They are Richard A. Boggerson, 1803 Oregon avenue northwest, unskilled laborer, 19 years' service . . . Samuel Fairfax, 1013 Twentieth street northwest, pressork operative, Grade 3, 29 years' service . . . Each was retired for age reason.

Attention, G-Men.

The Farm Credit Administration, almost within calling distance of the G-Men's headquarters, issues the following ominous warning: "Employes are urged not to leave valuable personal property in unlocked desks or on top of them. The National Park Service gives us unstinted co-operation in the policing of this building (which would relieve the police), but notwithstanding this fact there is always danger of petty pilfering unless care is exercised by our own employes."

Liquor: 1937 Model.

"The liquor industry since repeal . . . has been streamlined."—W. S. Alexander administrator, Federal Alcohol Administration.

But before you speculate further on whether the new streamlined liquor business also has knee action, greater leg room and built-in cylinders, let the administrator explain his conclusion:

"Science, the most up-to-date business practices and the ingenuity of man have been convoked to bring the industry in line with other modern businesses."

Stock-Taking.

A. F. G. E.'s-head people have figured both sides of the ledger and find Government employe gains since Januarv 1, 1937, about as follows:

Provision for $72,000,000 appropriation for retirement fund.

About the custodial force, Louis Ludlow, chairman, Treasury-Post-office sub-committee, House Appropriations Committee, recently said:

"In the custodial service for public buildings under the Postoffice and Treasury departments there is a group of workers that is very much underpaid, and in this bill we have allowed $200,000 to be applied to correcting this condition. This money will be distributed administratively as long overdue promotions to the lower-paid deserving custodial employes. Many of those underpaid employes have families. Life has been with them a very hard struggle, and the justice of their claims is beyond dispute."

The helping hand Resettlement Administration employes extends to the flood victims held $648. . . . The money, procured through a dance and individual subscriptions, was delivered to the Red Cross yesterday.

Well, I'll Tell You . . . . . By Bob Burns

Us human beings know there ain't nothin' dangerous about a little piece of paper blowin' in the wind, but it'll scare a horse so bad, he'll purty near break his neck gettin' away from it and maybe run away with the buggy and tear it all to pieces. That's just because the horse don't know what it is. Half the things we're afraid of are just as simple and harmless as that piece of paper after we get to understand them.

My Grandma Ledbetter had never had a sick day in her life, but finally one day, she got a bad cold and a city doctor come out from Van Buren and gave her some quinine in capsules. After she had been takin' these capsules four days, she got better and sat up in bed and started to fill her pipe.

Her daughter went over to the fireplace and got a live coal and came over and started to light Grandma's pipe and Grandma looked up and says "Get that fire away from here. Don't you know I'm all filled with cartridges?"

District Asks More Funds For Health

Approval of 2 Medical Centers for City, Unlikely.

The House sub-committee on District appropriations yesterday listened to pleas of District officials for larger public health funds and an increase in the number of municipal firemen.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland explained his request for an appropriation to build two public health centers, but the sub-committee indicated it will not go beyond the one center approved by the District Commissioners and the Budget Bureau.

Fire Chief Charles E. Schrom reiterated his plea for enough men to put the department on a three-platoon system of eight-hour shifts.

Expansion Impossible.

While the sub-committee appeared sympathetic, its members pointed out the expansion at this time is impossible as it would cost another $1,000,000 and the District government now faces a $10,000,000 deficit in the next fiscal year.

Schrom called attention to the need for more modern fire-fighting equipment, and the sub-committee appeared inclined to provide funds for this purpose.

The sub-committee also considered the estimates of the various courts whose budgets are charged to the District government. Although the commissioners had attempted to have the Federal courts transferred to the budget of the Justice Department, thus saving the District $400,000 a year, the Budget Bureau included them as heretofore in the District bill.

To Study Welfare Estimates.

Today the sub-committee will consider the estimates of the public welfare department. Elwood Street, welfare director, is prepared to ask for an increase in appropriations to modernize some of the welfare institutions, particularly the District Training School for Boys.

The sub-committee also will give consideration to the proposed abolition of the Industrial Home School on Wisconsin avenue and the transfer of the inmates to the National Training School for Boys.

While a plea probably will be made for a larger appropriation for unemployment relief, Chairman Collins has indicated that he will not approve an increase above the $1,465,000 recommended by the Budget Bureau.

Girl, 2 Men Hurt In Auto Mishaps

A fractured left leg was suffered last night by 10-year-old Laurie Jace, of 1421 Ninth street northwest, when she was struck by an automobile in front of her home.

Police said the car was driven by Esther M. Quintrille, 21, of the 2400 block Pennsylvania avenue northwest. The child, said to have darted from behind two parked automobiles, was taken to Casualty Hospital.

When his automobile collided with another car at Seventeenth and M streets northeast, Frank Cudmore, 35, of 1834 M street northeast, suffered a fractured skull. Estelle Giamori, a passenger in his car, who is 22, and lives at 1760 M street northeast, suffered possible concussion of the brain.

Both victims were taken to Casualty Hospital, where physicians said their condition was serious. The driver of the other car, according to police, was Michael Brelik, 23, of Bolling Field.

Koch Refused A. F. G. E. Seat In Third Vote

Former College Director Denies Accusation of Communism.

Voting in emphatic voices, members of the District department, American Federation of Government Employes, last night for the third time denied a seat to 29-year-old Lucien Koch, one-time director of Commonwealth College, Mena, Ark. The vote was 87 to 37.

For the first time Koch, hard-chinned and with an unruly shock of sandy hair, spoke formally in defense of his record at Commonwealth College—a record investigated by the Arkansas General Assembly in 1935. Transcripts of the inquiry record were distributed by the A. F. G. E. last night and formed the basis for questioning of Koch after a ten-minute speech in which he declared loudly and with hand gesticulation:

Swears Loyalty.

"I swear to you I am not a Communist—I swear to you I am loyal to America."

Back in the hall someone rose, looked at Koch and said:

"Please turn to page two of this transcript. It refers to your views on religion. Tell us if you believe in God."

"I am a member of the Presbyterian Church," Koch answered, "but if you mean a single person who created and controls the world, then I cannot follow you." He said he believed in many of the things the churches do.

Koch is an economist in the Labor Department here and was offered the district body as a delegate by Labor Lodge, No. 12, A. F. G. E. He was seated for several weeks, then came up for re-election. About this time, Liberty Magazine published an article dealing with certain alleged radical doings at Commonwealth College and Koch was voted out of his seat.

"Highly Regarded."

Twice since, the lodge has called the issue and each time Koch was voted out. Lodge spokesmen said he was "highly regarded" among his Labor Department associates. Koch, given 10 minutes to state his case, dwelt on his record in Arkansas.

He said he was active out there in organizing the share croppers and this, he contended, aroused some of the leading planters. Then he declared his loyalty to the American flag and swore he had no communistic leaning.

The meeting hall, in Hamilton Hotel, was packed with men and women and dense with smoke. The first vote, by "aye" and "no," was disputed by Koch adherents and the individual recount brought Koch's third defeat by 50 votes.

Lodge members said: "We are disappointed."

Prevention More Important Than Correction, Mrs. Roosevelt Says at Luncheon of Newly-Formed D. C. Women's Auxiliary.

Mrs. Roosevelt headed a list of speakers emphasizing this point yesterday at a luncheon given by Mrs. John Allan Dougherty at the Raleigh Hotel for the women helping to launch the newly organized women's auxiliary of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club.

As honorary chairman of the auxiliary, Mrs. Roosevelt expressed the hope that women who are taking part in it would take advantage of their opportunity to get acquainted with members of the boys' clubs. She recalled that some of her most refreshing contacts in New York had come through her association with members of similar organizations and mentioned that her grandfather started the first newsboys club in New York.

"Crime can be prevented more effectively through these organizations than through any other medium," she continued. "We owe it to our young people— particularly the underprivileged ones—to give them the opportunity that comes with work of this kind."

In a brief speech that preceded introductions of Mrs. Roosevelt and the other honor guests, Mrs. Dougherty, chairman of the auxiliary, stressed that "It is easier to go forward with youth than backward with adults. What you can do to prevent crime is much more important than what you can do to correct it," she declared.

This opinion was borne out in a brief talk by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of the Metropolitan Police. Juvenile delinquency has been reduced materially in sections of the city served by the police boys' clubs, he said. On February 22, 1934, about 200 boys applied for membership when the initial unit was formed in the Fifth Precinct. Today Washington has four clubs with a membership of 2,228 boys, and plans are already under way for a fifth club.

"The woman's auxiliary will, I am confident, be an extremely valuable aid toward helping our work—a work that in each section of the city where it has been started has brought about a noticeable reduction in juvenile delinquency," Maj. Brown said. "I am convinced that as the boys' clubs continue to grow crime will decrease proportionately. I would like to see the work carried on in every precinct of the city. In my opinion, it can be of extraordinary value in keeping our boys out of penal institutions."

Although Mrs. Dougherty at the beginning of the program averred that the woman's auxiliary was "starting from scratch," she corrected the remark later to the effect that "we have $765 in the bank for two dormitories in which our work will be carried on." This money, she explained, had been donated by Mrs. Henry L. Doherty, of New York, who was an honor guest at the luncheon, and Mrs. Thomas Phillips, wife of the former Representative from Pennsylvania. Mrs. Doherty is also an honorary vice chairman of the auxiliary. Other officers, in addition to Mrs. Dougherty, who is chairman of the organization, are Miss Mae Helm, vice president, and Mrs. Hugh Matthews, treasurer.

Other guests of honor at the luncheon were James E. Colliflower, president of the Police Boys Club; John A. Remon, chairman of managers of the organization, and Sergt. John E. Scott, director.

Members of the woman's auxiliary committees include Miss Janet Richards, publicity; Mrs. William Graham, games; Mrs. Parker West, food; Miss Mae Helm, education; Mrs. Lloyd Biddle, supplies; Mrs. Falk Harmel, social service; Miss Mary Howry, dancing; Miss Elizabeth Howry, music; Mrs. Ernest Brown, camp and band; Mrs. Frances Northcross, cooking, and Mrs. Thomas Armat, books.

Sir Willmott Talks To Church Group

Calling the position of the individual in modern society an "extraordinary confusion," Sir Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent for the London Times, last night declared that only by application of the true principles underlying Christianity and democracy can the problems that surround us be solved.

Closing his talk with a quotation from Ralph Waldo Emerson, he said, "If you love and serve men you can never by any device or stratagem escape the remuneration."

Dunbar Players Give Comedy by Raphaelson

"Accent on Youth," a comedy in three acts, by Samson Raphaelson, was presented last night by the Dunbar Players, in the auditorium of the Dunbar High School, with Arthur Owen Waller in the role of Stephen Gaye. James W. Jones as Dickie Reynolds; Helen Louise Sparks as Linda Brown, and Mabel Jones Freeman as Genevieve Lang. The play was presented under direction of Gertrude Parthenia McBrown.

Others in the cast were Clarence Jacobs, Thomas Reid, Beatrice Martin, Lois M. Jones, L. Clement Speed, Nathaniel King, Cecil Patrick and Vivian Collier Douglass. Electrical effects were by Fred Pelham.

Exposition Bill Signed.

President Roosevelt signed yesterday a joint resolution providing for participation by the United States in the International Exposition of Paris, 1937. The measure carried an appropriation of $150,000.

Red Rider Parley Delayed by Black

A conference on the Senate and House bills to repeal and amend, respectively, the "red rider" was delayed further yesterday because of the expected absence next wek of Senator Black, chairman of the Senate Committee on Education and Labor.

Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, called on Black and asked that a meeting be arranged for next Tuesday. Senator Black informed him he would be unable to participate in a conference before week after next as he will be out of the city.

No conference could be held this week on account of the absence of Representative Short (Republican), of Missouri.

Gen. Brant Assigned To Langley Field, Va.

Brig. Gen. Gerald C. Brant, Army Air Corps, has been assigned to command of the second wing, General Headquarters Air Force, stationed at Langley Field, Va., according to yesterday's Army orders. He succeeds Brig. Gen. H. C. Pratt, who is relinquishing that station to command the Air Corps Tactical School at Maxwell Field, Ala.

Gen. Brant's present position, commanding the third wing of G. H. Q. Air Force, stationed at Barksdale Field, La., is being taken by Brig. Gen. Frederick L. Martin. Gen. Martin previously was on duty at Wright Field, Ohio.

Committees In Symphony Drive Chosen

750 Will Participate in Campaign Set for March 10-18.

Organization of a staff of 750 volunteers to lead the campaign for $110,000 to sustain the National Symphony Orchestra for another year was announced yesterday by Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, the general chairman.

Committee leaders, moving to open an intensive drive March 10, said they will complete their personnel enlistment within the next few days and announced preliminary instruction meetings for each solicitation group.

The campaign organization, according to Mr. Howe, consists of 16 committees. Three of these are charged with handling preliminary preparations, five will carry on solicitation among organized groups, and seven will conduct the general city-wide solicitation.

Rubel Heads Publicity.

A publicity committee under L. E. Rubel already is functioning, and a speakers' committee, headed by W. W. Wheeler, is ready to get under way. C. Melvin Sharpe is director of the prospect committee, the third unit assigned to advance preparation and preliminary education.

The special gifts committee is headed by Thomas P. Morgan, jr., who will have the assistance of Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss and L. Corrin Strong as vice chairmen. John E. Parker is chairman and Frederick P. H. Siddons vice chairman of the men's business committee. A corresponding committee for women is headed by Mrs. Oliver Strunk, chairman, and Mrs. Foster Adams, vice chairman.

Mrs. Milton King will lead the civic committee with Mrs. Armistead Peter 3d, and Mrs. Benjamin W. Thoron, vice chairman. The Junior League committee is being organized by Mrs. William Calhoun Sterling, chairman, and Mrs. John F. Foy, vice chairman.

Guild Committee.

The other two general solicitation groups are the Orchestra Guild committee, of which Mrs. Charles Bittinger is chairman, and a suburban committee, headed by Mrs. Edwin B. Parker and Mrs. Robert LeFevre as co-chairmen.

The campaign will be conducted through the eight-day period of March 10 to 18.

Unions Bars Concert.

Lynchburg, Va., Feb. 26.—A program by the National Symphony Orchestra of Washington to be presented at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, March 6, has been canceled. Dean C. Clement French said demands had been made that the college employ union labor when road attractions were presented at the school.

"This was to be one of the numbers on the annual fine arts program which is given for the benefit of the college community.

"The secretary of the local stage hands union has demanded that the college engage members of his union. The only need for such service would be to turn on lights in the auditorium and to arrange chairs on the stage.

"To this demand the college officials were not willing to yield and, as a result, the appearance of the orchestra has been prevented by action of the national officers of the union."

Cappel "Surprised."

C. C. Cappel, manager of the National Symphony, said he was "surprised" to learn the orchestra would be deprived use of the hall.

"We played in the same auditorium last year and the orchestra was received so enthusiastically that we were immediately invited to return this season," the manager said. "A contract was signed without any thought of an auditorium problem. I was taken by surprise when national union officials informed me the Randolph-Macon hall had been blacklisted, and that our musicians, all of whom are union men, would not be permitted to play in it."

Cappel said the cancellation meant "a substantial loss" to the orchestra association, as it is now too late to fill in an empty date on the symphony's tour.

Hans Kindler, National Symphony conductor, and the orchestra's 80 musicians were to play in Lynchburg on one stop of a week's tour through the South.

F. B. I. Checks Man Held Here In Mattson Case

A man who admitted he resembled pictures and descriptions of the Mattson kidnaper, but added that the past four years of his life have been spent in San Antonio, Tex., was being investigated by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation last night.

He registered in Gallinger Hospital, where he was taken as a patient by police yesterday, as Roland Davis, about 30, no definite address. He was in a highly nervous condition, physicians said.

Police took him to the hospital after a taxi driver had told them he had a man who seemed quite ill in his car. He was travel worn and had only a few small coins in his pocket, police said.

Davis asserted that he was a former pugilist, and that he was hitchhiking from Texas to New York when he was picked up here.

Several weeks ago, he admitted, he was held in Alabama because of his likeness to the suspected slayer of the Mattson boy. He was released, however.

The last time he was on the Pacific Coast or anywhere near Tacoma, Wash., where the child was abducted, was in 1932, Davis said. His record was being checked carefully.

Soviet Counsel Lauds Pushkin At Howard U.

Incident to the world-wide celebration of the centenary of the birth of Alexander Pushkin, a meeting memorializing the Russian poet was held yesterday in Rankin Chapel at Howard University, under auspices of the Stylus Club, the Howard Union and the Moorland room group. Tributes were paid the poet by Constantine Umansky, counsel of the Russian Embassy, Eugene Holmes, Sterling A. Brown and Ruby Kendrick.

M. Umansky expressed gratification that Howard University should join in the celebration, which has extended throughout the year in the Soviet Union, and the hope that more of the works of Pushkin might be published in the English language. Discussing Pushkin as one of the "advanced great minds of his generation," he said:

"As Shakespeare is to England, Goethe to Germany, Voltaire to France, and Dante to Italy, so is Pushkin to Russia of the present day. During the past few years more copies of his works have been published and distributed in Russian than were those of the Bible in three centuries previous. The poet has not been so well known, because his own people, by enforced illiteracy, could not know him. More recently he has come into his own."

Sterling Brown, professor of English, discussed Pushkin as a Negro of Abyssinian descent, as a literacy force, and as a force for liberalism. As a Negro he contrasted his life with that of the elder Dumas, proclaiming him more of a national figure than was the versatile Frenchman, and nearer to the psychologic realism of today.

The influence of Pushkin in the beginning of the Russian operatic tradition, and the indebtedness of Tschaikowsky, Rachmaninoff and Stravinsky to him, were traced by Dr. Holmes. He showed the effect of the poet's satire upon the Romantic period of world literature, and gave illustrations of new literary phenomena created by him as a Russian cultured development.

Representing the Stylus Club, Ruby Kendrick read four poems in the English translation—"I've Lived to Bury My Desires," "The Freedom Seed," "Lovely Youth," and "Unto Myself I Reared a Monument."

Al Nesensohn, Acme News Service, was chosen vice president, and Harry-Van Tine, International News Service, secretary-treasurer.

Court Balks Power Curb, Says Thomas

The Supreme Court has "hamstrung" the country's power commissions, Norman Thomas, Presidential candidate of the Socialist Party, told the League for Industrial Democracy last night at a banquet at the National Press Club.

After asserting three-fifths of the power industry is controlled by three economic groups, Thomas said:

"This concentration has not been along the lines of an engineering efficiency but of financial manipulation. It has been achieved through a system of pyramiding which has piled holding company upon holding company until not even the creators of the structure can explain it without charts."

Commissions 'Political."

"The State regulatory commissions are largely political and the pay is not very attractive to able men. The commissions are aware that their economic future is brightest when they win the favor of the utilities sufficiently to get such good jobs as they have seen their predecessors in office acquire when their terms were done.

"The public suffers because the commissions generally conceive of their duties as judicial and act more or less as courts. Before them as courts the corporations appear with expert staffs such as the public or even the States cannot improvise.

"As if these difficulties were not enough, the Supreme Court has hamstrung the commissions by a series of decisions in which in the name of the due process of law clause of the fourteenth amendment, the Supreme Court has tried to set down values, or the principles of determining values, which every rate decision must protect.

"At no point has the court encroached more disastrously upon a field in which it is not competent and in which it has had no consistent principle except tender regard for property rights."

National Fight Urged.

Representative Thomas Amlie (Progressive), of Wisconsin, told members of the league that their fight for public ownership of power plants never would be won until it is waged on a national basis.

What is needed, Amlie said, is a strong centralized organization to direct the fight. Municipalities fighting alone, he said, would never get anywhere.

Representative W. D. McFarlane (Democrat), Texas, told the gathering that its fight with the power trust was at the crossroads. He added:

"While TVA and other Government yardsticks have been tremendously successful in demonstrating how cheaply electric current may be produced for less than one-half per cent per kilowatt, the chairman of the board, Dr. Morgan, wants to compromise with the power trust, and urges acceptance of the power trust's latest baby—their power pooling arrangement whereby Government power lines would be combined with private power lines—thus destroying any chance to adequately show how cheaply power is being produced and distributed to the consumers under Government yardstick plants. We must fight to stop any such further power pooling arrangements."

Tells of SEC Meeting.

McAlister Coleman, in a satirical speech, told how the power trust functioned in his home State of New Jersey, and Paul Ward, Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun and of The Nation, told of "covering" a meeting of the Securities and Exchange Commission, where Harrison Williams told how he pyramided $2,072,000 to $800,000,000.

"Now," said Ward, "I can understand how it happens that Mrs. Harrison Williams is the best-dressed woman in the world."

Charity Ball Planned.

At its last meeting the International Geneva Association of Hotel, Club and Restaurant Executives and Employes, elected J. M. Burmester chairman of a charity ball at the Raleigh Hotel, April 11.

Moore Describes Modern Japan At Geographic Society Session

Religious ceremonies to honor departed oysters which have died to enrich Japan's "pearl king," and young Japanese joining in the new world-wide enthusiasm for skiing and other winter sports were some of the sharp contrasts of modern Nippon pictured by Frederick Moore in an illustrated lecture last night before the National Geographic Society.

A monument, composed of oyster shells, honoring the thousands of oysters in which pearls are artificially planted, has been raised by the man who heads this important Japanese industry. Girl divers who gather the pearl-bearing oysters from the ocean bed were shown in motion pictures entering the water for the "harvest."

In modern, bustling Tokyo, third largest of the world's cities, the old-style jinrickisha has practically disappeared, and American-made automobiles now carry the Japanese about their business, said Mr. Moore, who formerly was a newspaperman and served as adviser to the Japanese ministry for foreign affairs. Ninety per cent of the automobiles in Japan are made in America, he explained. Japan imports American cars and cotton in exchange for her silk, 90 per cent of which is purchased by the United States.

Motion pictures were shown of the Japanese practice of fishing with the aid of cormorants, long-necked diving birds. A ring around the bird's neck prevents it from swallowing all but the smallest fish, and it is made to disgorge the larger ones.

Thousands of these birds are used in the Japanese fishing industry. Fish, rice and a variety of giant radish, which is pickled, form the three staples of the Japanese diet, Mr. Moore said.

Elaborate and colorful festivals, most of them religious, which occur almost daily somewhere in Japan, with native music and singing accompanying them, were shown in sound pictures. The elaborate and precise tea ceremony, dating back for centuries, was pictured and explained by the lecturer.

He described how, just before a naval battle in the Russo-Japanese War, Admiral Togo, the Japanese commander, called his officers together and required them to go through the tea ceremony for one hour in complete silence so that they might acquire perfect poise before going into combat.

Music Rampant Sets Pace for Week at Earle

Musical on Screen and the Duchin Band on Stage Feature Program.

"READY, WILLING AND ABLE." Warner Brothers picturization of a magazine story by Richard Macauley, adapted to the screen by Jerry Wald, Sig Herzig and Warren Duff, featuring Ruby Keeler and Lee Dixon, with Louise Fazenda, Hugh O'Connell, Wini Shaw, Carol Hughes, Allen Jenkins, Ross Alexander, Teddy Hart, Shaw & Lee, E. E. Clive, May Boley, Lillian Kemball Cooper and Addison Richards. Directed by Ray Enright. Reviewed Friday afternoon by Mary Harris.

Eddie Duchin may play the piano pianissimo, but there was nothing pianissimo about his reception at the Earle yesterday. The folks just r'ared for more and more Duchin piano playing and the pleasant young maestro did all he could to oblige, considering program limitations.

Young Mr. Duchin is undoubtedly about the handsomest and most personable orchestra leader in the country and it is good to be able to say that his ability does not lag far behind his looks. But he is a terrifically lucky fellow at that—his Rooseveltian smile, ingratiating manner and magical piano touch show him to be one of destiny's pet tots. Yesterday's audience was no end forward in demanding favorite numbers and if you are one of those extroverts who like to shout for special musical bits, be assured that Maestro Duchin will do all he can to please.

Brightest ornaments of the Duchin show were the Caligary Brothers and Gower and Jeanne. Not that the Caligary boys are ornamental in appearance. But they will make you laugh if you have a laugh in your system, particularly if you have a robust taste in humor.

A Refreshing Dance Act.

Gower and Jeanne are something refreshing in dance teams. Not that their steps are particularly striking, but that they infuse gayety, high comedy and a vital grace into all they do, with Gower doing more than his share. When folks look at a young man when he's dancing with a pretty girl—he's good. A trio of swift and able tap-steppers, Bliss, Lewis and Ash, and prettily singing Jane Dover finish up the group of special entertainers.

The Duchin orchestra does its quota of numbers in its best manner, winding up with the old but loved "Stormy Weather." Trumpeter Lou Sherwood produced a couple of his usual fine special numbers.

The perennially baby-faced Miss Keeler plays a schoolgirl who impersonates a foreign singing star and grabs off a big contract. The trouble comes when the real star shows up while Ruby is still stalling her managers on singing. All very daffy, but exciting.

Some Smart Spots.

Among the smartest spots is a number where Ruby varies the late popular "handies" by doing "footies" in swing time. Tuneful and appealing songs are "You're Just Too Marvelous" and "Just a Quiet Evening," in both of which the late Ross Alexander displays a delightful voice and splendid light comedy gifts.

The cast is fat with good performers. There is Lee Dixon, proving not only that he is quite a stepper but a good actor. Allen Jenkins doesn't have so much opportunity, but is plenty funny as an actor's agent. Wini Shaw (that "Lady in Red") plays the foreign star who really started in Hoboken with a trained seal act. Carol Hughes plays Ruby's schoolgirl friend who aids and abets the wild stage venture.

But many folks will enjoy best the buffoonery of our old friends Louise Fazenda and Hugh O'Connell. Their insane gabble is of the sort that drives you nutsy in real life, but is convulsing on the screen.

There is a certain hurly-burly and lack of unity in "Ready, Willing and Able," but for all that it is good free-for-all entertainment. The newsreel and Freddie Clark's orchestra complete the bill.

Columbia.

"THE PLAINSMAN." Cecil B. De Mille's picturization for Paramount of a story derived from material in stories by Courtney Ryley Cooper and Frank J. Wilstach, compiled by Jeanie MacPherson and adapted to the screen by Waldemar Young, Harold Lamb and Lynn Riggs, costarring Gary Cooper and Jean Arthur, with James Elison, Charles Bickford, Helen Burgess, Porter Hall, Paul Hurst, Victor Varconi, John Miljan, Frank McGlynn, sr., Frank Albertson, Charles Judels, Francis MacDonald, George MacQuarrie and Fuzzy Knight. Directed by Mr. De Mille. Reviewed (return engagement, second week) by Richard Q. Jones.

Long years ago the motion picture industry discovered the lure of the "Western" and this type of picture became, and still is, extremely popular. Every now and then a major producer will step out with a truly major production based on the general theme of the interminably ground out "horse operas."

When a person like Cecil B. DeMille sets his hand to picture production the theater patrons have come to expect something special, and in "The Plainsman" they will not be disappointed. For here are superbly blended all those elements of appeal of the typical western, set in a reasonably historic setting, performed, by an expert cast, and the whole produced by perhaps the industry's foremost exponent of spectacular construction without the sacrifice of other entertainment factors.

The story of Wild Bill Hickok and Calamity Jane, with such other characters as William F. Cody, Gen. Custer, Gen. Merritt, Abraham Lincoln and others of the period, needs no recounting. Although Jean Arthur seems a bit too nice for Calamity Jane, she does well by the part, but it is Gary Cooper, in the title role, who dominates the picture, making the character of Wild Bill, relentless, hair-trigger killer, a dynamic reality. The supporting cast, a few of the principals which are listed above, is uniformly fine.

The Pete Smith commentary, "Gilding the Lily;" the Technicolor "Sunkist Stars at Palm Springs," with its constellation of cinema folk and a release of "News of the Day" round out a program worthy of a fourth downtown week.

'Romeo' Fired, Girls Strike

Irthlingborough, Northamptonshire, England, Feb. 26 (AP).—Three hundred girl laundry workers walked out on strike today because their handsome foreman was to be transferred to another plant. Later they agreed to return to work, pending negotiations with the management.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

"The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" Is a Smart Drawing-Room Drama, Politely Played

By Nelson B. Bell.

BELL

This brittle comedy-drama of the light-fingered gentry and British aristocracy has been remade by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as a particularly well staged and well directed vehicle for the facile talents of Joan Crawford, William Powell and Robert Montgomery. They are surrounded by a cast of the first water who quite realize all of the subtle touches written into his original script by Frederic Lonsdale.

The story of "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" is one that does not clarify itself completely until several of the early reels of celluloid have filtered through the shutter of the projection machine. Then it becomes apparent that Mrs. Fay Cheyney, from Minneapolis, in Minnesota, is journeying to Europe for no better reason than to purloin the priceless pearls possessed by members of a party with whom she "accidentally" becomes associated on board ship.

Accepted as one of their own social stratum, the swanky duchess and her nearest relatives, Lord Kelton, Arthur, Willie, Joan, Kitty and Cousin John adopt the bogus Mrs. Cheyney into their set and invite her to a house party over the week-end on their ancestral estate. It is here that the fabulous theft is supposed to come off—and almost does.

Caught Red-Handed.

However, there are romantic considerations, principally involving the debonair and charming Arthur and the elderly but no less susceptible Lord Kelton. Proposals of marriage fly about the head of the masquerading Lady Raffles with dizzying rapidity. Caught red-handed, as the saying goes, with the duchess' pearls in her possession, the whole mad business comes to a sudden and highly diverting climax and denouement.

As in all of the Lonsdale writings for the theater, "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" is distinguished by pert dialogue and frequent flashes of humor. It is, furthermore, marked by a deftness of characterization and a savoir faire that stamp it as a brilliantly sophisticated bit of dramaturgy that may be relied upon to engage the interest of all types of theatergoers. It is a play written for the edification of the classes that still embraces enough of the common touch to appeal to the masses. It is polished, suave and glib without being in any sense stilted or pedantic.

The principal roles are given the benefit of especially effective interpretation by a cast that reflects extreme skill in casting. Joan Crawford is assigned the title role and reads her lines with rather the best effect she has brought to the audible screen in recent months. Her coiffure is one that is not calculated to arouse the keen enthusiasm of this department and in some her elaborate costumes she seems a trifle gaunt, but in the large view her performance is beyond cavil.

Powell At His Best.

No less may in justice be said of the enactment of the principal male roles by William Powell and Robert Montgomery. Mr. Powell has a shade the better of it in comparison with Mr. Montgomery, but both turn in performances with which one may not carp with justification. Frank Morgan is an amusing and greatly perturbed Lord Kelton and Nigel Bruce makes quite a silly fop, but an immensely ingratiating and laughable one, in the role of Willie. Ralph Forbes is a gentlemanly Cousin John, although the part is small. Secondary feminine characters are played efficiently by Benita Hume, Aileen Pringle, Sara Haden, Jessie Ralph and Colleen Clare, a lovely young blonde with a flair for pictorial effect.

On the supporting bill the principal item of the new program at the Palace is a nondescript essay at the tricky business of depicting the results of telepathy as it might manifest itself over an expanse of many hundreds of miles between mother and son. A little futile in the view of this commentator.

The news events of the past week provide the final supplementary of a feature that is of a fragile and well-worn type, but still capable of arousing the enthusiasm of discriminating audiences.

RKO-Keith's

"WE'RE ON THE JURY." RKO-Radio picturization of the play, "Ladies of the Jury," by John Frederick Ballard, with screen play by Franklin Coen, starring Helen Broderick and Victor Moore, supported by Philip Houston, Sarah Edwards, Jean Howard, Leonard Kinsky, Billy Gilbert, Louise Latimer, Charles Lane, Frank M. Thomas, Colleen Clare, Mazine Jennings, Robert McWade, George Irving, Edward Gargan, Earle Foxe, Roy James, Georgette Rhodes, George Cooper and Jack Adair. Directed by Ben Holmes. Reviewed Friday afternoon by W. A. Whitney.

That good, old comedy-drama treatment of almost miscarried justice, John Frederick Gallard's "Ladies of the Jury," returns to the screen under the title of "We're On the Jury."

In its current version, the play has been quite surpassed, especially in the splendid roster of players gathered for the several roles. The choice of Helen Broderick was a master stroke, but the casting of Alexander Throttlebottom—pardon, Mr. Victor Moore—as Realtor J. Clarence Beaver, was little short of inspired.

Miss Broderick, of course, is Mrs. Dean, who holds out for acquittal when the 11 other jurors vote for a guilty verdict. By exercising the most indirect methods—and some direct measures—she manages to convince a majority of the jury and brings the others around when the crime is re-enacted and the real culprit unearthed. It is a grand part, and Miss Broderick plays it up to the hilt.

Mr. Throttlebottom Scores.

Mayhap we are particularly fond of Mr. Moore; so, trying to be just as cynical as possible, we nevertheless come to the inescapable fact that here he offers the finest interpretation of his distinguished career. Not even in "Of Thee I Sing" did he appear to such good advantage, and there he was plenty good. With lines that more than titillate and with plenty of his own inimitable "business," Mr. Moore comes through with a performance that virtually eclipses Miss Broderick's sterling characterization.

Further than to state that their work is of high caliber, little need be said of Philip Houston, as Steve Bell, the widower; Sarah Edwards, as the priggish Miss Bottomley; Jean Howard, as the one-time chorine; Leonid Kinsky, as the psychiatrist; Billy Gilbert, as the musician; Louise Latimer, as the bride; Charles Lane, as the dispeptic; Frank M. Thomas, as the chiropractor; Roy James, as the experienced juror, and Charles Middleton, as the opinionated foreman.

Excellent Support.

Then, to furnish the raison d'etre of the trial, are Colleen Clare, as the accused; Maxine Jennings, as maid; Earle Foxe, as the late husband's cousin, with Robert McWade doing nobly as the presiding judge. Georgette Rhodes, George Cooper Jack Adair George Irving and Edward Gargan complete the cast.

The auxiliary program further maintains the high entertainment value set by the feature. A musical "School for Swing" featuring Sylvia Froos is well presented with songs and dances; a new issue of Screen Snapshots shows the ranches of Buck Jones, Paul Kelly and Ken Maynard with a galaxy of cinema celebrities here and at the Plaza Theater world premiere of "Camille;" "The Big Race" presents the three monkeys—Meanie, Minie and Mo—in cartoonal activities, and the release of Pathe News reveals Harry M. Warner receiving an honorary degree from Rollins College, the British crown jewels, and a description of the Santa Anita Handicap.

"JOHN MEADE'S WOMAN." United Artists picturization of story by Herman Mankiewicz and Vincent Lawrence, featuring Edward Arnold and Francine Larrimore, supported by Gail Patrick, George Bancroft, John Trent, Sidney Blackmer and Aileen Pringle. Directed by Richard Wallace. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

Miss Larrimore is good, very good and so is Edward Arnold, but their "vehicle" is quite as bad as that title sounds.

John Meade is a power. Once a lumberjack, he buys up all the trees and strips the earth bare, then goes into wheat to hurry disaster along and prepare for the dust storm that is supposed to climax the wandering and implausible fable.

Has Two Women.

John has two women in his life—a lovely, flossie, society gal, who wants his money, and a farm girl who wants him. He jilts the first one at the altar and marries the second to spite the first, if you follow us. When woman number two finds it wasn't love, she rages and weeps and leaves and cries in her gin and starts a farm strike and gets John shot and asks him not to die—all in a comparatively few minutes.

Movie-debuting as Woman Number Two, Miss Larrimore bears up well, making her sympathetic, attractive and at times believable. She seems considerably more tough big city than farm, but that's the director and dialogue writer's fault. Not precisely pretty, she brings a great charm; skill and flexible voice to the screen—please may they be properly used.

It seems somehow insulting to push Miss Pringle into a swimming pool for a very low comedy laugh. John Trent, being so highly touted these days, spends an uncomfortable few minutes proving just how much he has to learn about acting.

Lacks Restraint.

The story is jerky and overly melodramatic. There seemed to be a germ of an idea in the beginning and a chance to cash in on the timeliness of dust storms, but merit got lost in an epidemic of poor taste, bad dialogue and lack of restraint.

The stage provides a happier story. "Fats" Waller brings a smooth, swinging orchestra with him to start toes tapping throughout the theater. Two young sepia steppers bring down the house and Myra Johnson sings. Al Washington holds a note on his clarinet until we gasped for breath and "Fats" himself has fun at the piano.

The newsreel, an interesting Paramount Pictorial about cheese, clothes and collies, and Phil Lampkin leading his men in "La Traviata," complete the bill.

Metropolitan

"CRACK-UP." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a story by John Goodrich, adapted to the screen by Charles Kenyon and Sam Mintz, featuring Peter Lorre and Brian Donlevy, with Helen Wood, Ralph Morgan, Thomas Beck, Earl Foxe, J. Carroll Naish, Oscar Apfel, Paul Stanton and Howard Hickman. Directed by Malcolm St. Clair. Reviewed Friday afternoon by Sally Stroud.

Some trenchant-penned critic called Peter Lorre "that imp of espionage." Here the imp is less gamin, more clown, since he portrays a seemingly insane fellow who toots a tin horn and prefers to be called "Colonel." But the dimpled moues and deft manipulations of Superspy Lorre are as familiar and formidable as ever.

Crazy, crippled "Colonel" is really head of a ring of spies, and obtains valuable dope on advanced aeronautics from the pilots around the Fleming airport, who regard him as their good-luck mascot.

Chief Pilot Ace Martin (Brian Donlevy) is sucked into the ring because he is to pilot the Gray Goose, new secret design Fleming plane, on its maiden voyage to Berlin, and thus knows of the ship's construction.

Dirty Work in Air.

Joe, Ace's mechanic, is duped into stealing plans for a new propeller. There is much bumping-off of operatives and such skullduggery. The Goose takes off with Pilot Ace, Mechanic Joe, Owner Fleming, and Idiot "Colonel" aboard.

The Colonel having tampered efficiently with the wireless, no messages can be sent out. But messages come in, via radio. Joe's fiancee tells him, by permission of the Military Intelligence, that he is a much misled sucker. Joe and Ace wrestle And so on to the crack-up in midocean.

After that, everything is anticlimactic. Imp Lorre even giving forth a cliche about "we might have been friends."

But Joey and the plans escape. The remaining trio die gallantly. One wishes the "Colonel" might have given a farewell toot of his precious tin horn.

Support and Subsidiaries.

Ingenue Helen Woods is less in-the-woods than she might have been, with such a slight role. Donlevy is iron-jawed and vicious in the strong man fashion. Ralph Morgan is quietly effective. The juvenile leading man, Thomas Beck, is pathetic.

Subsidiaries are unusually good, including a timely newsreel, "Fishing Thrills," Georgie Price in a racy comedy, "Captain Blue Blood," and a Zukor Technicolor short, "Trees." In the last named, credit should be given for some lucidly-lovely scenery.

In the newsreel, besides other to-the-minute bits, you may see and hear Mr. W. L. Fry, the first sit-downer boss, and the president of Warner Brothers receiving the degree Doctor of Humanity from Rollins College.

Returns to Stage of Capitol

one of the masters of so-called "swing music," who returns to the stage of Loew's Capitol Theater this week with his orchestra of sepia musicians to provide an interval of syncopated melody. In addition to his own contributions to the program, "Fats" presents a considerable list of specialists who add variety and flavor to the "act" which he presents.

Bulkley Backs Court Increase In Radio Talk

obliterate the constituent members of an indestructible union of indestructible states,' than the frank recognition that language, even of a Constitution, may mean what it says."

Submits Precedents.

Bulkley then denied the President's plan contemplates interference with independence of the judiciary, cited precedents for changes in number of justices, and ended:

"Those who justify the Supreme Court in assuming a power not granted by the Constitution and support the court in using that power by way of legislative veto, and yet would deny to Congress the right to recheck the court by the exercise of a power clearly and definitely within its constitutional rights, should stop talking about the independence and equality of the three branches of government, and frankly take the position which they are really supporting—that of unqualified judicial supremacy.

"Today, in this period of transition, when our people are emerging from a catastrophe in many ways as serious as war, it is vital that the Supreme Court must be in harmony with the times.

"A constitution is not an idol to be worshipped; it is an instrument of government to be worked. If, in the words of John Marshall, it "is to endure for all ages to come, and consequently, to be adapted to the various crises in human affairs"; if the Constitution is, as Woodrow Wilson once declared, "the vehicle of the nation's life," it must be because the Supreme Court makes it so.

I reaffirm my faith in the Constitution of the United States as a living and growing instrument of government, adaptable to new times and new needs. I reaffirm my faith in the President of the United States. I reaffirm my faith in the Congress and in its responsibility and ability to protect the liberties of the people. I reaffirm my faith in American democracy and the objectives which it so plainly expressed last November."

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

Miami Beach, Feb. 26.

THE BLUEBLOODS at Palm Beach have been informed of the arrival in Moscow of their dear, dear, friends, Ambassador and Mrs. Davies. When the new diplomatic appointee arrived at the Soviet capital he motored to the Embassy in an open touring car—despite the severe subzero weather. He wore a silk hat atop his head—and the foreign correspondents kidded the Ambassador's lid as well as his means of transportation . . . The next day, however, they discovered that every last Muscovite who had seen Davies was filled with deep respect and admiration for the man. The newspapermen attributed it to the Russians' naivete and foodness for things like silk hats and open cars . . . But the real reason why Davies clicked with the Russians from the moment of his arrival was because he had the courage to bare his naked ears in 14 below zero weather!

AT THE preview showing here of Grace Moore's new picture, "When You're in Love," Song Writer Dave Franklin listened to the opera star sing Schubert's Serenade. In the midst of her rendition Franklin whooped: "Hooray, Chappel has another hit!" . . . The author of a number of flop plays rushed up to John Golden yesterday bursting with excitement. "Have you heard?" he shouted. "I just sold the option on my next play." . . . "Really?" Golden replied. "Who bought it—Cain's?"

MIAMI's newspapermen credit Paul A. Peters with revealing this sidelight of reporting. The Jewish newspapers in Poland have been placed under rigid censorship with regard to the stories of local pogroms. One paper beat the censorship for a long time by disguising the stories. They inverted the name of the town—for instance, Ondorg instead of Grodno—described it as a city in America, referred to the victims as Negros and called it a lynching instead of a pogrom.

THE PRESS associations this week carried photographs of a midnight train wreck at Ojus, four miles from Hollywood, Fla. These photos were taken not by a news photographer but by a night club cameraman named Gus Gale, who works at the Hollywood Country Club . . . Warren Smith, publicist for that cafe, had been phoning the city desk at the Miami Tribune. He heard the city editor shout directions to reporters to rush to Ojus . . . Smith called to Gale and both—still wearing their tuxedos—drove to the scene, only four miles away. Gale photographed the wreck and took close-up shots of the four bodies, mangled beyond identification . . . He rushed to the Tribune, deposited his scoop pictures of blood and death . . . Then he returned to the night club floor to photograph the swanky debs who refuse to pose without first prettying themselves.

"Be sure to get that line straight—'All Dark Chillun IS Light on Their Feet,'" he urged the chorus, "because that's the way those Harlem folk speak" . . . The chorus began singing. Only two voices sang it "are" instead of "is" . . . The voices were those of the only two Negro members of the cast.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, Feb. 26.—Idol chatter: Clark Gable holds the "no hands" championship among MGM's bicyclists. Do you suppose, in her home town, Frances is known as "the Farmer's daughter?" Morning mail note: "Fred MacMurray isn't half as cute in a two-day beard as Bill Powell." By mistake, inadvertence, or pure psychic hunch, Gloria Swanson's name was misspelled "Swansong" in a recent news dispatch. Peas from the same pod: Ian Hunter and William Gargan. Jean Parker's "gawjus" figure should add up to more sex appeal.

JEAN PARKER.

Impressionistic drawing of Mary Astor: The cute girl in history class who was caught passing love notes. So they are touting Bing Crosby as the best "informally dressed" man—informal, and how! Arm yourself if you expect to mention to Jimmy Cagney's face his sandy hair, ditto eyebrows and snow-white skin, which will not tan. Dangerously close to perpetual motion: Joan Crawford singing "Melancholy Baby" at gatherings. Amusing to see burly Wallace Beery wearing that dainty ring set with three pin-head-size diamonds.

Some day when she is older, I shall correct Shirley Temple when she yells across sound stages: "Hi there, Jiminy Fidler!" The one thing that might persuade Clara Bow to try a comeback would be the insinuation that she cannot. Want Mae West's private telephone number? Warren William dialed it in "Go West Young Man." Hmmm: so Franchot Tone was fired from prep school "for being a subtle influence for disorder throughout an entire term." Warner Baxter should refuse to do more scenes in his bvd unless he is paid time-and-a half for overweight.

It is an amusing anecdote that Merle Oberon writes from England, relating to her trip over. The journey was rough; so rough that ship's passengers could not sleep in berths, but took to the floor for safety reasons. Along about midocean, she knocked timidly at the stateroom of Douglas and Mrs. (Lady Ashley) Fairbanks. At Doug's voiced "come in," Merle poked her head through the door and inquired, "Do you mind if I lie on the floor with you? I'm a little tired of holding on alone."

I was seated in the next booth, so could not fail to hear a Brown Derby waitress set a fresh young actor (name deleted) back on his heels. She was pouring his coffee when he insinuated, "Say luscious, what's a gorgeous creature like you doing in this job?" And the "gorgeous creature" cracked: "I'm just waitressing for a break in pictures."

Class distinction at the Warner Brothers studio cafe has expanded. Once there were two places to dine: The Green Room for the elite, and the general room for the hoi polloi.

Today there are four classes of service: Those who choose to dine on stools at the counter pay 45 cents for luncheon. Identical servings at a table in the main dining room nick the purse 65 cents. The Green Room is a la carte; hard to get out for less than a dollar. Then there is the executive room, which is very private, and very, very expensive.

• • • •

Important visitors are taken to the Green Room, where they may ogle stars who supposedly eat there. But nowadays, they might see more stars in the main dining room. I spied George Brent, Dick Powell, Joan Blonde, Errol Flynn and Bette Davis there today. They could not find seats in their own green room, which was too crowded with secretaries and assistant directors.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Today's hand came very close to being a great disappointment to South. His slam contract was a very good one, not only by virtue of his cards, but also because he was fully capable of eking out every trick that the hand could produce.

A hasty glance at the North-South cards would appear to indicate that a small slam depends on the heart finesse or a club split. But South took more than a hasty glance and made his slam despite the fact that East held the King of hearts and in spite of the 4-2 split in clubs.

The bidding:

1 ♣	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
2 N T	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	4 N T	Pass
5 N T	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

South next ran all five trumps, discarding low diamonds from the dummy. West hung on doggedly to his clubs, discarding three hearts and the nine of diamonds; East discarded a heart on the last trump.

The Ace and King of diamonds dropped the ten and Jack from the West hand, and South indulged in some serious thought. West could not have the only missing diamond, the Queen, since then his opening lead would have been the diamond Queen instead of the heart Jack. The heart discards and East's return of the heart deuce at the second trick proved that West had no more hearts left. All he could have was four clubs.

This was not very good news, but something could be done if East's doubleton included either the Jack or ten. South, therefore, led the nine of clubs to dummy's Ace. A low club to the King then dropped East's ten.

12 TERP, DUKE BOXERS TO BATTLE FOR RING TITLE

50,000 Fans Expected to Bet Million

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Feb. 26.—Out of a welter of pent-up excitement today 18 horses were named to start in tomorrow's third running of the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap.

As the track prepared to welcome the greatest throng in the brief but colorful history of the handicap, and bright sunshine beamed over the rain-pelted landscape, the entry list brought out the following contenders:

There they are, the leading handicap talen in the Nation, slated to run one mile and a quarter for the richest turf offering in the world.

Upwards of 50,000 race fans are expected to witness the race, and the betting figure on the eight events of Handicap Day undoubtedly will soar far over the million-dollar mark. Last year $1,246,497 jingled through the betting windows, $350,033 of it on the handicap itself.

Clear weather and a good track were forecast, enhancing the chances of the Foxcatcher candidates, but Seabiscuit, the pride of the C. S. Howard stable, C. V. Whitney's Red Rain, Bert Baroni's Star Shadow, Frank Carreaud's Time Supply and Maj. Austin C. Taylor's Special Agent and Indian Broom, also like a good strip.

Rosemont, top weighted at 124 pounds, with Jockey Harry Richards up, drew No. 17 post position, which means he will have to start from the far outside, along with Boxthorn, No. 15; Don Roberto, No. 16, and Sablin, No. 18.

Star Shadow, which was pressing Rosemont in the San Antonio a week ago to finish second, was in at 110, and Red Rain, at 116, was highly regarded in view of his performance in the same race. Red Rain moved from last to finish sixth in the last 2 furlongs of the mile and one-eighth test.

A. G. Vanderbilt's Chanceview, attractively weighted at 109, with position No. 2, was a decided threat when sloppy going appeared in prospect, and Time Supply, which ran second last year and third the year before, could not be ignored in off-going or otherwise.

Sablin, the estate of E. F. Seagram's surprise entry, and Don Roberto, the Western giant, owned by Mrs. William P. Roth, wife of California's horse racing board member, offered the longest probable odds on the board—50 to 1.

Terps' Cage Play Bid To Be Decided Today

Eastern Five Upset; Race Now Tied

By John R. Vosburgh.

Eastern and Western High were thrown into joint ownership of first place in the interhigh series last night when Tech upset the champions, 26-23, after Western had toppled Central, 28-18, before 3,500 spectators in Tech's gymnasium. The results will necessitate a playoff for the championship, probably Friday night.

Playing one of the most brilliant games the series has seen in recent years, Tech set too hot a pace for Eastern and throttled the champions with the most stubborn defense of the current race. Although Jimmy (Nose) Vermillion's 11 points led the Techmen, the sparkling, bang-up play of Johnny Williamson, all-high football star, was a major factor in Tech's persistent performance.

Also persistent was big Tommy (Farmer) Dobyns, the guard whom Coach Rusty Thompson assigned to Russ Lombardy, deadshot pot-shot ace of the Easterners. So tenacious was the indomitable Dobyns against one of the deadliest shots in the series that Lombardy's chances to shoot were few and far between.

Taking only about half a dozen shots, Lombardy sank three of them. The entire Eastern team, moreover, was under the same handicap, Tech sticking with them like a Masonic pin to a Mason.

Eastern held leads of 5-4 and 6-5 in the first period, but Tech, led by Williamson, hit the scoring column consistently to close the first period at 7-7. In the second quarter Tech built up its big lead, with Vermillion and Williamson leading the way. Tech was taking about three shots or more to every shot by Eastern, and although missing often, still was able to build up a 17-12 lead by half time.

Lee Lusby and Lombardy cut the margin to 17-15 in the third period, but Walton Merchant sent Tech to 19-15 going into the final period. Eastern came no closer to tying the count than 24-21, when Quantrille sank a pot-shot and Lombardy finally shook Dobyns loose long enough to loop a couple.

Only 2 minutes and 45 seconds remained by the time Eastern had overhauled the troublesome Techmen at this 24-21 score and Tech finished off its performance convincingly with Vermillion adding another basket with a minute to play and then flashing a neat freezing game. Carroll Colton's basket for Eastern as the gun sounded was only so much bitter gall for Eastern's leather-lunged followers.

Western overcame leads of 7-0 and 13-6 to beat Central, transforming the latter into a 16-14 lead and holding Central to one point in the last period, running its lead from 19-18 to 28-18.

Western rooters then proceeded to aid Tech's cheering section in bellowing the Techmen on toward their well-earned upset of Eastern.

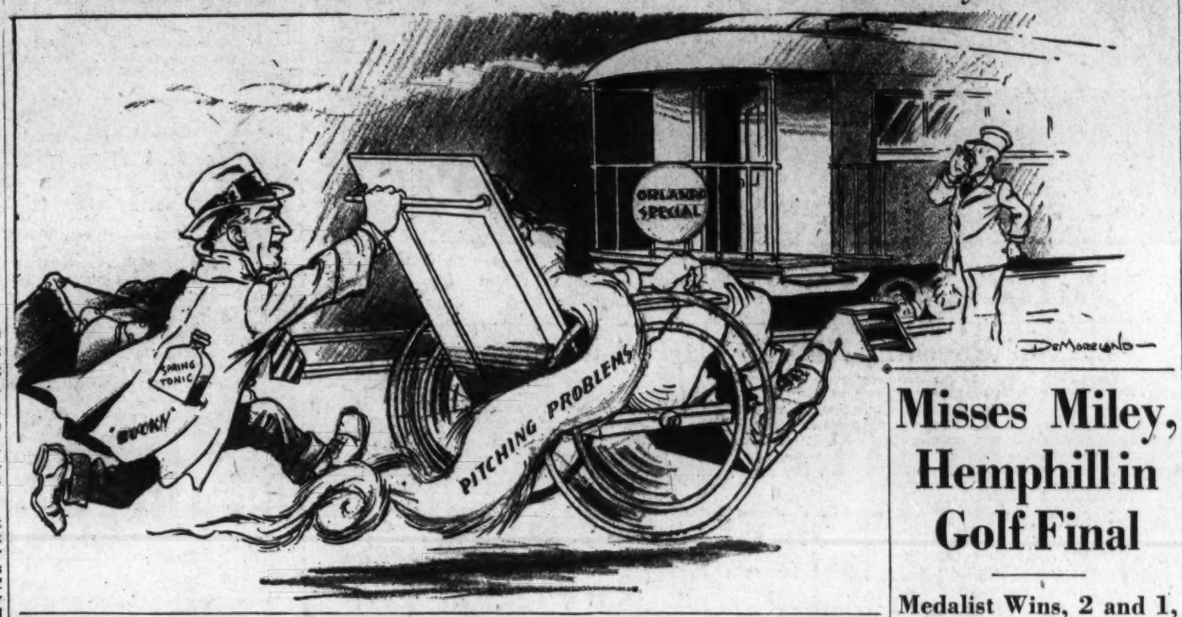
And Still His Whiskers Grew! —By DeMoreland



Baer Given License, But Won't Fight Now

Instead He's Going to London for Comeback Debut Because His Feelings Are Hurt; Garden May Take Action to Make Him Fight Pastor.

By the United Press.

New York, Feb. 26.—Max Baer may box in New York State but he will not. The feelings of the 220-pound former heavyweight champion were so hurt by the treatment he received from the New York State Athletic Commission Wednesday that he is going to London to fight.

The commission granted him a license today at the request of Col. John Kilpatrick, Madison Square Garden president, and approved a bout between Baer and Bob Pastor March 19. But it was all wasted energy. Baer booked passage for England and will meet the winner of the Ben Foord-Tommy Farr bout in mid-April.

Madison Square Garden, it was learned, plans to take legal action to prevent Baer from sailing, but Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, insists that the contract he signed for the Pastor bout is null and void.

A Little Scrap.

The commission meeting became stormy when the Jack Torrance case came up. An argument broke out between Commissioner Bill Brown and Mike Jacobs, head of the Twentieth Century Club, whose name was linked with the Louisiana investigation into the supposed effort to "fix" a match between Jack Torrance, world's champion shotputter, and Jack Phillips. It exploded when Brown moved to "throw the whole thing into the waste basket."

"A hearing like they held in Louisiana is an insult to our intelligence," he said. "We ought to throw the whole thing into the waste basket."

All Very Confucious.

"Why should I be kicked around?" thundered Jacobs. "I'm hep to everybody in the boxing game and they can't shove me around. This thing was started months ago and I know who's behind it. I have my men investigating the thing in Louisiana and I'm offering $5,000 to clear the business up."

Mushky Jackson, boxing manager formerly employed by Mike Jacobs, testified that he had nothing to do with the case, and had never given Phillips any typewritten instructions to "take a dive to Torrance."

The wrangling went on and on, with everyone getting in a lick at somebody else. Mushky Jackson said:

Cooper, Smith, Guldahl Tie In Golf Play

18-Hole Playoff to Decide Winner of $3,000 Event Is Set for Monday.

By the Associated Press.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 26.—Three top ranking professional golfers, Ralph Guldahl, Harry Cooper and Horton Smith, all of Chicago, tied today for first place in the St. Petersburg open golf tournament with 72 hole scores of 284.

They will meet in an 18-hole playoff Monday afternoon.

Roaring down the stretch with sub-par stroking, Guldahl, Cooper and Smith overhauled Johnny Revolta, former P. G. A. champion from Evanston, Ill., and the 54-hole leader, on the outgoing nine of the final round. The three will play off for the first three money prices, totaling $1,500.

Each of the three leaders carded a 71, one under par, on the final round. Revolta, who led by two strokes at 211 after 54 holes of play, slumped to 75, taking a 7 on one hole.

Revolta lost his lead on the first nine holes when he went four over par, but made a brilliant comeback for a 35, one under par, on the incoming nine. He could do no better than a 286 to tie Clarence Doser, Rochester, N. Y., for fifth and sixth money.

McSpaden Close Up.

Harold (Jug) McSpaden, of Winchester, Mass., put together cards of 70 and 72 on the last two rounds to finish with 285, one stroke behind the three leaders.

Guldahl, finishing in next to the last threesome with Revolta, needed a birdie 4 on the home hole to avoid a tie. Just short of the green with his second shot, he overran the hole with his chip and missed an 8-foot putt coming back.

The tournament carried $3,000 in cash prizes. First money was $700; second money, $450, and third, $350. McSpaden, finishing fourth, received $280. Revolta and Doser split $400.

Misses Miley, Hemphill in Golf Final

Medalist Wins, 2 and 1, Over Mrs. Hockinjos at Ormond Beach.

By the Associated Press.

Ormond Beach, Fla., Feb. 26.—Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., gets another chance at the South Atlantic Women's Golf title she won two years ago when she meets Kathryn Hemphill, of Columbia, S. C., in tomorrow's finals.

The Kentucky miss advanced today by defeating Dorothy Traung, of San Francisco, 3 and 2. Miss Hemphill, the medalist, eliminated Mrs. William Hockinjos, of Lake Hoptacong, N. J., 2 and 1, in the other semi-final match.

Miss Miley and Miss Traung were first off the tee. The West Coast star took the initial hole with a well-placed 16-foot putt, but lost the third by missing a 20-incher. The second was halved with par 4's.

The fourth was parred and Miss Miley went 1 up on the fifth. The Kentuckian made the most sensational shot of the match on the sixth when she used the wind and the roll of the green to overcome a stymie and sink an 8-footer to win the hole. She took the seventh to set her lead at three holes. The eighth was halved. After twice laying stymies before her opponent on the ninth, Miss Miley conceded the hole.

Miss Traung brought the count back to 2-up on the eleventh. The Kentuckian sank a 14-footer to change it back to 3-up on the next hole. The Blue Grass girl took the thirteenth, lost the next two and then won the sixteenth and the match.

Sarron Seeks Lightweight Laurels

Featherweight Champion Pete Sarron has outgrown the division he rules and will seek a shot at the lightweight crown now worn by Lou Ambers, The Post learned yesterday from Pete's manager, Jimmy Erwin, in South Africa.

Sarron, at present campaigning very successfully as a lightweight in Johannesburg, will attempt to make the 126-pound limit for a title defense against Scotland's Johnny McGrory in London next April.

Whether he retains the featherweight championship or not, Sarron will return to the States on the trail of Ambers, or whoever happens to be hloding the 135-pound title at the time.

"Personally, I have my doubts about Petey ever being able to make the featherweight limit and fight 15 rounds," admits Erwin frankly in a letter discussing the forthcoming bout against McGrory. "He is weighing around 132 to 133 in shape now, so you can see it is going to be some job making the featherweight limit again. The only way he can lose that fight will be due to excessive reducing."

Beat British Champ.

Sarron made an auspicious debut in South Africa by scoring a twelfth-round knockout over British Lightweight Champion Laurie Stevens, who was ranked fifth among the lightweights nationally.

The Stevens fight drew 16,000 people, who paid $38,000 at the box office. A return was planned for tonight, but Stevens is still under the care of a doctor and will not be able to fight.

Andy Martin, who has fought Sarron several times in the past, is being imported to South Africa to substitute for Stevens. Sarron will receive a guarantee of $3,000 with an option on the gate receipts for that bout. The champion is being guaranteed $15,000 for the McGrory bout.

Earned a Chance.

Erwin feels that Sarron's upset of Stevens entitles Pete to a chance at the 135-pound championship and has started negotiations from abroad for the bout between the two title-holders.

Sarron and his manager will leave South Africa March 5 on the Athlone Castle for London to prepare for the McGrory bout. They will arrive in London March 19.

Erwin probably will be joined in London by Natie Brown and Buck Everett, a couple of local heavyweights. Brown is now returned to Washington after an unsuccessful stand against Joe Louis in Kansas City recently. Everett at the present is in California.

Erwin will seek to inject them into the British heavyweight picture which is all cluttered up with such fighters as Walter Neusel and Henry Patterson and probably will be further scrambled by the invasion of Max Baer.

Charlotte Likely To Be Nats' Farm

By the Associated Press.

Charlotte, N. C., Feb. 26.—The Observer tonight quoted Joe Engle, former Chattanooga Baseball Club president, as saying the Washington Senators would operate a club in Charlotte this summer if a Piedmont League franchise could be obtained.

"I understand that it is practically certain we can get a berth in the Piedmont," Engle was quoted as saying by telephone from Florida, "and if there is no hitch there, you can say for us that we will operate, outright, a club in Charlotte."

Jacques Lone Marylander To Lose

By Lewis F. Atchison.

The eleventh annual Southern Conference boxing tournament appeared to have narrowed down to a private fistic party between the University of Maryland's ambitious maulers and Duke's burly Blue Devils as the field concluded two blistering sessions of battling last night at College Park, and took another hitch in its collective pants for the two final rounds coming up today.

Standing at the head of the procession with one man each in the finals and six each qualified for the semi-finals, the Old Liners and their Carolina rivals apparently justified their installation as pre-tourney co-favorites.

North Carolina, with four men eligible for the semifinals, and the Citadel, with three, are the only other teams figuring to cut much of a figure in team scoring, but their hopes are exceedingly slim. They can, however, have a large voice in the disposition of the titles.

Duke lost one man last night when Wilton Mann, senior welterweight, was outpointed by Pete Lempesis, of the Citadel, but this only served to square matters for Lancelot Jacques' knockout in the afternoon, a blow that seriously threatened Maryland's chances.

The four defending champions not only survived the initial flurry of leather but came through in true championship style, either winning by knockouts, or by margins that clearly established their superiority. The men defending their titles are Jack Kneipp, Duke's 125-pounder; Ivan Nedomatsky, Maryland's welterweight; Max Novich, 165-pounder from North Carolina, and Ray Matulewicz, Duke light-heavyweight.

John Murray, Clemson's featherweight, ushered in the evening's business with a close decision over Joe Murnick, of North Carolina. Murnick, a southpaw, had an advantage in reach but failed to cash in on it, continually permitting the aggressive Murray to get in at close quarters where he was most effective.

Glenn Penland, North Carolina State captain, staged a comeback to win the last two rounds and decision over Meyer Goodman, of Richmond.

The two boys expected to supply the best bout of the tourney, Ivan Nedomatsky, of Maryland, and Danny Farrar, of Duke, both welterweights, followed one another on the program, and Nedomatsky was by far the most impressive.

Maryland's sleek-haired ace disposed of Russ Sorrell, of North Carolina State in 1:40 of the first round, although his victim was not on the carpet when the bout was terminated. Ivan, however, had sent him sprawling halfway across the ring with a vicious left to the head and seemed on the verge of finally flattening him when Referee Ed Brockman called a halt.

Farrar's engagement with Bob Jones, of Clemson, was stopped at the end of the second round with Jones visibly in no condition to continue. The Duke dynamiter belted him unmercifully throughout the session, although he appeared to be working under wraps. Jones landed only one clean blow, but it sent Farrar tilting back on his heels a surprised young man.

Lampesis started fast and finished even faster, spearing Mann time and again with one of the prettiest left jabs seen thus far in the tournament. Mann vainly tried to weaken the Cadet with a blistering barrage of rights to the body, pumping home one after another in the second round, but it only served to arouse Lampesis to greater efforts with his left and he was replying in kind at the bell.

By the Associated Press.

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 26.—What promised to be a quiet, uneventful afternoon of racing was quickly transposed into one of excitement and amazement here today when Recorder, a 2-year-old owned by the Wheatley Stable of Mrs. H. C. Phipps and her brother, Ogden Mills, equaled a world record and paid the longest odds of the Florida season in the first race.

The bay son of Jacopo—Notebook finished the 3-furlong straightaway trip in 0:33 flat, becoming the fourth horse to share the mark, and paid off at $190.80 for a $2 straight ticket. He returned $54.70 place and $19.80 show.

It was a photo finish and the 3-to-2 favorite, Mrs. Rigan McKinney's Notoriety, was nosed out of the purse. John Hay Whitney's Bold Turk was another nose away in the thrilling finish.

The world record recently was equaled here by Sally Shall. A. G. Vanderbilt's Airplane set the mark at Santa Anita in January, 1936, then another Vanderbilt juvenile, Balking, tied it previous to Sally Shall's feat.

Recorder had started four times without giving any indication of possessing such speed. However, it must be noted that Recorder and his rivals were favored by having the wind at their backs in today's sterling performance.

Hilton (Rabbit) Babson, of Baltimore, was astride the Wheatley colt. The boy broke Recorder with the leaders and a gruelling drive among the three placed youngsters ensued to the end. Bold Turk and Notoriety kept their heads just in front of the ultimate winner until the last stride or two, where Recorder, on the outside, barely made the grade under severe pressure and Dabson's whip.

That anything can happen in maiden races was further evidenced when, just after Recorder had graduated in the juvenile opener at "telephone figures," the second event, for 3-year-old nonwinners, produced a $3.30 for $2 winner on Rye Beach. It was a case of one extreme to another and Rye Beach left no doubt as to his superiority, scoring in a breeze by three lengths. The colt recently made his debut here and finished first, only to be disqualified. This time he was so far in front that there was no chance for him to bother any other horse. Phillip Pete took the place, another three lengths before Manrico.

Aunt Flor gave form followers two in a row when she drove to a length triumph in the six-furlong second race. Paul Junior annexed second money, a half length better than Peaceful. Aunt Flor, closing at $7.20 for $2, was in the thick of the fight from the break. She wore down Paul Junior and Regula Baddun to assume command in the stretch, then moved away under strong urging by Jack Westrope.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TIME ME, $49.70, $21.90, $10.90; FLYING BANNER, $5.10, $3.60; CLAMOROUS, $3.50.

TIME ME was sent to the front with a rush, opened wide gap entering stretch, but was doing her best to win. FLYING BANNER was allowed to drop far out of it, was taken very wide and closed with a rush and would have won in a few more strides. CLAMOROUS moved up fast, but weakened suddenly. NAD ran good race. MARY ELISE stopped at end.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and a furlong. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:34. Off at 4:36. Winner, N. D. Levy's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—AMERICAN BELLE, $7.00, $4.20, $3.30; PRETTYLASS, $26.80, $14.80; MISS CAPERS, $6.40.

AMERICAN BELLE swung around leaders entering stretch, assumed lead, drew away and won nicely in hand. PRETTYLASS was hustled along all the way and made a game effort. MISS CAPERS got away good, but was allowed to drop back, came again at end. KNACK was allowed to go very wide on first turn, moved up fast and then tired. VESTED POWER broke down and was pulled up.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and a furlong. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 5:06. Off at 5:07. Winner, A. E. Webber's gr. g. Draw Hurts Cage Play Titlists

G-Men, WPA Given Easy Courses

A hasty glance at the drawings in The Post's annual District A. A. U. basketball championships, opening Monday night in the Heurich gymnasium, shows the defending champions, George Washington University freshmen, have anything but a path of roses into the semi-finals. Such teams, on the other hand, as Federal Bureau of Investigation and District WPA appear to have profited somewhat by the draw.

For instance, Investigation drew a bye for the first round and in order to gain the semi-finals has only to beat Potomac & Electric Power Co., and either the Tennis Shop, Navy Yard Marines or the Y. M. C. A. Flying Eagles. The G-men rate a notch or two above these clubs, at least according to the records.

Investigation, however, is not exactly overcome by the milk and honey path hewn for it, for it was the G-men who were upset last year in an early round. The J. Edgar Hoover forces are out to carve a different reckoning into the books this year.

Have a Tough Row.

In contrast to Investigation, the G. W. yearlings open against one of the real dark-horses of the tournament, Silver Spring Merchants, at 9 p. m., Thursday. All unlimited games, of course, are being held in the Heurich gym. If and when the Freshmen get past the meddling Merchants, they must take care of either R. R. Retirement Board or Delaware and Hudson, one of the serious threats for the title.

After that assignment is successfully negotiated, the Freshmen must take on one of the following: Sterling Restaurant, Little Tavern, St. Martin's or Labor Recreational Association. Sterling is at the top of the strongest unlimited division in no uncertain terms and the other three are vigorous claimants for a similar rating.

The Freshmen are seeded No. 1; Investigation, No. 2; District WPA, No. 3 and Rockville A. A., No. 4.

Like Investigation, District WPA has not exactly an uphill path ahead. Commissioner Allen's men must first take Congress Heights Monday night and then has only to worry about Jewish Community Center and Y. M. C. A. or Fort Myer. The J. C. C. looms rather threateningly, but its record fades beside that of the Allen aces.

The other seeded team, however, Rockville A. A. has a rougher row to hoe. Meeting Army Medical Center in the first round, the Marylanders then must meet, if successful, either Treasury Department or Falls Church, then either Rinaldi, Oakton Independents, National City Christian Church or A. A. A. Terriers.

In place of the G. W. Freshmen-Silver Spring game scheduled for Wednesday originally but postponed until Thursday, 10 p. m., the Little Tavern five will play St. Martin's Holy Name.

Thus, of the seeded teams, Investigation and District WPA have less cause for worry than G. W.'s Freshmen and Maryland's Rockville A. A.

Howard U. Cagers Thump Bluefield

Paced by Substitute Lee Spaulding and Captain Buck Jones, who scored 12 and 11 points, respectively, the Howard University basketball team trimmed the Bluefield five, last night, on the Howard court, 63-27.

The Bisons were off to an early lead and soon had things under control, leading 33-15, at the half. It was the locals' fourth win of the season.

These Fighters Mean Business!

Knockouts Prominent In Conference Battles

Ray Matulewicz, defending lightheavyweight champion from Duke, scored a technical knockout over Jim Gaugler, of V. P. I., in a slow match. The end came 45 seconds after the start of the third round with Gaugler hanging on for dear life. It was no contest, for at no time was Gaugler the aggressor. In the second round he was flat on his back for a nine count and why the officials allowed him to continue is somewhat of a mystery.

Johnny Gormley, Maryland's lightheavyweight, scored his team's first points of the meet by outpointing Hugh Rogers, of the Citadel, in a grueling bout, to gain the finals. The decision was close and roundly booed by many spectators.

Rogers rallied in the second and was even stronger in the third when he carried the fight to the Old Liner. Gormley tired badly and was still trying to land a finishing punch, but Rogers was too cagey for him. The Citadel man, not exactly fresh himself, couldn't quite reach his man, although still trying at the bell.

Maryland's hopes wobbled a trifle in the afternoon as Lancelot Jacques, dark horse contender for the middleweight crown, toppled into knockout defeat after only 55 seconds, the victim of two chin-blasting rights tossed by Bill Cason of Clemson. This was the nearest approach to an upset all afternoon, but Jacques, while expected to stay longer, actually did not figure to outpoint his opponent.

The leaders gained their positions by identical methods, four men on each team advancing on byes, and two of each fighting their way past the preliminary round. Ben Alperstein, a lightweight, decisioned Jack Lough, of V. P. I., and Mike Lombardo, senior welterweight, outpointed Lanky Harry Hilton, of South Carolina, for Maryland's victories.

The tournament got off to a rousing start in the afternoon session as Johnny Hughes, of the Citadel, knocked out John Christian, of Wake Forest, after two rounds and 58 seconds of furious punching. Both were willing and able mixers and from the opening bell until the finish it was a lively slugging bee.

Hughes, apparently the stronger of the two, took the first round by a comfortable margin but Christian reversed the result in the second, and was well on his way to victory in the third when Hughes caught him flush on the button with a looping right, sending the Wake Forest boy to the canvass for nine. Christian arose but only to be belted out for keeps.

Baugh Will Coach, But Redskins Get Two Other Stars

Proprietor George Marshall yesterday failed to obtain the services of one college star for whom he was angling, but hooked a duo of lesser lights for Washington's professional football team.

"Slingin'" Sam Baugh, Texas Christian ace that Marshall hoped to sign for the Redskins, announced definitely that he had finally decided to do "what I wanted to do from the start," and signed a contract to coach three T. C. U. sports, the Associated Press reported from Fort Worth.

Bill Young, tackle on the undefeated 1936 Alabama eleven, and Boggs Hall, star guard of the West Virginia Wesleyan team for the past four years, were the gridiron performers who signed with Marshall's outfit.

Baugh, in announcing he had accepted the coaching berth, said, "I finally decided coaching was my profession and couldn't think of a better place to start than under Dutch Meyer (T. C. U. coach)."

Baugh's contract was reported to call for $2,000 a year for tutoring freshman football, basket ball and baseball.

6 Handball Stars Play Here Tonight

Two first-class handball matches will start in the Y. M. C. A. courts tonight at 8. One doubles and one singles match.

The doubles will be Channing Walker and Joe Cowley of the Y. M. C. A. against Al Blum and Nat Rosenfeld, of the Baltimore Y. M. H. A. Cowley and Walker are the local champions and runners-up in the National championship games held here recently. Blum and Rosenfeld are Y. M. H. A. champions.

Immediately after the doubles, the singles will get under way between Jack Schwartz, local champion, and Stanley Hitz, of Harrisburg, Pa. Hitz was runner-up in the National championship games.

Schwartz didn't get an opportunity to play Hitz in the Nationals as they were in different brackets. So tonight there will be an opportunity to see Schwartz and Hitz in a match that should be packed with thrills.

Westminster Downs G. W. By 31 to 30

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New Wilmington, Pa., Feb. 26.—Westminster Titans led George Washington University in only four minutes of a sensational ball game here tonight, but they were the closing minutes of the battle and the locals won by a single point, 31 to 30.

A crowd of some 1,200 fans turned the place into a bedlam when the Titans forged to the front with only minutes remaining and protected a slim lead until the final gun.

The victory gave the Titans an even break with the visitors this year, Washington having won on its home court several weeks ago. It also kept intact Westminster's record of not having lost on the home court this season.

Backus caged a long toss from center that put Westminster in front for the first time, 28-27, with less than four minutes to go. Grubb parked himself under the hoop on a sleeper play and took a pass from Demo who counted to make the score, 30-27. Grubb went out on personals when he fouled Filkowitz, who converted the point. Demo and Faris matched points on field goals in the last half minute.

Sectional Title To Armstrong

Armstrong High School, of Washington, yesterday won the South Atlantic colored interscholastic basketball championship by trouncing the defending champions, Douglas High, of Baltimore, 31 to 19, on the Armstrong Court.

Holder of the District championship for the past two years, the Armstrong team, which defeated Cardozo High last week for the city title, jumped to an early lead and was never headed. Maurice Jackson, Armstrong forward, led the attack with 12 points. The Baltimore champions never led.

Police Inquiry In Md. Orders Aide to Appear

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 26.—The Senate committee investigating the Maryland State police decided tonight to summon Sergt. Menash Katz, State police aide to Gov. Harry W. Nice, to appear for questioning Tuesday afternoon.

Senator Wilmer Fell Davis (Republican), Caroline, committee member, said that Lieut. Andrew Conner would be asked to appear at the same time. Katz's name has been brought into the inquiry repeatedly since its inception. Dr. Howard M. Bubert, police physician, testified last night that one of the "troubles" with the department was "too much interference from the Governor's office, through Sergt. Katz."

Other developments in the police situation today were:

Decision of the Senate finance and House ways and means committee to strike allowances designed to add 50 men to the police force from the 1938-39 State budget.

Introduction of a bill by Speaker Emanuel Gorfine (Democrat), Fourth District, Baltimore, and 42 delegates to empower the superintendent of police to install a teletype system connecting the headquarters and all substations.

Denial by Gov. Nice that he had ever been "furious" with Maj. Enoch B. Garey, deposed police superintendent, for having "two Catholics investigating a Mason."

Senator Ridgely P. Melvin (Democrat, Anne Arundel, prepared measure to take the police out of the merit system, and place them under the sole authority of the superintendent, who would have power to hire, fire, demote and promote.

Frederick Mud Gains Attention Of Road Body

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Feb. 26.—State Roads Commission officials said today that in their opinion immediate efforts to repair the back roads of Frederick County would be like "pouring money into the mud holes."

Dr. Homer E. Tabler, chairman of the commission, said that if school buses and automobiles cannot travel over these roads, it would be impossible to get road machinery there to repair them.

Residents of the vicinity of Urbana in Frederick County have made several public protests recently against the condition of the roads, describing them as impassable. A farmers' organization has voted not to pay its taxes until they are improved.

Fifteen school children held a "a sit-down" strike in Frederick Tuesday because the school bus could not reach them. A motorist, Lester L. Gregg, dynamited his car a week ago when it became stuck in a mud hole. The car was wrecked.

Dr. Tabler and Nathan L. Smith, chief engineer of the commission, said the unusual rains experienced throughout the State during the past two months had seriously affected the condition of most of the 5,000 miles of dirt roads in Maryland.

The chairman quoted from a report of a utility company that its workmen, in digging holes for poles, found the water had saturated the ground to the unusual depth of 4½ feet.

He said that he believed any effort to fill in the bad spots and dig the ditches to carry off the rains at the present time would be wasted money because it would be impossible to get the machinery to the places needing repairs and the wet condition of the ground would ruin any work that might be attempted.

300 Staging 'Stay-In' To Prevent 'Sit-Down'

Grand Haven, Mich., Feb. 26 (AP).—A "stay-in" to prevent a "sit-down"—something new in labor disputes—was under way here tonight with about 300 employes of the Eagle Ottawa Leather Co. participating.

The group is doing its regular work, then remaining inside the plant for fear, they said, that other employes, possibly sympathetic with the Committee for Industrial Organization, would strike and barricade the factory.

On the Air Today

Arturo Toscanini, who comes to the United States in December for exclusive concerts via broadcasting, will receive $4,000 per performance. The distinguished maestro will not be available to any other organization in the period of ten weeks devoted to the air series.

Signor Toscanini will conduct the N. B. C. Symphony Orchestra, which will be increased in number for the concerts. Choice of program material will be entirely in his hands and he has in turn promised to offer "the very best music" possible.

David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, which makes possible the programs, also reports that an audience of 1,500 persons will be able to witness the program inasmuch as the series will originate in Radio City's large Studio 8-H. Admission will be by invitation.

What is believed to be the first policy every taken by a radio sponsor against possible failure of a star to appear for a program is reported this week by the sponsors of Gladys Swarthout's series. An insurance policy in the amount of $50,000 has been obtained from Lloyd's of London.

It has been revealed that Lloyd's consider Miss Swarthout an excellent risk. Only twice in ten years of operatic work has she canceled appearances—once when she sprained an ankle several years ago and more recently when the flu bug, which respects no personages, took her out of circulation for a time. She also has maintained unbroken a record of 350 radio broadcasts.

Wheat Prices Advance With Sales Abroad

Corn Also Makes Sharp Gain Under Urgent Commercial Demand.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—Shaking off the influence of favorable weather conditions for the domestic winter crop, the Chicago wheat market late today advanced 1½ cents a bushel, maximum.

Word that 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been sought for shipment to more than half a dozen European countries did much to hoist values. Contributing to the upward trend of wheat was an independent rise of the corn market. Increased urgency of commercial demand for corn acted as a notable stimulus.

At the close, wheat was ⅛@¼ above yesterday's finish; May, 1.31⅝@1.31½; July, 1.13½@1.13⅝; September, 1.10¾. Corn unchanged to 1¼ higher; May, 1.07@1.07⅛; July, 1.02⅝; September, 95½@95⅝. Oats, ¼@⅝ up; May, 29, and Rye showing ⅝@2⅜ bulge; May, 1.05⅝. In provisions, the outcome was 2 cents to 15 cents gain.

The Market

New York, Feb. 26.—Stocks were propped enough in the last hour of trading to give them an irregularly higher close. Turnover of less than 2,000,000 shares was the smallest since the first week of January. Bonds also were sluggish, Treasury issues losing slightly. May wheat recovered 1¼ cents to 131½ a bushel.

February is proving to have been a fairly good month for the stock market, nothwithstanding the fact that nearly everything but a major catastrophe has occurred or been threatened to shake confidence in stocks. Trading has been irregular. Some stocks, ordinarily leaders in bull movements, have gone down sharply, but others have kept up the balance by advancing vigorously. Of the 20 stocks used in The Post's compilation of average prices for industrial shares, 13 have declined this month, but the average price fell 1 per cent.

Some of the biggest losses ranged from 4 to 8 points in Woolworth, Western Union, American Telephone and American Tobacco. Steel was the bright stock in the advance, gaining about 13 points. Anaconda rose nearly a dozen points. Railroad shares improved to the extent of 6 per cent this month. A comparative list of price changes on the month follows:

Railroad and steel shares took charge of the market in the final hour, after an early attempt among the cheap metals had brought an indifferent response. Trading was dull and listless throughout and at their best most stocks were only fractionally higher. An unusual number of cash transactions took place in several important stocks, some of it probably for a month-end balancing of the books.

Reserve Raise.

With less to discuss on the industrial front interest in monetary developments was increased by the near approach of the effective date—Monday—for the higher bank reserve requirements. The New York banks are facing with equanimity the increase of 16 2-3 per cent. That increase will freeze about $770,000,000 of the $2,100,000,000 excess funds of all member banks and will transform into legal reserve about $275,000,000 of the $800,000,000 idle money of the banks in this city. Similar increases will go into effect May 1. The indications are that country banks will not have to draw extensively upon New York balances to meet the first of the two increases, but they may draw extensively upon New York to meet the second increase in May.

Meanwhile the position in France seems to be growing a bit more tense, with the government's opposition viewing with alarm the drift of the country toward financial instability, because of heavy dependence upon borrowing. Even in Great Britain some stir has been created over the plans of the government to lean more heavily upon bank credit. Our own position is by no means secure from the standpoint of inflation, based on internal conditions, and it will be made more difficult should a new crisis develop abroad. Dollars moved against sterling and francs.

Low Metals.

A little caution seems to have come into the market for some of the low priced metal shares, but others have quickened their pace. A few of those that for a long time have been known to be worthless are now doing the best in the market. Some mines with stocks listed on the Stock Exchange and the curb couldn't produce anything at a profit. Many of them never could. Others have worn out their ore veins long ago. Still others which theoretically might make a little money, provided metal prices held up and labor and material costs do not increase, might operate at a small profit, but it would require a long time to resume operations, at which time metal prices might be down again. The current market is a gift from heaven to promoters and others who have waited years for just such an opportunity to dump on the slagheap of public ignorance.

Control.

Activity in worthless mining stocks being what it is on the organized exchanges, the mail order and house canvassing business these days must indeed be lively. A good plan would be for each speculator whose name happens to be on the sucker list to carry with him a competent mining engineer. Even then he probably would lose money. In justice to the public lamb, so-called, it can be said that he has no idea of becoming an investor in any stocks—he merely thinks he will be smart enough or lucky enough to sell at a higher price to the other fellow. Yet millions of dollars yearly are spent for his "protection." Probably the only effective protection to the public speculator is birth control.

Auto Output Regains Record High Level

Detroit, Feb. 26 (AP).—Ward's automotive reports estimated today that this week's output of the motorcar factories would total 115,360 units, which it describes as the highest level for any February week since 1929.

Last week's total was estimated at 38,740 against 70,516 in the comparable week of 1936. Ward's predicted next week's assemblies would exceed 125,000 cars and trucks.

Freight Traffic Gains in Week And For Year

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended February 20 totaled 714,884 cars, the Association of American Railroads announced yesterday. This was an increase of 128,397 cars or 21.9 per cent above the corresponding week in 1936 and an increase of 161,719 cars or 29.2 per cent above the corresponding week in 1935; both 1936 and 1935 include Washington's Birthday holiday; 1937 does not. Loading of revenue freight for the week of February 20 was an increase of 23,266 cars or 3.4 per cent above the preceding week.

Coke loading amounted to 12,116 cars, a decrease of 117 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 1,968 cars above the same week in 1936 and 4,864 cars above the same week in 1935.

All districts reported increases in the number of cars loaded with revenue freight, compared with the corresponding weeks in 1936 and 1935.

Exchange Committee Appointed by I. B. A.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—A special unlisted trading committee of the Investment Bankers Association of America has been appointed to determine when the association shall oppose or support applications before the Securities and Exchange Commission for admission or removal of securities from unlisted trading privileges on stock exchanges, it was announced today by Edward B. Hall, president of Harris, Hall & Co., and president of the association.

Mr. Hall also outlined the procedure that would be followed by the association in this activity, which marks its first official entrance into the frequently controversial matter of fixing the market place for securities. Allan M. Pope, president of the First Boston Corporation, New York, was named chairman of the committee.

Hazel Atlas Votes $1.56 Extra Dividend

New York, Feb. 26 (AP).—Directors of Hazel Atlas Glass Co. today declared an extra dividend of $1.56 on the common stock, payable April 1 to stock of record March 12. The company had previously declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 on the common, payable the same date.

Directors of New Jersey Zinc Co. declared an extra dividend of 50 cents, payable March 10, to stock of record February 26. The company paid a quarterly of 50 cents on February 10 and an extra of 50 cents on July 10, 1936.

Bituminous Production.

Curb Irregular; Oils Are Higher

New York, Feb. 26 (AP).—Industrial shares gave a good account of themselves in today's curb market as utilities settled a little lower. Oils, metals and specialties accounted for many final gains in spite of profit selling in the last hour. Up a point or more were McWilliams Dredging at 38½, Gulf Oil at 57¾, Ohio Brass "B" at 55, Sherwin-Williams at 148 and Wayne Pump at 44¼.

Raymond Concrete Pil rose 4⅝ and Chicago Flexible Shaft gained 2⅜. Fractions were picked up by American Cyanamid "B," International Petroleum, Lake Shore Mines and Pioneer Gold. Bucking the main trend of utilities, Northern States Power "A" and United Gas closed fractionally higher.

Transactions were 776,000 shares against 995,000 Thursday.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 26.—The Portland cement industry is one of many which have benefited from the large increase in building construction during last year. Production of cement in 1936 was the greatest for any year since 1931 and surpassed 1935 production by 46 per cent.

Income Drops For 2d Month From Oct. High

New York, Feb. 26.—The national income produced in the United States declined in December for the second consecutive month, after having reached a peak for the current recovery movement in October, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. The national income amounted to $5,676,000,000 in December, as compared with $5,729,000,000 in November and with $5,860,000,000 in October. The national income in December, however, was 18.0 per cent larger than in the corresponding month of the preceding year, when it amounted to $4,810,000,000. It was larger than in any previous December since the pre-depression year 1929 and it did not fall much below the level of December of that year, when it amounted to $5,809,000,000.

The annual national income in 1936 amounted to $60,840,000,000, having expanded for four consecutive years. It amounted to $52,959,000,000 in the previous year and to $39,545,000,000 at the low for the depression in 1932. The national income in 1936, however, was 24.9 per cent below the pre-depression figure of $81,034,000,000 in 1929.

It is probable that when the figures become available they will show that the national income in January was lower than in December. In the first place, the natural reaction from the October peak was apparently not completed in December. In the second place, conditions were aggravated by the flood and the automobile strike.

Allen Names Group to Study Auto Trailers

E. W. Thomas Heads Committee; 1,800 Trailers Have D.C. Licenses.

Increasing popularity of the automobile trailer yesterday prompted Commissioner George E. Allen to name an investigating committee to study problems arising in the District from widespread use of "houses on wheels."

Allen, who last summer traveled approximately 7,000 miles in a trailer during a nation-wide tour of WPA projects, selected Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward W. Thomas to head the investigating group.

Other members include Welfare Director Elwood Street, C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks; Police Superintendent Ernest W. Brown, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer and Health Officer George C. Ruhland.

Washington has approximately 1,800 trailers registered at the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, Van Duzer said. Of these, about one-third are "home" trailers.

The committee was directed to investigate all aspects of the problem and recommend laws or regulations to safeguard the health and welfare of the city and those who make trailers their homes.

If necessary, the committee will establish special traffic regulations governing use of licensed trailers. Commissioner Allen said he hoped the investigation would result in a general program which will be effective for the next several years.

Commissioner Allen covered 25 States during his trailer tour. It was because of his familiarity with sanitary and other problems affecting trailer use that he ordered the inquiry.

'Blighted' Areas Called Crime Breeding Places

New York, Feb. 26 (AP).—There is "an army of 500,000 armed criminals at large in the United States—unrecognized enemies working from within," Frederic M. Thrasher, secretary of the National Crime Prevention Institute, said tonight.

More "Capones, Diamonds and Dillingers" will appear, he told a meeting of New York City Teachers' Assembly District Clubs, unless "wholesome use of leisure time" is organized for the youth in certain "blighted" city and country areas.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. In re: condemnation of land for the acquisition of lots 2 and 3 in square 511 in the District of Columbia for school purposes (Old John F. Cook School, now known as James F. Bundy School). District Court No. 2463. Order of citation and publication. Upon consideration of the petition of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, filed in the above entitled cause, and on motion of counsel for the said Commissioners, it is, by the Court this 26th day of February, 1937, ordered: That the Clerk of the Court issue citation to all parties in interest in the land to be condemned herein, particularly described in the aforesaid petition, to appear in this court on the 18th day of March, 1937, at ten o'clock, a. m., to answer the said petition and to show cause, if any they have, why the prayers thereof should not be granted, and why the land in Square 511, as shown on the plat filed with the petition in said cause, should not be condemned for school purposes at the James F. Bundy School. It is further ordered that a copy of said citation be served by the United States Marshal for the District of Columbia upon such owners of the land sought to be condemned herein, and found by the said marshal or his deputies, within the District of Columbia; and it is further ordered that all persons having any interest in these proceedings be, and they are hereby warned and required to appear in this court on or before the said 18TH DAY OF MARCH, 1937, to answer the said petition and to continue in attendance until the court shall have made its final order ratifying and confirming the award and report of the condemnation jury to be appointed by the Court to appraise the value of the respective interests of all persons concerned in the land and premises mentioned and described in the aforesaid petition. It is further ordered that a copy of this order be published once in the Washington Law Reporter, The Washington Post, the Washington Evening Star, and the Washington Herald, newspapers published in the said District of Columbia before the 18TH DAY OF MARCH, 1937. By the Court: ALFRED A. WHEAT, Chief Justice. A true copy: Test: (Seal.) CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk. By C. E. STEWART, Jr., Assistant Clerk.

Suitor-Slayer Of Farm Girl Dies 'Happy'

By the Associated Press.

"I'll be happy to meet my sweetheart in the beyond," he told 400 persons who witnessed the execution.

Sheriff Louis Ziegler released the trap at 1:56 p. m. (Central Standard time), after Phil Hanna, professional hangman from Epworth, Ill., had adjusted the rope. Physicians pronounced Hardy dead 19 minutes later.

Shot Girl in Back.

He was convicted of killing 20-year-old Ethel Fenestock, September 28, 1935. He shot her in the back three times from behind a barn door as she went to do the milking.

"If I couldn't have her, I didn't want anyone else to," he said at the trial after testifying she rejected his attentions.

Hardy went to his death calmly. At the Ste. Genevieve County Jail he had protested because Sheriff Ziegler would not let him read newspaper stories about the scheduled execution.

"I am proud to be fully prepared to meet my Maker," he said when he reached the scaffold inside a 16-foot-high stockade at the county farm a mile north of here.

"Malice Toward None."

"I don't have any malice toward——"

The crowd made no sound when Hardy fell through the trap. An estimated 1,000 persons stood outside the high board fence.

The doctors made several examinations and one pronounced Hardy dead at 2:14. Two others concurred a minute later. The body was claimed immediately by his father, Hurt Hardy, sr., farmer. He took it to Flat River, small town near the adjoining Hardy and Fenestock farms.

150 Girl Reserves Visiting in Capital

One hundred and fifty high school girls from ten nearby cities will come to Washington today and tomorrow to attend a mid-winter conference of the Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A.

A highlight of the conference will be the attendance of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt during one of the afternoon sessions today. At 2 today Representative Caroline O'Day, of New York, will tell of her recent trip to the Pan-American Peace Conference at Buenos Aires.

Other speakers at the sessions will be Mrs. Alfred Lowry, director of the International Student House, who will be the honor guest at the formal banquet Saturday night; Miss Thelma McKelvey, of the National Youth Administration, who will talk on "Opportunities for High School Students Through the N. Y. A."; Mrs. Howard Thurman, recently returned from an exchange trip to India, who will speak at the service of worship Sunday morning, and Mrs. Wilson Compton, second vice-president of the Washington Y. W. C. A., who will discuss "Making the Most of Myself." Group discussions will be led by Miss Edith Reiger, business girls' secretary, and Miss Mary Burnett, music director of the Washington Y. W. C. A.

A program of gypsy songs and dances by members of the Girl Reserve Glee Club, in costume, will be the entertainment feature on Saturday afternoon. Fifty Washington girls will take part in this.

Poisoner of Daughter Sentenced to Die by Gas

Wilmington, N. C., Feb. 26 (AP).—A Superior Court jury tonight convicted Edgar Leroy Smoak, 39-year-old carpenter, of murder in the first degree in the poison death of his 15-year-old daughter. The verdict carried a mandatory death sentence and Judge J. H. Clement immediately sentenced Smoak to die April 23 in the State's lethal gas chamber at Raleigh.

Smoak was tried only on a charge of murdering the daughter, Annie Thelma, but the State contended he also poisoned his two wives who died 14 years apart.

Kansas Child Law Fight Goes to Supreme Court

Topeka, Kans., Feb. 26 (AP).—Senate opponents of a Kansas legislative resolution ratifying the Federal Child Labor amandment carried their fight to the State Supreme Court today.

The House passed the resolution yesterday after it had been declared adopted in the Senate, 21 to 20, with Lieut. Gov. W. M. Lindsay casting the deciding vote.

Senator R. W. Coleman (Republican), who challenged Lindsay's vote, said he had no constitutional right to a voice in a legislative matter.

W. Va. Senate Approves Court Reorganization

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 26 (AP).—The West Virginia Senate went on record today as approving proposed reorganization of the Federal judiciary and asked the House to do likewise.

The resolution, by Senator Barnhart (Democrat), of Kanawha, a lawyer, was adopted, 20 to 8, and sent to the House.

Bert Wheeler Weds.

Hollywood, Feb. 26 (AP).—A comedienne and a comedian, Sally Haines and Bert Wheeler, became man and wife today after a marriage ceremony that was no comedy to either. "I was so choked up, I could hardly say the words" Wheeler said.

Peggy Garcia Is Questioned On Blackmail Ring Activities

Copyright by the Associated Press.

Peggy Garcia, whose $500,000 breach of promise suit against Dave Rubinoff was thrown out of court when it was learned she was wed to Michael LaRocca, ran afoul of bigamy laws when further developments revealed LaRocca was married and the father of three children when he married Peggy. They are shown together in the district attorney's office at New York.

Girl Who Sued Violinist Denies Part in Any Plot; Indicted with LaRocca on Bigamy Charges in New York.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 26.—Peggy Garcia's blue eyes opened wide in astonishment when District Attorney William C. Dodge strode up to her today and warned she had better "come clean" about whether she was connected with an organized blackmail gang.

Peggy, who dropped a $500,000 breach of promise suit against Dave Rubinoff Wednesday when it was disclosed she already had a husband, let out a deep breath and said:

Signed for Cafe.

The blonde former hat-check girl pleaded innocent to the indictment and was held in $2,500 bail pending trial. Larocca's pleading was adjourned until Tuesday.

A man who identified himself as Joseph Ward, proprietor of a Bronx cafe, said he had signed Miss Garcia last night for a four-week engagement beginning March 6. He said he would arrange to post her bail so she could entertain his patrons with a "musical version of her life."

"I just talked with Judge Dodge," he said, "and this trouble isn't going to be anything."

Peggy Married at 11.

"You people," he said, "want to come clean. You will fare far better.

"I am convinced that there is an organized blackmail gang in this town and if you tell the truth it will be better for you. I am promising you nothing. You had better tell the whole truth."

Then he walked away, leaving them in the hands of an assistant.

Miss Garcia was accused of marrying Larocca while still the wife of Vance Guinn, whom she married in Virginia at the age of 11. Larocca was charged with leaving a wife and three children to marry the blonde. He contended his previous marriage was not legal.

Half-Laid Hen's Egg Food, Shelter for Rats

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Moorefield, W. Va., Feb. 26.—One of Clark Kuykendall's hens halfway laid an egg while caught between two boxes. A rat started eating the egg while still half laid. Rescuers found two baby rats which had crawled into the shell.

The hen's loud cackles drew the other chickens around. When the box was moved the adult rat jumped out, but was nabbed at the neck by a rooster. The rat squealed, the rooster "stomped," flapped and squawked and with three hens succeeded in killing the rat. All of the chickens were unhurt.

Coffee Off 15 Per Cent As Brokers' Strike End

Rio de Janiero, Feb. 26 (AP).—Coffee, Brazil's chief export, broke 15 per cent in price today as the Santos coffee exchange came to life after a brokers' strike lasting nearly a fortnight.

Ten thousand spectators were on hand as the bidding started. Reports circulated that the national coffee department, to prevent a further drop, was aiming to stabilize quotations at an average of 2.4 milreis per kilogram (about 6.8 cents a pound at the free rate of exchange.)

Glass Union Strife Ended, Says Leader

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 26 (AP).—Irwin De Shetler, secretary-treasurer of the Federation of Flat Glass Workers, said tonight that Glen W. McCabe, of Columbus, had withdrawn his appeal from an executive board order suspending him as president of the 17,000-member organization.

Climaxing weeks of a bitter intra-organization dispute, De Shetler's surprise announcement gave no details as to the reason for McCabe's action.

Comdr. Archambeault Receives Promotion

Lieut. Comdr. Charles P. Archambeault, Medical Corps, United States Navy, has been promoted to the rank of full commander, the Navy Department has announced. Commander Archambeault is now stationed in Washington with the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery.

His promotion, along with those of 3 commanders and 19 other lieutenant commanders previously announced, was signed by President Roosevelt Thursday afternoon.

6 D. C.-Chicago Flights.

Six daliy flights from Washington to Chicago are included in the new joint airline schedules of United Air Lines and Pennsylvania-Central Airlines, announced yesterday by C. D. Renouf, District traffic manager for United Air Lines. The new series includes departures from Washington at 8:34 a. m., 12:45 p. m., 3:40 p. m., 4:45 p. m., 5:45 p. m. and 11:20 p. m.

England Sets Peace as Price For Nazi Lands

By the Associated Press.

London, Feb. 26.—Great Britain today set the guaranteed peace of Europe as the price for restoration of Germany's war-lost foreign empire.

Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, stipulated the terms in a long surprise conversation with the German Ambassador, Joachim von Ribbentrop, who was expected to leave for Germany tomorrow to report to Adolf Hitler.

Before Great Britain even could consider returning the Reich's colonies or yielding League of Nations mandates over former German overseas possessions, diplomatic sources said Eden insisted the security of Europe must be established by a general accord.

Berlin, Feb. 26 (AP).—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's assertion that the inviolability of Switzerland is a "European necessity" was hailed by the German press today as conclusive evidence of the Fuehrer's pacific intentions.

(In Berne, Switzerland, the Federal Council announced in an official communique the Nazi leader had pledged Switzerland that her neutrality and territorial integrity would always be respected by Germany, since Swiss existence "fulfills a European need.")

The consensus of German press comment was that "absurd talk" of the German general staff planning to march through Switzerland in case of war, which was current at the time David Frankfurter, Jewish student, was tried and convicted of slaying the Swiss Nazi leader, Wilhelm Gostloff, February 4, 1936, is finally squelched.

2 Safety Devices For Plane Travel Ordered by U. S.

By the United Press.

New radio devices to reduce the danger of flying in bad weather will be required on all transport planes next year, the Bureau of Air Commerce announced yesterday.

The new equipment will include radio direction finders, with which pilots can get their bearings by tuning in on commercial broadcast, and antenna shielded against static.

The bureau ordered airline operators to equip their planes with the antistatic antenna by November 1, and the direction finders by next January 1. Officials explained the devices could not be put into use immediately because commercial production is not sufficiently advanced.

Col. J. Monroe Johnston, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, said the new regulations will increase safety in American air travel. They were issued after study by a recent national air safety conference of means to eliminate the causes of many recent air disasters.

Russians Ordered Ready for Attack

Moscow, Feb. 26 (AP).—Soviet Russia's 1,300,000-man fighting machine was under orders today to meet any future enemy on his own territory and to attack both with arms and propaganda within enemy lines.

"The winning over of worker and peasant elements in the enemy army, as well as the population in the arena of military operations, to the side of the proletarian revolution is most important," said revised military instructions which already have gone into effect.

"Meet the enemy on the territory whence he comes," the rules advised Russia's vast army.

"Any attack on the workers' and peasants' territory will be repulsed with all the strength of the armed forces of the Soviet Union through transfer of military operations into the territory of the attacking enemy."

Acosta Lands in Jail On Alimony Flight

New York, Feb. 26 (AP).—Bert Acosta, aviator who jumped from the Spanish war to marital trouble a few weeks ago, was clapped in jail again today on non-support charges. A hearing was set for Friday.

Mrs. Acosta, who lives in Rockville Center, was awarded $100 a week by the court in 1928 when she left Acosta, and asserted he paid since then only $45, leaving him $44,955 in arrears. Acosta returned from Spain recently charging the Spanish government had not paid him an agreed salary for piloting a bombing plane. He was arrested a week ago on his wife's charges. Released on bail for a hearing today, he failed to appear and his arrest was ordered.

Batista Declines Office.

Havana, Feb. 26 (AP).—Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of Cuba's army, announced today he would not accept the nomination of any party for presidency of the island republic.

Cashier's Auto BelievedFound In Richmond

Bill for Storage Leads to Discovery in Upper Marlboro Case.

Discovery of the automobile of William Edgar Seipp, cashier of the County Trust Co. of Maryland, who is wanted on a Federal warrant charging embezzlement, was reported yesterday by reliable sources.

These sources said the missing bank official's automobile had been located in a garage belonging to a Richmond hotel.

A letter addressed to Seipp at the bank and containing a bill for storage of the automobile was said to have led to the discovery.

The bill, according to the reports, was for storage dating from February 8, the day Seipp disappeared from the bank a few minutes after auditors had arrived for a periodical examination of the company's accounts.

G-Men, who entered the case several days after Seipp's disappearance, centered their search for awhile in the vicinity of Chicago. The lead was furnished by a letter from Seipp to his wife, who is staying with a brother in Baltimore. The letter was postmarked Chicago.

Officials of the Department of Justice refused last night to comment on the discovery of Seipp's automobile.

Panel to Argue Woman's Place In New Order

Debate Headlines Program for A.A.U.W. Dinner Here March 3.

In a panel discussion of this question, a Senator, a Representative and a journalist will match wits with three women—an editorial writer, a former university teacher and a governor of the Home Owners Protective Enterprise—at a dinner to be given March 3 at the University Women's Club, 1634 I street.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Wyoming; Representative Emanuel Celler, of New York, and Raymond Clapper, of Washington, will discuss the question from the masculine point of view. Miss Anna Youngman, of the editorial staff of The Washington Post; Mrs. Robert Oleson, former faculty member of Cincinnati University, and Miss Marie L. Obenauer, of the Home Owners Protective Enterprise, will present the woman's angle. Men and women who are making reservations for the dinner are expected to take part in the discussion as it develops.

The battle will not be along feminist and antifeminist lines, but rather in the light of what is right for men and women, as well as the home life of the country. In other words, there is to be no "ganging up" between men and women on the moth-worn question of women's rights.

While the panel debate is creating as much interest among men as among women, it is sponsored by the Washington branch of the American Association of University Women, of which Mrs. Richard Hogue is president. It has been arranged by the chairman of the committee on the legal and economic status of women, Miss Bertha Nienburg, assistant director of the Women's Bureau, United States Department of Labor.

Wallace Urges Crop Insurance

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Wallace advised Congress yesterday that a Federal crop insurance program would help check wide fluctuations in wheat prices thus benefiting consumer as well as producer.

The plan, in behalf of which Wallace appeared before a Senate Agriculture sub-committee, would apply to wheat in its first effective crop year, 1938. It would be extended to other crops as producers required it.
